Final Payment of Billion Proposed.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 7.—Despite official denials it was revealed today that the French government has received and is weighing an offer from President Roosevelt to settle the French war debt for a lump sum payment admitted by an authoritative government source to be between $800,000,000 and $1,000,000,000 at the current rate of exchange. France now owes $3,863,650,000 principal and $2,784,024,000 interest.

The offer was cabled through the French treasury attaché at Washington and was received here within the last 48 hours. After discussing it with former Premier Edouard Herriot, who has just returned from Washington, and other government officials, Premier Edouard Daladier decided the proposition is too serious to ignore. An official answer has either been sent or is ready for sending.

Approves Plan in Principle.

This answer, after welcoming the American initiative, expresses approval in principle of a lump settlement, but declares the French government cannot give a formal reply until more details are furnished. In general it is understood the tone of the French reply is extremely guarded and far from enthusiastic.

In reality the French are dismayed at the figure suggested, for even $800,000,000, the lowest of the suggested lump payments, is more than double what any one in France considered might be accepted as a final debt settlement.

At the same time the Daladier government is understood to be loath to turn the offer down cold, for in principle at least it represents what has been the goal of European diplomacy for the last ten years. The embarrassment of the government was reflected this afternoon when a categorical denial was issued in an attempt to stem the leak that occurred in one of the leading morning newspapers.

Popular Reaction Feared.

Investigation by this correspondent reveals, however, that the report of the American offer as revealed here is correct in the main and only slightly inaccurate in details. It is presumed that the action of the government in trying to hush up the news was due to fear of a disastrous popular reaction if the amount demanded by America became known.

It is also supposed here that a similar lump settlement has been proposed to Great Britain, but the exact terms are not known.

In requesting President Roosevelt to furnish more details on the plan it is believed that the French are particularly anxious to know whether the defaulted $19,261,432 December debt payment and above all the $40,738,568 payment due June 15 are to be absorbed in the lump settlement.

It is also understood that the French are not completely satisfied as to the modalities of the payment envisaged by Roosevelt. This correspondent is unable to state on his own authority what facilities for payment were offered in the American note other than that only part of the total sum would have to be paid in metal. There is strong reason to believe, however, that the details revealed today by the diplomatic correspondent of Le Petit Parisien and expanded on by two afternoon papers are reasonably accurate.

Suggested Payment Terms.

According to Le Petit Parisien, the entire French war debt interest of about $2,800,000,000 would be canceled in return for a lump payment, to be effected in three ways—one-third in gold, one-third in a sight engagement of the French treasury, and one-third in long term bonds mobilizable through the Bank for International Settlements.

The Paris Soir, an afternoon paper, suggests that only 25 per cent would be paid in gold, while 5 per cent would be paid in silver. It is noteworthy that the slice payable in silver amounts roughly to $40,000,000, just the amount of the June payment. Seventy per cent would be paid in bonds.

The main technical objection the French have to this mode of settlement—there is reason to believe the French reply dwells on this point—is that the government does not control the disposition of the $3,000,000,000 gold reserves in the Bank of France. In order to raise even a few hundred millions cash it would be necessary either to float a loan or to

Players on the Jackson Park golf course scattered in fright yesterday afternoon when a rented airplane glided toward them and landed upon a level stretch of fairway near the 15th green.

Among the hundreds of spectators was Edward J. McGlynn, 6811 Paxton avenue, an air line inspector for the aeronautical bureau of the United States department of commerce.

As Thomas J. Conley Jr., 25 years old, 7736 Oglesby avenue, the pilot, and D. J. Holthoefer, 7359 Paxton avenue, his passenger, alighted from the cockpit Inspector McGlynn demanded Conley's pilot license. The certificate was immediately surrendered and suspended by McGlynn until further notice.

Charges Violation of Rules.

Inspector McGlynn charged Conley with flying dangerously low, in violation of air regulations. The pilot explained that the plane had developed motor trouble, and that a forced landing was necessary. The matter will be heard this week by George Vest, commerce department air supervisor for this area. Conley faces a maximum penalty of a $500 fine and permanent revocation of his license.

Conley, who is the son of a retired police lieutenant and an army air mechanic at Chanute field, rented the biplane, a Driggs Skylark, equipped with a Rover motor, from the J. & L. Plane company at the Chicago airport.

Flies Over Park.

"When we took off, I noticed the motor wasn't getting the gas properly," said Conley. "We rose to 3,000 feet. Over the park our motor missed. I dived to stimulate the gas flow, but the motor sputtered. So I made for the golf course, and landed. No one was endangered."

The J. & L. company was notified, and Wales Jacobs, one of the owners, inspected the plane. The motor started on the first spin of the propeller, and Jacobs said it was his opinion there had been no motor trouble.

Inspector McGlynn said he acted only because of low flying. The ship, McGlynn asserted, had skimmed over treetops and house tops for several minutes before the descent.

Tornado Uproots Trees, Wrecks Barns in Iowa

Remsen, Ia., May 7.—(AP)—Barns were torn from their foundations, trees uprooted and smaller buildings overturned by a tornado which struck here this afternoon. A hog barn at the Paul Rodesch farm was completely destroyed and a number of hogs killed. The storm covered an area of three miles.

FUND TO SETTLE CHURCH DEBT IS OVERSUBSCRIBED

Last Wednesday the Rev. John M. Schneider, pastor of the Albany Park Methodist church, Wilson and Albany avenues, asked the members to contribute to a $16,000 fund to settle the church's indebtedness to the closed Albany Parks National Bank and Trust company.

Last night the Rev. Mr. Schneider announced to the church membership that the fund had been overscribed by $34. Gordon A. Ramsay, receiver of the bank, will be officially notified this week.

"The response of the membership in these times was heroic," said the pastor. "The largest single pledge was $2,000 and the smallest $10. They are payable in 20 months. The church had incurred the $16,000 indebtedness through the purchase of a site for an additional building, the construction of a Sunday school, and the purchase of an organ."

WIFE REPORTS SUPERVISOR OF LAKE CO. MISSING

William C. Pocklington, 35 years old, a Lake county supervisor and poormaster of Benton township, was reported missing this morning by his wife, Hilda, of Beach, four miles north of Waukegan. She told Sheriff Lester Tiffany of Lake county that her husband disappeared Friday afternoon after having attended a meeting of supervisors in Waukegan.

Pocklington, as poormaster, has incurred some enmities, Mrs. Pocklington said. A week ago he was forced to defend himself against a physical attack from a resident of Winthrop Harbor, who desired more relief. He has also had to combat some Red activities, the wife said. Pocklington's relief area covers Beach, Winthrop Harbor, and Zion.

Boy Frightened to Death by a Flash of Lightning

Fright, caused by a flash of lightning, resulted in a fatal heart attack last night for 14 year old Adolph Bolski Jr., 507 Granville avenue, Bellwood. Adolph was standing outside his home when the flash occurred, accompanied by thunder. Obviously frightened, he darted into the house and collapsed on the floor. He was dead when Dr. Merle E. Sweeley of Bellwood arrived. The doctor diagnosed the case as heart disease, probably brought on by fright over the lightning.

Boy Bleeds to Death from Injury in Playing Baseball

Cincinnati, O., May 7.—(AP)—An injury suffered in playing baseball caused the death today of James Linde, 11. He bled to death from a small cut on the lip received three days ago when he was struck by a bat. Physicians said he was a victim of haemophilia, an uncontrollable hemorrhage described as comparatively rare.

Mr. Wooley Routs Wolf at His Door

"This is Lowell Wooley at 1304 Marianna street," an excited voice announced. "There's a wolf at my door."

"One has been at mine for six months," the sergeant retorted. "Think nothing of it. Let him in and give him a bowl of soup. The poor fellow is probably hungry."

"Wait Till Sun Comes Up."

Mr. Wooley insisted he was not joking. Sergt. Josephson advised him to wait till the sun came up and he would find his wolf was a dog. Grudgingly, Wooley agreed to wait.

A short time later the phone rang again.

"This is Wooley again," an even more excited voice said. "I tell you it is a wolf.

"Still wild, Wooley," said Josephson. "Well, I'll send a couple of men around. They have wolves at their door, too, and know how to handle the critters."

A Tense Moment.

McGovern stepped forward. The wolf growled. McGovern retreated, cut a length of clothes line and attempted to lasso the wolf. The wolf sidestepped and eyed the policemen as it gnawed at the rope. McGovern drew the rope toward a shed in the yard. The wolf followed. McGovern climbed out of a back window. The wolf went in and Biederman slammed the door.

Triumphantly they called the Lincoln park zoo. Two attendants came in response to their summons. One opened the door, took a look and walked in. He reappeared a moment later, holding the wolf by the scruff of the neck.

"It's a prairie wolf, known in the west as a coyote," he said. "This one must have escaped from some one who had it as a pet."

The coyote was taken to the zoo, where it is being held awaiting the claim of the owner.

In a counter-revolution supported by an overwhelming majority of the members, the Sheridan-Booth faction of the Chicago Coal Teamsters and Hikers' union regained control yesterday without the use of guns. Four opponents of the Sheridan outfit had their heads cracked in the overturn, but there was no other violence.

The four casualties occurred in a fist fight preceding the big massmeeting when George Roy Baker, leader of the insurgents, attempted to rally his supporters in a meeting at regular headquarters, 637 South Ashland avenue. Mustering only 120 men, Baker was repulsed, and called his meeting off after summoning the police.

Nearly 1,800 Back Sheridan.

Jack Sheridan Jr., president of the so-called regular group, and Milton Booth Jr., treasurer, had meanwhile gathered nearly 1,800 members in another hall at 814 Harrison street. Sheridan and Booth were cheered when they charged that the Baker faction was trying to sell out the members to the Chicago Coal Merchants' association, with whom a new contract is about to be negotiated.

From the complaints voiced and smothered at the meeting it appeared that Sheridan and Booth themselves might be planning to carry through an arrangement with the coal merchants' association, though they accuse the other side of doing the plotting. Whichever side eventually gains control, it appeared, the coal drivers and hikers are going to take a pay cut.

Four Struck Down in Fight.

Three uniformed policemen were on guard at the Ashland avenue headquarters when Baker and the insurgents arrived. Within the place were agents and members of unions other than the coal teamsters, all affiliated with the Chicago Teamsters' union, headed by John Sheridan Sr. and friendly to the cause of his son.

As Baker and his men crossed the threshold fists began to fly. Four of Baker's men were struck down by fists or blackjacks. The injured were Grant Irwin, 24 South Whipple street, Walter Thomas, 1651 West Austin avenue; George Schalk, 5242 South Bishop street, and James Carroll, 7812 South Hermitage avenue.

Baker, whose policy has been to invoke the assistance of the police or state's attorney's office at every turn of the game, immediately telephoned Maxwell street station.

Policemen Sent to Scene.

Lieut. Edward F. Balata dispatched three plain clothes men, who found the fight waxing hot when they arrived.

Baker proclaimed that Sheridan Jr., one of the defenders of the headquarters, had brandished a pistol and slugged one of the Baker faction with the butt. Sheridan submitted to search and was found unarmed. Lieut. Balata ordered the four wounded and three alleged aggressors taken to the Maxwell station.

There Baker withdrew his charge that he had been Sheridan armed, while the four believed cut by fists and blackjacks professed themselves unable to identify their assailants. John Sheridan Sr. then came on the scene, and after a parley among the warring groups all were allowed to leave the station.

Booth Harangues Meeting.

At the Harrison street hall, meanwhile, young Booth and one of the "regular" trustees were haranguing the members on the treachery of the Baker faction and pledging themselves to be faithful to the cause of the workers. Nearly half the men present were Negroes.

Lieut. Thomas Duffy had fifty uniformed policemen scattered through the building to maintain order. Three plain clothes men mingled with the members in the meeting hall.

"That traitor, Baker, is trying to get in here to sell you out," Booth declaimed. "You'll find the evidence at the yards tomorrow morning. You'll see signs telling you that the wages are to be cut. But don't you pay any attention to it. When you see the signs, tell your bosses to call me, and we'll straighten it out."

Their Wages Already Cut.

From the gallery came calls that the wages had already been cut. Drivers yelled that their daily wage had been reduced from $8 to $7.50, while hikers complained that the hourly scale had been cut 5 cents.

"If they do any more of that cut-

Fire Dooms Town as 200 Homes Blaze

Ellsworth, Me., March 8 [Monday].—(AP)—The greater part of the town of Ellsworth appeared doomed early today by a fire which swept through the business district, destroying more than 50 buildings on both sides of the main street and then invaded the residential area, where shortly before 2 a. m. 200 dwelling houses were ablaze. The damage four hours after the fire started had exceeded $1,000,000.

Fire departments from many other towns were helping to combat the flames, but a high wind and low water pressure made their efforts of little avail. Firemen dynamited buildings in an effort to block the spread of the flames.

Families Abandon Homes.

Families abandoned their homes and wandered distractedly through the streets. Children became separated from their parents. The community was in an uproar with the shouts of fighters, the clang of fire bells and the wail of sirens punctuating the roar of the flames. One hundred special policemen patrolled the streets.

The fire front was more than half a mile wide and at 2 a. m. it had covered a distance of two miles.

Among the buildings destroyed were two banks, the city hall, and the Baptist and Methodist churches.

Phone Building Destroyed.

The fire apparently started in a vacant building formerly occupied by a shoe company. At 10:30 p. m. the heat from the flames drove the operators from the New England Telephone and Telegraph company exchange. Shortly afterward the building was burned. Communication with the stricken city was impossible shortly after midnight.

Emergency phones finally were cut in on the outskirts of the city, sending out word of the disaster to surrounding communities.

Ellsworth, the county seat of Hancock county, has a population of about 4,000. The town's assessed valuation in 1930 was $3,438,295.

50,000 VISIT FAIR GROUNDS; SET NEW MARK FOR 1 DAY

More than 50,000 persons visited the grounds of A Century of Progress yesterday, setting a record for a single day's attendance. The press was so great that the 5 o'clock closing hour was extended to permit late arrivals to enter.

Officials are making preparations to receive an exhibit of prehistoric monsters in their natural haunts, which is to be shown by the Sinclair Refining company. The beasts, which will move and emit cries, are being completed in Fort Wayne by P. G. Alen, who is fashioning them of steel, rubber and plaster.

It was announced that the exhibit of the federal bureau of standards will include a wind tunnel, which will be in operation daily. The tunnel is used to measure pressure exerted by wind on different types of surfaces on various motive contrivances, especially automobiles and airplanes.

NATION IS TOLD OF PROGRAM TO DRIVE FORWARD

Sees Industry, U. S. as Partners.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., May 7.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt purposes to cheapen the dollar through a controlled inflation of the currency in order to restore the pre-depression level of commodity prices and enable debtors to pay their debts in dollars of pre-depression value.

The President proclaimed this policy to the country and to the world tonight in a radio broadcast in which he presented his objectives as the raising of prices and a planned economy for agriculture, industry, and transportation to be carried out in partnership with the government. By such planned economy he proposes to eradicate cutthroat competition and starvation wages and prevent such overproduction as helped to bring about the present depression.

Broadcast to Three Continents.

The 3,000 word speech upon which he and his advisers had worked all day Mr. Roosevelt read before the microphones set up in his study while in a soundproof glass booth movie cameras ground out film for the talkies that will record the incident. The address was broadcast not only to the entire United States but also to Europe and South America.

The stock market, which sagged yesterday on rumors that the President would repudiate inflation, is expected to bound upward tomorrow along with the commodity markets in consequence of Mr. Roosevelt's pronouncement that there is to be inflation—but not too much.

The news of the President's definite intentions with respect to inflation for which the whole world has been waiting with great suspense was tucked into a single paragraph along toward the end of the speech.

Aims to Raise Prices.

"The administration," said Mr. Roosevelt, "has the definite objective of raising commodity prices to such an extent that those who have borrowed money will, on the average, be able to repay that money in the same kind of dollar which they borrowed. We do not seek to let them get such a cheap dollar that they will be able to pay back a great deal less than they borrowed. In other words, we seek to correct a wrong and not to create another wrong in the opposite direction. That is why powers are being given to the administration to provide if necessary for an enlargement of credit in order to correct the existing wrong. These powers will be used when, as, and if it may be necessary to accomplish the purpose."

By such controlled inflation the President proposes to raise commodity prices presumably to the average of the period from 1926 to 1929, which is generally considered the level at which the greater part of the present volume of debts was contracted. This would mean, in the case of most commodities, an increase of 100 per cent or more.

Plans Use of New Power.

The President will endeavor to attain this objective through one or more of the devices which he is to be empowered to employ by the inflation rider to the farm relief bill now approaching final approval by congress. The bill is expected to become law before the end of this week.

Credit inflation will be first resorted to through the purchase of government securities by the federal reserve bank. The volume of such securities will be provided by the issuance by the treasury of 2 or 3 billion dollars' worth of bonds to finance the huge public works construction program now being matured by the administration.

If such credit inflation fails to do the business the President will invoke the alternative power of using greenbacks in sufficient volume to produce the desired inflation of the currency. Another alternative provided by the inflation bill is the reduction of the gold content of the dollar not more than 50 per cent, but the President is known to regard this as a device that probably would not be resorted to except through agreement with other powers on a stabilization of currencies.

Denies Congress Abdicates.

After reviewing the legislative record of his administration up to date Mr. Roosevelt took occasion to deny that congress has abdicated its functions and made him a dictator. Congress, he said, has retained its constitutional authority.

"The only thing that has been happening," Mr. Roosevelt explained, "has been to designate the President as the agency to carry out certain of the purposes of congress. This was constitutional and in keeping with the past American tradition."

In this utterance for the first time the President revealed that with respect to industry and transportation as well as agriculture he aims to establish that planned economy under government direction that has been advocated for years by liberals, radicals and admirers of the Russian soviet experiment and is now being embraced by many conservative industrial leaders.

Plans Economy for Industry.

The planned economy for agriculture is about to become law in the farm relief bill the invocation of the vast powers provided by which measure will "depend entirely upon what the future has in store." The railroad bill transmitted to congress last week is to provide planned transportation under government direction. Now the President purposes to go a step farther and provide a planned economy for industry.

TEXT OF ADDRESS

The text of President Roosevelt's talk follows:

"On a Sunday night a week after my inauguration I used the radio to tell you about the banking crisis and the measures we were taking to meet it. I think that in that way I made clear to the country various facts that might otherwise have been misunderstood and in general provided a means of understanding which did much to restore confidence.

"Tonight, eight weeks later, I come for the second time to give you my report—in the same spirit and by the same means—to tell you about what we have been doing and what we are planning to do.

"Two months ago we were facing serious problems. The country was dying by inches. It was dying because trade and commerce had declined to dangerously low levels; prices for basic commodities were such as to destroy the value of the assets of national institutions such as banks, savings banks, insurance companies, and others. These institutions, because of their great needs, were foreclosing mortgages, calling loans, refusing credit.

Values Melting Away.

"Thus there was actually in process of destruction the property of millions of people who had borrowed money on that property in terms of dollars which had had an entirely different value from the level of March, 1933. That situation in that crisis did not call for any complicated consideration of economic panaceas or fancy plans. We were faced by a condition and not a theory.

"There were just two alternatives: The first was to allow the foreclosures to continue, credit to be withheld and money to go into hiding, and thus forcing liquidation and bankruptcy of banks, railroads, and insurance companies and a recapitalizing of all business and all property on a lower level. This alternative meant a continuation of what is loosely called 'deflation,' the net result of which would have been extraordinary hardship on all property owners and, incidentally, extraordinary hardships on all persons working for wages through an increase in unemployment and a further reduction of the wage scale.

Reaches Decision Early.

"It is easy to see that the result of this course would have not only economic effects of a very serious nature but social results that might bring incalculable harm. Even before I was inaugurated I came to the conclusion that such a policy was too much to ask the American people to bear. It involved not only a further loss of homes, farms, savings, and wages, but also a loss of spiritual values—the loss of that sense of security for the present and the future so necessary to the peace and contentment of the individual and his family.

"When you destroy these things you will find it difficult to establish confidence of any sort in the future. It was clear that mere appeals from Washington for confidence and the mere lending of more money to shaky institutions could not stop this downward course.

Has Praise for Congress.

"A prompt program applied as quickly as possible seemed to me not only justified but imperative to our national security. The congress, and when I say congress I mean the members of both political parties, fully understood this and gave me generous and intelligent support. The members of congress realized that the methods of normal times had to be replaced in the emergency by measures which were suited to the serious and pressing requirements of the moment.

"There was no actual surrender of power. Congress still retained its constitutional authority and no one has the slightest desire to change the balance of these powers. The function of congress is to decide what has to be done and to select the appropriate agency to carry out its will. This policy it has strictly adhered to. The only thing that has been happening has been to designate the President as the agency to carry out certain of the purposes of the congress. This was constitutional and in keeping with the past American tradition.

Outlines His Program.

"The legislation which has been passed or is in the process of enactment can properly be considered as part of a well grounded plan.

"First, we are giving opportunity of employment to one-quarter of a million of the unemployed, especially the young men who have dependents, to go into the forestry and flood prevention work. This is a big task because it means feeding, clothing and caring for nearly twice as many men as we have in the regular army itself. In creating this civilian conservation corps we are killing two birds with one stone. We are clearly enhancing the value of our natural resources, and second, we are relieving an appreciable amount of actual distress.

"This great group of men have entered upon their work on a purely voluntary basis, no military training is involved and we are conserving not only our natural resources but our human resources. One of the great values to this work is the fact that it is direct and requires the intervention of very little machinery.

Tells Muscle Shoals Plans.

"Second, I have requested the congress and have secured action upon a proposal to put the great properties owned by our government at Muscle Shoals to work after long years of wasteful inaction, and with this a broad plan for the improvement of a vast area in the Tennessee valley. It will add to the comfort and happiness of hundreds of thousands of people and the incident benefits will reach the entire nation.

"Next, the congress is about to pass legislation that will greatly ease the mortgage distress among the farmers and the home owners of the nation by providing for the easing of the burden of debt now bearing so heavily upon millions of our people.

"Our next step in seeking immediate relief is a grant of half a billion dollars to help the states, counties and municipalities in their duty to care for those who need direct and immediate relief.

Says Beer Is Helpful.

"The congress also passed legislation authorizing the sale of beer in such states as desired. This has already resulted in considerable reemployment and incidentally has provided much needed tax revenue.

"We are planning to ask the congress for legislation to enable the government to undertake public works, thus stimulating directly and indirectly the employment of many others in well-considered projects.

"Further legislation has been taken up which goes much more fundamentally into our economic problems. The farm relief bill seeks by the use of several methods, alone or together, to bring about an increased return to farmers for their major farm products, seeking at the same time to prevent in the days to come disastrous overproduction which so often in the past has kept farm commodity prices far below a reasonable return. This measure provides wide powers for emergencies. The extent of its use will depend entirely upon what the future has in store.

Seeks to Encourage Industry.

"Well considered and conservative measures will likewise be proposed which will attempt to give to the industrial workers of the country a more fair wage return, prevent cutthroat competition and unduly long hours for labor, and at the same time to encourage each industry to prevent overproduction.

"Our railroad bill falls into the same class because it seeks to provide and make certain definite planning by the railroads themselves, with the assistance of the government, to eliminate the duplication and waste that are now resulting in railroad receiverships and continuing operating deficits.

"I am certain that the people of this country understand and approve the broad purposes behind these new governmental policies relating to agriculture and industry and transportation. We found ourselves faced with more agricultural products than we could possibly consume ourselves and surpluses which other nations did not have the cash to buy from us except at prices ruinously low. We have found our factories able to turn out more goods than we could possibly consume, and at the same time we were faced with a falling export demand.

Sees Lack of Planning.

"We found ourselves with more facilities to transport goods and crops than there were goods and crops to be transported. All of this has been caused in large part by a complete lack of planning and a complete failure to understand the danger signals that have been flying ever since the close of the world war. The people of this country have been erroneously encouraged to believe that they could keep on increasing the output of farm and factory indefinitely and that some magician would find ways and means for that increased output to be consumed with reasonable profit to the producer.

"Today we have reason to believe that things are a little better than they were two months ago. Industry has picked up, railroads are carrying more freight, farm prices are better; but I am not going to indulge in issuing proclamations of overenthusiastic assurance.

"We cannot ballyhoo ourselves back to prosperity. I am going to be honest at all times with the people of the country.

Warns Against Speculation.

"I do not want the people of this country to take the foolish course of letting this improvement come back on another speculative wave. I do not want the people to believe that because of unjustified optimism we can resume the ruinous practice of increasing our crop output and our factory output in the hope that a kind Providence will find buyers at high prices. Such a course may bring us immediate and false prosperity, but it will be the kind of prosperity that will lead us into another tailspin.

"It is wholly wrong to call the measures that we have taken government control of farming, control of industry, and control of transportation. It is, rather, a partnership between government and farming and industry and transportation, not partnership in profits, for the profits would still go to the citizens, but rather a partnership in planning and partnership to see that the plans are carried out.

Cotton Industry Cited.

"Let me illustrate with an example. Take the cotton goods industry. It is probably true that 90 per cent of the cotton manufacturers would agree to eliminate starvation wages, would agree to stop long hours of employment, would agree to stop child labor, would agree to prevent an overproduction that would result in unsalable surpluses.

"But what good is such an agreement if the other 10 per cent of cotton manufacturers pay starvation wages, require long hours, employ children in their mills and turn out burdensome surpluses?

"The unfair 10 per cent could produce goods so cheaply that the fair 90 per cent would be compelled to meet the unfair conditions. Here is where government comes in. Government ought to have the right and will have the right, after surveying and planning for an industry to prevent, with the assistance of the overwhelming majority of that industry, unfair practice and to enforce this agreement by the authority of government.

"The so called anti-trust laws were intended to prevent the creation of monopolies and to forbid unreasonable profits to those monopolies. That purpose of the anti-trust laws must be continued, but these laws were never intended to encourage the kind of unfair competition that results in long hours, starvation wages and overproduction.

"The same principle applies to farm products and to transportation and every other field of organized private industry.

"We are moving toward a definite goal, which is to prevent the return of conditions which came very close to destroying what we call modern civilization. The actual accomplishment of our purpose cannot be attained in a day. Our policies are wholly within purposes for which our American constitutional government was established 150 years ago.

May Make Mistakes.

"I know that the people of this country will understand this and will also understand the spirit in which we are undertaking this policy. I do not deny that we may make mistakes of procedure as we carry out the policy.

"I have no expectation of making a hit every time I come to bat. What I seek is the highest possible batting average, not only for myself but for the team. Theodore Roosevelt once said to me: 'If I can be right 75 per cent of the time I shall come up to the fullest measure of my hopes.'

"Much has been said of late about federal finances and inflation, the gold standard, etc. Let me make the facts very simple and my policy very clear. In the first place, government credit and government currency are really one and the same thing.

Only Promise to Pay.

"Behind government bonds there is only a promise to pay. Behind government currency we have, in addition to the promise to pay, a reserve of gold and a small reserve of silver. In this connection it is worth while remembering that in the past the government has agreed to redeem nearly thirty billions of its debts and its currency in gold, and private corporations in this country have agreed to redeem another sixty or seventy billions of securities and mortgages in gold.

"The government and private corporations were making these agreements when they knew full well that all of the gold in the United States amounted to only between three and four billions and that all of the gold in all of the world amounted to only about eleven billions.

"If the holders of these promises to pay started in to demand gold, the first comers would get gold for a few days and they would amount to about one twenty-fifth of the holders of the securities and the currency. The other twenty-four people out of twenty-five, who did not happen to be at the top of the line, would be told politely that there was no more gold left.

Would Treat All Same.

"We have decided to treat all twenty-five in the same way in the interest of justice and the exercise of the constitutional powers of this government. We have placed every one on the same basis in order that the general good may be preserved.

"Nevertheless, gold, and to a partial extent silver, are perfectly good bases for currency and that is why I decided not to let any of the gold now in the country go out of it.

"A series of conditions arose three weeks ago which very readily might have meant, first, a drain on our gold by foreign countries, and, secondly, as a result of that, a flight of American capital, in the form of gold, out of our country. It is not exaggerating the possibility to tell you that such an occurrence might well have taken from us the major part of our gold reserve and resulted in such a further weakening of our government and private credit as to bring on actual panic conditions and the complete stoppage of the wheels of industry.

Seeks to Raise Prices.

"The administration has the definite objective of raising commodity prices to such an extent that those who have borrowed money will, on the average, be able to repay that money in the same kind of dollar which they borrowed.

"We do not seek to let them get such a cheap dollar that they will be able to pay back a great deal less than they borrowed.

"In other words we seek to correct a wrong and not to create another wrong in the opposite direction. That is why powers are being given to the administration to provide, if necessary, for an enlargement of credit, in order to correct the existing wrong. These powers will be used when, as, and if it may be necessary to accomplish the purpose.

"Hand in hand with the domestic situation which, of course, is our first concern, is the world situation, and I want to emphasize to you that the domestic situation is inevitably and deeply tied in with the conditions in all of the other nations of the world. In other words, we can get, in all probability, a fair measure of prosperity return in the United States, but it will not be permanent unless we get a return to prosperity all over the world.

Tells of Objectives.

"In the conferences which we have held and are holding with the leaders of other nations, we are seeking four great objectives. First, a general reduction of armaments and through this the removal of the fear of invasion and armed attack, and, at the same time, a reduction in armament costs, in order to help in the balancing of government budgets and the reduction of taxation. Secondly, a cutting down of the trade barriers, in order to re-start the flow of exchange of crops and goods between nations. Third, the setting up of a stabilization of currencies, in order that trade can make contracts ahead. Fourth, the reestablishment of friendly relations and greater confidence between all nations.

"Our foreign visitors these past three weeks have responded to these purposes in a very helpful way. All of the nations have suffered alike in this great depression. They have all reached the conclusion that each can best be helped by the common action of all. It is in this spirit that our visitors have met with us and discussed our common problems. The international conference that lies before us must succeed. The future of the world demands it and we have each of us pledged ourselves to the best joint efforts to this end.

Expresses Gratitude.

"To you, the people of this country, all of us, the members of the congress and the members of this administration owe a profound debt of gratitude. Throughout the depression you have been patient. You have granted us wide powers, you have encouraged us with a widespread approval of our purposes. Every ounce of strength and every resource at our command we have devoted to the end of justifying your confidence. We are encouraged to believe that a wise and sensible beginning has been made. In the present spirit of mutual confidence and mutual encouragement we go forward."

Norwegian Ship Arrives in Chicago

Brings Sardines

A vessel of 1,700 tonnage, the Mimer is one of the first ships bringing a trans-oceanic cargo to reach Chicago this spring. The master, Sigurd Evje of Oslo, will load peat for Le Havre, France, at docks on the north branch of the Chicago river before sailing for Europe the latter part of the week. His ship is steam powered, carries a crew of 16, and is owned by Mr. Korvik of Oslo. The crew unloaded the Chicago consignment of 3,000 cases of sardines and cheese at the North Pier terminal yesterday.

PRESIDENT ENJOYS 40 MILE AUTOMOBILE RIDE INTO MARYLAND

Washington, D. C., May 7.—(AP)—President Roosevelt enjoyed a 40 mile automobile ride late today that took him beyond Rockville, Md., and back.

As usual, the President used an open car. A bright sun took some of the chill out of a crisp wind.

Mr. Roosevelt had with him Miss Mary Cushing, a sister of Mrs. James Roosevelt Jr., and Phillip Coniff of Boston, who are house guests, and Miss Grace Tully, a secretary.

Sitting in the back seat, the President was recognized by many of the hundreds of Sunday afternoon tourists along the way. Richard Jervis, chief of the White House secret service, also was in the car, which was followed by a secret service car. The trip lasted for an hour and a half.

Earlier the chief executive had spent some hours in the White House preparing his address to the nation. He canceled a proposed cruise down the Potomac river.

DOUBLE SLAYING ON FARM LAID TO BROODING LOVE

A 53 year old hired hand's brooding love for a farm girl who had grown to fear and abhor him was the explanation of Coroner Herman J. Vierke of Kane county for the double tragedy early yesterday on John Schmitz's dairy farm at Plato Center, near Elgin. Oliver Day, the hired hand, killed Schmitz with a shotgun early yesterday and then compelled the victim's 17 year old daughter, Loretta, to shoot and fatally wound him.

Coroner Vierke's investigation led him to believe that Day had planned to kill the entire Schmitz family of four, including Mrs. Minnie Schmitz and the 11 year old son, John. Three shells were used in the double slaying and two others were found in Day's pocket. Mrs. Schmitz escaped after being struck on the head and the girl's pleadings are believed to have saved the lives of herself and her brother.

Brandishes a Shotgun.

The events leading to the tragedy began late Saturday night when Miss Schmitz, a senior in the Plato Center High school, and her escort, Donald Fitchie, 18 years old, also of Plato Center, returned to the girl's home in Fitchie's automobile. They found Day, who was intoxicated, waiting in the yard, brandishing a shotgun. Schmitz, a prosperous dairy farmer, who was clerk of the Plato township and president of the township school board, was attending a meeting of the board in the remains of the high school, which was struck by a tornado a week ago.

Without getting out of the car young Fitchie, whose father is a Kane county supervisor for Plato township, took Loretta to the school house and left her with her father. When Schmitz and his daughter returned home the girl went to her room on the second floor. Whether Schmitz found the hired man and sought to calm him was not known. His wife said he made no mention of the incident upon retiring at about 1 a. m.

Breaks Into Room.

At 2 o'clock Mrs. Schmitz was awakened by Day, who had broken into their room, on the first floor. He carried a shotgun which he fired at Schmitz, hitting him in the leg. Schmitz grappled with the farm hand, his wife said, but was overcome by weakness due to the loss of blood. When Mrs. Schmitz sought to aid her husband she was struck over the head. Then, she said, Day shot her husband in the head, killing him.

Mrs. Schmitz ran to the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Anderson, half a mile away, clad in her nightgown. A call for help was made to the state highway police at Elgin, eight miles east of Plato Center. The story was resumed at this point by Loretta.

"Day knocked on my door and told me to unlock it," she said, "but I refused. Then he broke it open. He told me to give him a shotgun shell, but I didn't have any. He said, 'Never mind, I have some more,' and put one shell in the gun.

"My brother Johnnie came in and Day took him back to his room and closed the door. Then he made me go down to his room on the first floor. He said he was going to kill me. I told him I would do anything if he wouldn't kill me. He made me take off my clothes. I still pleaded with him not to kill me.

Put Gun in Her Hands.

"Then he said, 'All right, take the gun and kill me.' He put the gun in my hands and told me to pull the trigger."

Miss Schmitz did as she was told. Then she called her brother and they started for her sister's home. On the way they met the highway police and told them of the tragedy. The police found Schmitz dead. Day was still alive.

"She didn't hit me high enough. Shoot me again," Day pleaded with them. He died an hour later in St. Joseph's hospital at Elgin of a wound in the stomach.

Police were told that Day had worked on the farm for 18 years and was always industrious until a few years ago, when he began drinking.

State's Attorney George D. Carbary of Kane county announced after an investigation that he would recommend to the coroner's jury, which will meet today, a verdict of murder in the death of Schmitz and of justifiable homicide in the death of Day.

ARGUE STEVENS PLEA TODAY TO VOID INDICTMENT

Arguments on a motion to quash the indictment of James W. Stevens and his son, Ernest J., charged with defrauding the Illinois Life Insurance company of $1,000,000, are to be made before Judge Philip L. Sullivan today. At the same time Judge Sullivan is expected to decide whether the Stevenses will be tried together or separately.

At the last hearing Assistant State's Attorney Grover C. Niemeyer demanded that Ernest Stevens be tried separately because of the illness of his father, but the younger Stevens was unwilling to shoulder the burden of a separate trial. Yesterday Prosecutor Niemeyer informed Defense Attorney J. Fred Reeve that the state would demand an immediate trial.

Attorney Reeve said he supposed the elder Stevens, whose condition has improved, would be forced to go on trial with his son. Prosecutor Thomas Dodd Healy, former assistant United States attorney, will assist Niemeyer in the prosecution of the Stevenses.

4 U. C. STUDENTS CHAMPIONS IN BRIDGE CONTEST

R. E. Branigan, John Carlin, C. H. Graves, and W. Gregorieff, University of Chicago students living in International house, won the team-of-four championship of the Western Bridge association tournament at the Palmer house this morning.

Forty minutes of play was still left at 1:30 a. m. when the championship was conceded the students by E. M. Lagron, president of the association, because they were so far ahead. The Midway players had eliminated 136 other contestants to win. They had led the field since yesterday afternoon.

Hour by hour losing teams were eliminated until the field had been narrowed down to forty. The students chopped these forty down until victory was certain. A gallery of several hundred applauded them.

Families Routed by Fire and Blast in Meat Shop

Fire of suspected incendiary origin caused several hundred dollars' damage this morning to an unused meat shop at 1724 West 69th street. Families living in the rear and on the floor above were routed. Chief Joseph Calek of the 26th battalion said that a small explosion evidently preceded the fire and that there were indications of a made fire. He will ask the fire attorney to investigate.

50,000 THRONG HUMBOLDT PARK IN POLISH FETE

Military, political, and civic celebrities, vivid costumes and banners, and throngs of Chicagoans of Polish descent lent color and interest yesterday to the spectacle in Humboldt park as the anniversary of the Polish constitution's adoption was celebrated at the Kosciuzko monument. The estimated attendance of 50,000 included large groups of world war veterans and singing societies. Anthony Czarnecki, custodian of the federal building, presided.

Distinguished visitors present on the speakers' platform included Dr. Stanislaus Patek, newly appointed Polish ambassador to the United States; Gen. Roman Gorecki, Polish banker and soldier, president of Fidac, international association of veterans; Titus Zbyszewski, Polish consul general in Chicago; Brig. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the Sixth corps army area; City Controller M. S. Szymczak, and John Romanszkiewicz, president of the Polish National Alliance.

The exercises were under the auspices of the alliance, the war veterans groups and the united associations of Americans of Polish descent. Brief talks by Dr. Patek, Gen. Parker, Controller Szymczak, and others emphasized the similarities between the struggle of the two countries, America and Poland, for independence, and commemorated Kosciuszko's contribution to the American victory.

FARLEY SPENDS DAY IN CHICAGO; BACK TOMORROW

Will Join in Tribute to Late Mayor Cermak.

Postmaster General James A. Farley spent yesterday in Chicago, en route from the Kentucky Derby to Minneapolis where he is to speak tonight. He arrived on the Pennsylvania in early morning and left at midnight over the Burlington.

Although he spent the day with Mayor Kelly and other Democratic leaders, the postmaster general did not come here to talk politics or deal out patronage, he said. His chief engagement during the day was attendance at the White Sox-Boston ball game at Comiskey park, accompanied by the mayor, Sanitary Trustee James Whalen, and others.

Cermak Tribute Tomorrow.

Mr. Farley will return here tomorrow to make two addresses. At noon he will speak before the Mail Advertising Service association of Chicago at the Hotel Sherman on "The Postoffice Department Coöperating in the Return of Better Business." Tomorrow night he is to join Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly, and others in tribute to late Mayor Cermak. Memorial services will be held in the Auditorium theater.

Before he left for the Twin Cities Mr. Farley visited the new postoffice with another member of his traveling party, L. W. Roberts, assistant secretary of the treasury, who has been visiting government projects all over the country. Others with the postmaster general were Frank C. Walker, secretary of the Democratic national committee, and his assistant, Ambrose O'Connell.

Has Little to Say About Jobs.

Although he is chief dispenser of federal patronage for the new administration, Mr. Farley had little to say about jobs for middle west or Chicago residents yesterday. Asked specifically about a new collector of internal revenue for this district, he said that nothing would be done in this direction until the new commissioner had been confirmed by the senate.

Besides the mayor and Trustee Whalen, County Clerk Sweitzer and Joseph L. Gill, clerk of the Municipal court, met Mr. Farley yesterday.

Wailing Cat in Treetop Annoys Hospital Patients

A white cat, stranded in the upper branches of a tall tree near the Martha Washington hospital since Saturday morning, and which has been annoying patients and residents with its meowings, was still on its precarious perch this morning—and still wailing. A nondescript assortment of missiles, ranging from shoes to flatirons, has failed to bring the cat down. Late last night a police squad was summoned, but failed to move the animal.

NEW U. S. ENVOY PLEDGES AID TO STRICKEN CUBA

Police Guard Welles on Arrival.

BY ELLIOTT TARBELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, May 7.—A crowd of 10,000 lined the Malecon, Havana's sea wall drive, this evening to catch a glimpse of Sumner Welles, new United States ambassador to Cuba. He arrived here at 6 o'clock and was taken off the United Fruit liner Peten by an immigration launch.

Mr. Welles was driven to the Nation hotel. Shouts of "Viva el Embajador" arose as his car sped along the sea wall drive. No Cuban officials accompanied him to the hotel, although he was met at the ship by Enrique Soler Baro, other state department attaches, United States Consul General Frederick T. F. Dumont, staffs of the embassy and consulate, and members of the American colony.

Police Guard Docks.

Due to extraordinary police precautions, less than 100 persons were admitted to the dock to greet Welles as he disembarked from the launch. Hundreds of uniformed and secret police and members of Le Porra, the government's "strong arm" crew, guarded the docks to prevent a demonstration.

Houses along the Malecon were searched and plain clothes men lined the drive.

After Mr. Welles had departed from the dock, 50 persons appeared. They waved red flags and shouted "Down with Machado!" Police dispersed them by firing shots over their heads.

The ambassador referred to the historic bonds between Cuba and the United States in a statement handed to newspapermen.

Will Seek to Revive Trade.

"I will give my most earnest consideration to the fundamental problem of regenerating the healthy flow of trade between us," he said. "I hold the sincere conviction that it is to the prime interest of Cuba, as well as to the interest of the citizens of the United States, that there be considered at an appropriate moment the bases for an agreement which will stimulate the advantageous interchange of commodities to an equal extent between both countries."

Concerning the Cuban political situation, Mr. Welles said:

"The government of the United States reiterates the [Elihu] Root interpretation given to the Platt amendment in 1901; that is, that the Platt amendment is not synonymous with intermeddling in the domestic affairs of Cuba."

Asked if he believed that a solution of the economic problem would solve the rest of the island's problems, the ambassador replied:

"So far as I am concerned, there is no 'rest.'"

Roosevelt Proposes Final Payment of Billion.

Offer Held Generous.

Despite the dismay of the French ministers at what they consider the staggering sum of $800,000,000, a review of the actual figures shows the American offer is an exceedingly generous one. Originally France owed America $3,340,516,000, plus interest. The Mellon-Berenger funding accord reduced this by 52 per cent, with interest figured at the original rate. After the funding France owed $4,025,000,000 principal and $2,822,674,000 interest, to be paid over a period of 62 years. France now owes a total of $6,647,674,000, which includes principal of $3,863,650,000.

Thus on the basis of principal alone Roosevelt's offer amounts nearly to a 75 per cent reduction of the French debt although, if interest accruing through the next half of the century is considered, France gets about 85 per cent discount for cash.

Actually, however, France would transfer only some $265,000,000 to $330,000,000 in metal and probably even some of that would be in silver. The rest of the so-called lump payment woud presumably boil down to juggling credits in the international ledger or at the worst some $300,000,000 in gold would be transferred gradually over a period of time as notes were presented to the French treasury.

The remaining $300,000,000—at least that much at the present stage of the negotiations—would be turned over to the Bank for International Settlements in gilt edge paper which suggests that in the long run it would be written off against the French share of the $700,000,000 worth of dubious German reparations bonds which Germany is to hand over to the world bank under the Lausanne accords abolishing reparations.

The French, however, were hoping they would not have to pay anything.

With the dollar off the gold standard and menacing their franc and the economic conference only five weeks away, the French feel less inclined to be hard boiled. It is considered probable that the American debt offer is tied up with a promise to stabilize the dollar and pound at an early date and certainly with the threat of a currency and trade war if the French refuse.

While Daladier was studying the American debt note today, Herriot conferred with Louis Serre, minister of commerce and industry, regarding a tariff truce. Confirming yesterday's dispatch revealing a secret Franco-British economic entente, it was learned today that Serre informed Herriot that France cannot definitely accept the truce until the British do so.

It is likewise confirmed that the 15 per cent surtax on British products will shortly be withdrawn. It is considered more than likely it will be slapped on American production instead—possibly some time during the week.

WARDEN FINDS THAT HIS PRISONER HAS RESERVED TALENT

Denver, Colo., May 7.—(AP)—John Velikoff's last trick was his best. Sentenced to jail for assault, Velikoff called for tools. He proved himself an expert carpenter, an artistic landscape gardener, and a metal worker whose skill in manufacturing cell furniture was amazing. Today Warden James Norton surveyed John's empty cell. He learned too late that John was also a locksmith par excellence.

Sheridans Recover Rule of the Teamsters.

ting, don't you fellows go to work." Booth blustered. "Just tell your bosses to call me. We'll see whether they can push us around or not. And remember, if they try to cut a hiker without cutting the drivers, you drivers will have to refuse to work, too. All us drivers and hikers have to stick together, just as we did when my father had the union."

Booth's demand for loyalty between drivers and hikers brought a cheer from the lower paid hikers. In the hubbub, demands for specific answers from Booth on his alleged gang connections were drowned out, but several drivers whose wages had been cut made themselves heard.

Booth Soothes Hecklers.

"I work at a north side coal yard and I've been cut 50 cents a day," one driver yelled. "What are you going to do about it?"

"That 50 cent cut—well, that's okay," Booth soothed him. "Some of the yards have been paying $8 and are cutting to $7.50. But we're going to make them pay every cent the union demands. We've got a contract and we'll make them enforce it. You'll get every cent of your $7.50, brother. You'll get your sick and death benefits, too."

The answer seemed to reassure a majority of the members, who broke into another cheer. As the meeting closed, Booth went through a ritual involving the placing of his right hand on his chest and the bowing of his head. The members followed suit.

"Having now given all you brothers the mystic sign of dismissal, I hereby declare this regular meeting of the Chicago Coal Teamsters, Chauffeurs, and Hikers' union adjourned sine die, and invite you all to be present at the next meeting," Booth read from the ritual book. "I adjure you to keep the secrets of the union sacred and be loyal to each other and your brother officers."

Following the meeting, Booth was asked what policy his regime would follow on wage scales and whether a strike would be called if the employers make a cut. He declined to discuss the matter, saying it was a union secret.

In the meeting he branded as lies the statements of the police and state's attorney's office that the real power behind his rule is represented by William [Klondike] O'Donnell and William [Three Fingered Jack] White. Asked about Morris Goldberg, brother-in-law of White, who was kidnaped from the Ashland avenue headquarters last week, Booth parried the question.

"They call me a hoodlum," he stormed. "Me, the son of the founder of the union. I wouldn't know White and O'Donnell if I passed them on the street. I don't know anything about Goldberg's relations. He's just a clerk around here. Don't you brothers worry about that gangster stuff. We'll take care of that and look out for your interests."

History of Turmoil.

Turmoil began in Sheridan's teamster unions on April 28, when seven machine gunners marched into the Ashland avenue headquarters, held 70 men at bay, and finally kidnaped Goldberg and Fred Sass, when they refused to call White and O'Donnell to the place by telephone. The invaders, whose leader was reported to be Roger Touhy, declared they had come, not to molest the union, but to clean out the White-O'Donnell forces.

Shortly after Sass and Goldberg were released by the kidnapers early in the morning of May 1 dynamite bombs were exploded at five business establishments in the loop and on the near north side. The next night a teamsters' meeting in Lake Forest was bombed. Amid the excitement of the kidnaping and bombings Baker conferred with the state's attorney's office and gained permission to march in and expel young Sheridan and Booth from the teamsters' union.

Baker Is Refused Writ.

Baker had sought an injunction restraining the pair from taking office back in 1930, when Sheridan Sr., with the alleged backing of George [Red] Barker, had driven James [Lefty] Lynch from the union. Judge Denis E. Sullivan declined to issue the injunction. Thereupon Lynch and Baker called a meeting attended by 150 members, where a unanimous vote was cast for Lynch and Baker while policemen stood guard.

It then became the Sheridan-Booth faction's turn in court. They went before Judge William J. Lindsay, claiming the police supervised election was illegal. Judge Lindsay upheld them and issued an injunction restraining Lynch and Baker from taking possession of the union.

The injunction was allowed to stand for twenty months until last December, when the Appellate court dismissed it. Following Baker's coup of last week Attorney Everett Jennings of the Sheridan legal staff went before Judge Lindsay seeking another injunction. The case is now pending.

JAPANESE OPEN NEW DRIVE; PUSH CHINESE 8 MILES FROM PEITAIHO

PEIPING, May 8.—[Monday,]—(AP)—Combined Japanese and Manchuokuan forces have pushed Chinese troops eight miles south of Peitaiho, coastal town south of Shanhaikwan and Chingwangtao, foreign legations here were advised today.

Armored trains and heavy shelling of the Chinese were playing a prominent part in the Japanese-Manchuokuan advance. Fighting was reported going on at several points northwest of Peitaiho, where Japanese flyers were conducting bombing raids.

Twice last week Japanese military authorities warned Chinese forces that they must move west of the Lwan or the Japanese would renew their attacks. Japanese are demanding that the area east of the Lwan be maintained as a neutral zone.

STATE TO TURN GUN LAW ON HOODLUM WHITE

Look for Conviction of Another Gangster.

Next on the list of public enemies to be prosecuted for gun toting will be William "Three Finger Jack" White, according to an announcement yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty who on Saturday obtained a conviction against Gus Winkler, gang chief, who was sentenced to a year in the Bridewell.

White rates as Public Enemy No. 2 and is known as a killer. He is second in command to Murray Humphries, against whom Dougherty also obtained a sentence of one year in the Bridewell. White, according to the police, has spread terror in union labor ranks. His record, furnished by the bureau of identification yesterday, follows:

Dec. 29, 1919—Sentenced to Joliet prison for robbery.

Jan. 20, 1920—Three robbery charges are stricken off by state's attorney's office.

Oct. 23, 1924—Paroled from Joliet prison.

Jan. 19, 1926—Found not guilty of robbery; one robbery charge and four charges of assault to kill stricken off.

Jan. 1, 1927—Sentenced to life imprisonment for murder; three charges of robbery stricken off.

Feb. 25, 1929—Sentence to life imprisonment reversed by the Supreme court, which ordered a new trial.

Oct. 12, 1930—Arrested for carrying a concealed weapon.

Oct. 3, 1931—Concealed weapon charge stricken off.

Seize Labor Unions.

White's history as a criminal and his later service in taking control of labor unions for Al Capone, the slain George "Red" Barker, and since then for Humphries, caused the Chicago Crime commission to brand him as Public Enemy No. 2 and to request that the old gun toting charge be reinstated.

White's prominence dates back to 1926, a year after he was freed from prison, when he was tried with James [Fin] Sammons and others for the $80,000 holdup of the International Harvester company. A jury acquitted him. While the trial was pending John Lafferty, who gave information linking White with the robbery, was slain.

Before this Policemen ames E. McBride and Edward Pflaume of Forest Park had chanced upon White and James Johnson in the Mannheim Inn on the night of Dec. 13, 1925, and sought to arrest them for the robbery of a McHenry county bank. White shot and killed Pflaume, according to witnesses, and McBride then killed Johnson. White escaped, and it was not until he was tried for the International Harvester robbery that he was identified as the killer.

The Supreme court waited more than two years before setting aside the murder conviction. There had been no proof that the police were authorized to arrest White, the court decided, and the conviction should have been for manslaughter instead of murder. In the second conviction the court said there was not sufficient evidence.

Try to Kill McBride.

While the second trial was pending an attempt was made to kill McBride. He testified, however, but four state witnesses could not be found. It was in between the first and second trials that detectives from the state's attorney's office came upon White, Barker and Claude Maddox in an automobile at 22d street and Cicero avenues at 3 o'clock on the morning of Oct. 12, 1930. Two revolvers were found in the automobile.

The hoodlums obtained separate trials. Barker faced the court first and was discharged because the police had had no search warrants.

Since then the Supreme court has made new rulings concerning the finding of weapons in automobiles and the rights of the police to search known criminals without warrants. Under the new rulings Prosecutor Dougherty believes he has a chance to convict White.

COUNTY TO ASK TAX RECEIVERS ON GOLD COAST

Suits Will Hit More Shirkers Today.

Gold Coast property owners who have not paid their 1928, 1929 and 1930 taxes are to be named defendants in several suits to be filed in the Circuit court today by Attorney Thomas D. Nash, counsel for County Treasurer McDonough.

The suits are to be filed under the Skarda act which empowers the county treasurer to act as receiver for tax delinquent properties and collect the income to pay back taxes.

First in the list of tax delinquent properties is the two story, 28 room mansion at 1524 Lake Shore drive. The records show that the tax bills are sent to Edward B. Blair, 137 West Jackson boulevard. The home is now occupied by Frederick D. Countiss Jr. The 1928 taxes due upon this piece of property are $9,013; the 1929 taxes due are $10,676, and the 1930 taxes due are $11,644.

The Lincoln Park West Building corporation, owner of the property at 2128-34 Lincoln Park West, owes 1928 taxes of $4,000, 1929 taxes of $12,454, and 1930 taxes of $13,683, according to the suit to be filed.

James E. Bistor, one of the leaders in the tax strike, will be named defendant in another suit as treasurer of the 219 Lake Shore Drive Building corporation. The 1929 taxes due upon this property are $16,458 and the 1930 taxes due are $17,950. In most of the suits to be filed, the taxes due represent unpaid balances on the total tax levied.

The A. J. Appleton Trust, owner of the property at 749-51 North Michigan avenue, with the firm of Hedberg & Bistor as agents, according to the records, owes 1928 taxes of $7,261, 1929 taxes of $8,601, and 1930 taxes of $9,281.

The Appleton Trust is also listed as owner of property at 137-47 East Chicago avenue, which owes 1928 taxes of $9,222, 1929 taxes of $10,924, and 1930 taxes of $11,914.

FASCISTS CLASH WITH JEWS IN LONDON STREET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 7.—Bad blood between Fascism and Jewry broke out again tonight when a group of Sir Oswald Mosely's blackshirts, assisted by a band of athletic youths in brown uniforms, engaged enraged Hebrews in battle in Piccadilly Circus. The blackshirts repeated their tactics of last Sunday by distributing handbills denouncing Jews and socialism among the crowds leaving movie theaters.

A lone fight developed in one section and suddenly the street rang with cries of "Come on, the Jews!" In a moment a widespread battle was on.

Police whistles were blown as hand to hand fighting broke out in all sections of Piccadilly Circus. Reinforcements of regular police poured in from neighboring stations. By the time they arrived, most of the combatants were forced to retire because of injuries. Police cleared the streets and six men were arrested. Some Fascists escaped in automobiles.

Gunman Robs Girl of $5 and $1,400 Pawn Ticket

He took $5 from her purse and also a pawn ticket for her diamond ring, valued at $1,400. The bandit returned 10 cents to her for carfare.

KENNETH BUCK TAKES POLICE TO KIDNAP SCENES

Both Brothers to Face Court Today.

Harwichport, Mass., May 7.—[Special.]—Dramatic reacting today of the kidnaping of ten year old Peggy McMath, during which the torn trousers that were given her for a pillow and the rope used to bind her hands and feet, were found, virtually completed the state's mass of evidence against Kenneth and Cyril Buck of Harwichport. They are now lodged in Barnstable county jail, the former charged with kidnaping and his brother with extortion through ransom. They are to be arraigned tomorrow at Provincetown. Whether a special session of the Barnstable county grand jury will be called this week and will be followed by speedy trial, will be determined then. District Attorney William C. Crossley will prosecute.

Kenneth Buck led Brig. Gen. Daniel Needham, state commissioner of public safety, and state detectives over the ground and to the shack and the house used in the kidnaping. Almost 100 spectators followed the police autos. Cyril Buck remained in jail.

Visit Girl's Prisons.

From Kenneth's story the police learned in detail how Peggy McMath lay bound hand and foot in an old cranberry shack for nine hours and later remained for 49 hours cramped up in a three by five foot shelf-like cache in the basement of a house on Miles street, Harwichport, directly opposite the home of Kenneth Buck.

Kenneth Buck told of his round of golf on the day of the kidnaping by which he learned that a forest fire had not burned the cranberry shack in which he had placed the child, handcuffed and otherwise bound. She was not unbound until that night.

From that shack Buck took the police through the cranberry bogs and over the creek across which he had carried Peggy. On his previous trip he had thrown the handcuffs away. Today Buck took the police to the vacant house, to which he had taken Peggy shortly before midnight last Tuesday.

While the girl lay with rope binding her hands and feet in the basement of the house across the street from Buck's home, she heard children playing, during Wednesday, within only a few feet of her, but separated by the brick wall that made the foundation of the house. She never called to them because Kenneth Buck, unknown to her because of the hood he continually wore, "making him look like a bunny," had told her that he would save her from kidnapers and return her to her father, if she remained quiet.

Where she had been imprisoned was within three feet of a ten foot cistern, empty, however. While she was tied, she might have rolled into it, perhaps to her death.

As Buck, detectives, newspaper men, and others passed his house, where $50,000 of the ransom was recovered, the prisoner's wife was standing at the front door.

That Neil McMath, the girl's father, will go to the assistance of Cyril Buck seemed likely tonight.

"I feel badly about Cyril," he said, "and I hope it will be possible for authorities to deal with him lightly, perhaps exonerate him. After all, Cyril brought my child back to me alive and unharmed."

FASCIST ARMY SHOWS STRENGTH IN CHILE PARADE

11,000 March as Political Crisis Grips Nation.

SANTIAGO, Chile, May 7.—(AP)—Eleven thousand Fascists, members of the powerful, new national milicia republicana, paraded through downtown streets here today while political leaders sought to solve a cabinet crisis created by the emergency of the organization.

A crowd estimated at more than 400,000 witnessed the first display of the Fascisti's power. It is a civilian organization formed on military lines with the avowed purpose of supporting a constitutional government and preventing de facto régimes in Chile.

A squadron of Fascist planes flew overhead as the units, unarmed, marched to tunes of two dozen bands and fife corps from the jockey club, through the vast Boulevard Alameda, past the presidential palace, where they saluted President Alessandri and government leaders, and then on to the main reviewing center in the Plaza Armas.

Capital Gasps at Strength.

The display of the milicia, which previously had been semi-secret, left the capital almost gasping with surprise at the strength of the first potent civil law enforcement body since Diego portables formed a civic guard 100 years ago.

It was because he failed in an attempt to dissuade the Fascist leaders from conducting the parade that Horacio Hevia, premier and minister of the interior, resigned last night. Political leaders met at once in the president's office to discuss the situation.

In the first line of the parade was the Fascist commander-in-chief, large, smiling Eulogio Sanchez Errazuriz, who with some 20 other men began organizing the milicia after Col. Marmaduke Grove and Dr. Carlos Davila, one time provisional president, seized the power from President Juan Esteban Montero on June 4, 1932.

Regiments Parade.

He was followed by members of his general staff, a mobile wireless unit, and, finally, regiments from Santiago, Valparaiso, Concepcion, Serena, Talca, and other cities.

To date the organization has spent six million pesos [about $360,000], it was understood, all of it from private sources, for planes, tanks, field guns, rifles, revolvers, trucks, field hospital supplies—everything for offensive or defensive war.

Along the line of march there were many demonstrations for the Fascists, and a few against them. Women tossed flowers from flag-bedecked windows.

Cabinet Minister Cheered.

Domingo Duran, minister of education and justice, a regimental commander of the milicia, received almost continuous applause. His activities and President Alessandri's refusal to halt the parade led Hevia to resign.

Most of the units wore blue coveralls with blue overseas caps and belts. The provincial regiments wore khaki or gray uniforms.

Montero said enemies of the milicia should be pleased with it, for in the event of strife the Fascists, who are not, he said, connected with Hitlerites or Italian Fascists, would join the army.

New Hampshire Votes June 20 on U. S. Dry Repeal

Concord, N. H., May 7.—(AP)—Gov. John C. Winant announced tonight he has signed the bill calling for the election on June 20 of delegates to a convention to act on the prohibition amendment. The bill was passed by the legislature last week.

DAN SCHULLO.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Thomas Reynolds, 30 years old, 2224 Clifton avenue, a member of the School Janitors' union employed by the board of education, was hurled from a speeding automobile at Chestnut and Clark streets last night. Unconscious from a skull fracture, supposedly the result of a beating, Reynolds is in a serious condition.

Chicago avenue police know of no motive for the supposed beating. Reynolds' brother, Frank, also was puzzled. Frank Reynolds said that his brother had left home for a walk during the afternoon. He had no enemies, he said.

Witnesses told police there were three men in the car from which Reynolds was thrown. The license number was traced to Daniel Schullo, 26 years old, 1307 Oregon avenue, who was arrested. He denied having had his car out during the day, and insisted he was home all day.

CHINESE GENERAL SHOT; SUSPECT IN MONARCHIST PLOT

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PEIPING, May 7.—Gen. Chang Ching-yao, former governor of Hunan province, was shot and seriously wounded today by an unidentified man in a hotel in Peiping's diplomatic quarter. Chang was removed to the German hospital, where he is expected to die. His assailant escaped.

The shooting brought police allegations that Chang was involved in a north China monarchical restoration movement and created widespread speculation in Chinese circles as to the extent of the movement's success. In 1917 he commanded China's inland navy during Chang Hsun's abortive campaign to restore the monarchy.

JUDGE FRIEND CUTS HIGH COST OF FORECLOSURES

Saves Time and Money for Litigants.

Under the broad powers vested in a court of equity Circuit Judge Hugo Friend has been moving toward reduction of fees and dispatch of litigation in the conduct of receivership and foreclosure cases in his court. Judge Friend, who was recalled from the Appellate court last fall to attack the foreclosure problem as a chancellor, yesterday explained his modifications of procedure.

Notable among his innovations is his method of disposing of default foreclosures. Default foreclosures are those in which the defendant fails to appear in court. In the past such cases have been assigned with other foreclosures to a master in chancery. Hearings before masters are prolonged. Attorneys and masters collect fees in proportion to the time spent.

Hearings Are Brief.

Judge Friend has set one day a week for hearing default cases. Each hearing takes less than five minutes as it consists merely of a statement of the case of the complainant. The hearings are similar to those in default divorce cases.

"Time and money are saved by these default hearings," Judge Friend said. "The parties of interest are spared the expense of a master and the fees of attorneys appearing before a master. The case must necessarily return to the court after the hearing before the master, so that by default hearings one link in the chain of foreclosure is eliminated to save time as well as money."

Judge Friend also allows the owner of a property to remain in possession during foreclosure whenever such action is possible. This, he said saves receivers' fees, provides a better management of the property and is beneficial to all parties.

Other Savings Made.

Further saving is accomplished in avoiding references to masters on preferred claims in bank receiverships. These are heard by Judge Friend and decided finally by him without reference.

The judge limits the appearances of receivers and their attorneys in court. Usually receivers are required to secure court permission in order to spend as little as $10. In these appearances they are accompanied by counsel. Both attorneys and counsel receive pay for such appearances. Judge Friend allows receivers to meet minor expenses and watches for any over reaching of this privilege in accountings to the court.

STORE OWNER IS ROBBED.

Elmer Tieberman, owner of a delicatessen at 2102 Division street, was robbed of $40 by two bandits who entered his store early yesterday.

JUDGES SEEKING RE-ELECTION

(Election June 5)

JOHN R. CAVERLY

Judge John R. Caverly, Democrat, age 71, came into international prominence through the Loeb-Leopold murder case in 1924. He was born in London, England, the son of an Irish father and an English mother, and he was brought by his parents to Chicago at the age of 7. He worked his way through school, carrying water in the steel mills for 87 cents a day, and he studied law at Chicago College of Law. He is one of the six judges not indorsed in the bar primaries.

He was employed in the city attorney's office from 1897 to 1903, meanwhile being admitted to the bar in 1900. He became a justice of the peace in 1903 and later was appointed by the mayor as police magistrate at Harrison street police court. When the offices of justices of the peace were abolished in Chicago Mr. Caverly failed of election to the first Municipal court bench. He was appointed city attorney, serving in this office from 1907 to 1910. He conducted a vigorous campaign against personal injury grafters, and in three years saved the city $1,400,000.

In 1910 he was elected to the Municipal court, where he served for eleven years, until his elevation to the Circuit bench in 1921. In September, 1924, he presided over the trial of Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, slayers of Robert Franks, and sentenced them to life imprisonment instead of the gallows. He was reelected in 1927.

In the bar primaries a few weeks ago Judge Caverly was refused an indorsement. The report of the Bar association said of him that he has had a long experience in judicial office, but "his services are not satisfactory to the bar."

SECOND FOREST COMPANY GOES TO NORTH WOODS

The second company of forestry workers left the civilian conservation army camp at Fort Sheridan yesterday for the Wisconsin woods. The company, of 212 men, commanded by Capt. Everett Busch, departed for Three Lakes. They will work in the Argonne forest. The first company left May 3 for Washburn, Wis., and the third company will depart May 13 for Park Falls, Wis., to work in the Flambeau area.

SHOT TO DEATH IN QUARREL.

Walter Nepsol, 50 years old, 1459 West 47th street, fired several shots at two burglars who entered his home early yesterday morning. Police found bloodstains on the window sill, through which the burglars escaped.

Geo. S. Parker presents

HIS "NEW DEAL" PEN

102% More Ink . . Two-way Writing Point

Sacless, Vacuum Barrel—Utterly New Style—Twice Greater Value

Barrel laminated—ring upon ring of Pearl and Jet

Now you see in stores, offices, homes, and schools, a wholly new KIND of pen—a pen that supersedes all others in its price class.

It started with a revolutionary idea—the Vacuum Filler—born in the brain of a scientist at the University of Wisconsin, developed by Geo. S. Parker, and styled by a great creative artist.

It sets a new pace in learning and earning. Its all-purpose Reversible Point writes two separate ways for separate work. A point of precious Platinum and Gold, tipped with a pellet of rare Iridium, as super-smooth as the bearing of a watch.

Its non-breakable laminated barrel holds as much ink as two rubber sac pens of corresponding size. A barrel as shimmering as velvet—built up ring upon ring of luminous pearl and jet. A wholly new and original style, ultra-exclusive, because patented.

Not only a pen without a rubber ink sac, but the first sacless pen without piston pump or valves to render it useless later. The hope and despair of pen inventors for nearly 50 years—now termed Parker's miracle pen.

Stop today at any nearby pen counter—see its enthralling beauty—see how it fills by vacuum—the large amount of ink it holds. Try writing two ways with its all-purpose point. See how Parker's new deal gives you twice the value at a favorite price.

SUICIDE WAVE HITS GERMANY; SIX LEADERS DIE

Ousted Nationalist Party Chief Shoots Self.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 7.—Under the strain of emotions generated by the National Socialist revolution, Germany has been swept by a wave of suicides. Six prominent men and women ended their lives today.

The most prominent victim was Dr. Ernst Oberfohren, until recently floor leader of the Nationalist party in the reichstag. He shot himself in his residence at Kiel.

Dr. Oberfohren had differed with the policy outlined by Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, Nationalist party leader, since Adolf Hitler ascended to power. A month ago Dr. Oberfohren's home was raided and documents were seized which allegedly revealed that he was plotting against Hugenberg. Dr. Oberfohren was forced to resign from the reichstag.

Tennis Champion Suicide.

Frau Nelly Neppach, former German tennis champion, committed suicide by taking gas. Frau Neppach, who is Jewish, was seven times champion of Germany as well as champion of Austria, Hungary, Switzerland, and Spain.

Ernst Katz, a bank official, and his wife, Lina, were found dead from gas asphyxiation. Mrs. Katz was the daughter of the former Socialist leader, Philipp Scheidemann, who proclaimed the German republic, but resigned the chancellorship rather than sign the treaty of Versailles. Scheidemann recently was compelled to apply for relief of $3 a week. His pension had been stopped by the Nazis. It is believed his daughter and her husband had brooded over the Nazi action.

Dr. Karl Goeser, a Socialist member of the Württemberg diet, shot himself to death in Luxembourg. He recently was removed from the directorship of the Stuttgart Milk Supply company and went to Luxembourg, although he had been refused a visa. He was charged with company irregularities.

Dr. Von Broch, for ten years mayor of Leer in East Friesland, committed suicide by shooting himself. He had been ousted as mayor and charges had been preferred against him by Nazis concerning financial irregularities.

Hitler Assails "1918 Traitors."

Meanwhile, Chancellor Hitler told 45,000 Nazi storm troopers from northern Germany that the "1918 traitors"—political leaders held responsible by the Nazi's for the Republican revolution in 1918—will be compelled to stand trial. The rally was held at Kiel.

"The November criminals must be brought before the bar of justice," Hitler said. "A new hour has come. The end of the German revolution is the end of the November criminals, the end of their system and the end of their existence. We will follow these men to their last skulking places and never rest until this poison is absolutely exterminated from our national body."

The Kyfferhaeuserbund, an organization of war veterans' societies, totaling 3,000,000 members, today voted to support Hitler's government.

Museum Director Resigns.

MUNICH, Germany, May 7.—(AP)—Dr. Oscar von Miller, director of the Deutsches museum, resigned today. The action was attributed to eye trouble, but politics played a major rôle in it.

Dr. Jung Sails for Italy After Roosevelt Parley

Boston, Mass., May 7.—(AP)—Satisfaction with his visit to Washington was expressed today by Dr. Gu Ido Jung, Italian minister of finance, as he sailed for his homeland aboard the Italian liner Vulcania. He declined to discuss any specific agreements which had been reached during his conversations with President Roosevelt, but indicated they had had definite results, which, he said, were pleasing to Premier Mussolini.

MOTOR MURALS SHOW PRODUCTS OF 40 STATES

A series of forty murals stretching over a wall space almost a fifth of a mile in extent have just been completed in the General Motors building of A Century of Progress.

Each of the murals is twenty-four feet in length and together they constitute a "gallery of the states," depicting the contributions of each commonwealth to the materials utilized in the manufacture of automobiles. They are believed to be the longest series of murals in the world.

The decorations were executed by Chicago artists under the direction of George Wittbold, in studios in the America Fore building, and are hung above the balcony in the automobile assembly plant room, from which visitors can look down and watch cars being assembled. The Illinois panel, painted by Axel Linus and Gus Wick, represents a scene from a glass factory, glass being one of the most important products supplied by this state to the automobile makers.

ROOSEVELT ASKS TARIFF TRUCE TO HELP TRADE

Britain, Italy Both Said to Favor It.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

Washington, D. C., May 7.—[Special.]—Fearful that a renewal of tariff reprisals at this time may wreck the chances of a wholly successful result at the world economic conference in London next month, President Roosevelt has been striving to win France and England to an agreement for a tariff truce.

Both those countries seem opposed to entering the "gentlemen's agreement" proposed by Mr. Roosevelt. The President's advisers believe France is the more strongly opposed to the plan to permit tariff schedules to go no higher, pending the world conference, starting June 12.

More hopeful of bringing England to his view, the President has canceled the plans of his ambassador-at-large, Norman H. Davis, to go from London to Geneva. Mr. Davis has been instructed to stay in England to make every possible effort to win British adherence to the tariff truce.

For Reciprocal Action.

The President is known to feel that the whole scheme of the world conference revolves around the posibilities of breaking down the tariff walls. It is his belief that if the principal powers cannot go into the conference in a spirit of international good will, rather than of selfish nationalism, there can be little hope for any substantial agreement on a world recovery program.

Mr. Roosevelt has won the Italian finance minister, Guido Jung, to his view on the tariff truce. The President's advisers believe Canada will assent to it readily, and there is little doubt in his mind, it is reported, that Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, the German economic representative whose conversations with the President will start in earnest tomorrow, will enter into the plan.

Conceding that the disordered monetary situation brought on by America's abandonment of the gold standard has created exchange conditions which temporarily would help the United States to sell its products more cheaply in France and England, President Roosevelt is striving, through Ambassador Davis, to plead with those two governments that no grave damage to their trade can be done in the short space of five or six weeks.

When the world conference actually opens there can be full discussions as to whether the truce shall be extended throughout the course of the parleys.

Puts Pressure on France.

In accentuating his plea to the British, through his ambassador, Mr. Roosevelt is said to be pursuing strategically the thought that France must follow the lead of Great Britain, or risk isolation in future international trade relations.

Among bankers the belief is said to have been expressed that France may be forced off the gold standard within a very few days. If that happens that nation's objection to a tariff truce will be greatly modified possibly to the point of making an agreement quite feasible.

The President disclosed, as a result of his conversations with Dr. Jung, that he was wholly favorable to an early return to a stabilization of world currencies, with gold as the standard. If France should leave gold standard temporarily, as England and the United States have done, experts believe it possible that the world currencies will find their proper level and relation to each other, so that at least pending the outcome of the world conference, when permanent ratios can be fixed, the necessity for tariff boosts in the gold standard countries especially France will not be so urgent.

President Is Optimistic.

The President steadfastly has maintained an optimistic spirit in approaching the world meeting, which he has held to be of greatest significance in the restoration of prosperity in this country as well as the world generally. He never has shown any fears that the statesmen of England and France will maintain their long habits of trading for national advantages.

RARE ISSUE PUT UP TO VOTERS IN ELECTING JUDGE

One State Supreme Court Candidate Blind.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

East St. Louis, Ill., May 7.—[Special.]—Five of the seven Illinois Supreme court districts elect their members of the state's high tribunal on June 5.

In two of the five electing districts there are no contests. In the Second, Ortha L. Plunkett of Robinson, the Republican nominee, withdrew, leaving Justice Norman L. Jones, Democrat from Carrollton, a clear field. In the Seventh, Justice Frederic R. De Young, a Republican, accepted nomination on the fusion ticket.

One of the electing sections, the First (Egyptian) district, is already in the midst of a dramatic struggle in which the dramatic elements have been suppressed almost to the point of silence.

Blindness an Unusual Issue.

That issue is whether a blind man is physically competent to perform the arduous duties imposed on a member of the hard working Supreme court The district is confronted by a choice between the blind man with a good record for two and one-half years in a County court and a man with the experience of eighteen years on the Circuit bench, during which his work has been without criticism.

It has been said frequently, but unofficially, that 90 per cent of the work of the Supreme court consists of reading—the reading of briefs, arguments, records and cases cited, and the examination of documents.

An experienced judge with all his faculties is able to make quick work of such examinations. Frequently he can skip paragraphs or even whole pages familiar to him.

The secrecy of the Supreme court room always has been considered sacred. No secretaries or other nonmembers of the court are permitted to be present. The question now is raised: How could a justice suffering from sightlessness do his conference work without assistance?

The two nominees in the First are Paul Farthing, Democrat, of Belleville, a suburb of East St. Louis in St. Clair county, of which he was elected county judge in 1930, and Charles Herbert Miller, Republican, of Benton, Franklin county, who is concluding his third term as circuit judge of the Second circuit, and frequently has heard cases in Chicago.

Farthing and Miller.

Both men are relatively young, Judge Farthing having just passed his 46th birthday and Judge Miller being 49. By coincidence they were in college together—McKendree. Judge Farthing took his three years course at Illinois and Judge Miller spent the same time at Harvard.

When he was 12 years old Judge Farthing's eyes were destroyed by a shotgun discharged by a playmate shooting at apples. Despite this handicap he lost only two years from his educational career. He went to the State School for the Blind at Jacksonville, then through high school, through college, and finally through his law course. He was among the first 10 per cent in his class in law school and there were only four in that group in his class of 1913. He took his bar examination at Ottawa that year. Out of a 121 total 81 passed. He finished second, with his brother, Chester, in first place.

Has Office with Brother.

During all these school years Chester did most of the reading for his handicapped brother and together they opened offices in East St. Louis, both immediately taking an active interest in Democratic organization politics.

"I'm not begging for votes with a tin cup," says Judge Farthing himself. "I can do the work and it wouldn't be long before I'd be helping some of the other members of the court do their work."

Few Rulings Reversed.

Judge Miller was graduated from grammar school and high school in Cobden, Union county, the center of the southern Illinois fruit belt, and then went to McKendree and Harvard. He began practice in Benton when he was 25 and five years later was elected a circuit judge. He was reelected in 1921 and in 1927. His nomination for the Supreme bench at Duquoin last month was unanimous on the first ballot.

His champions say he has a remarkable record during his eighteen years' experience with a remarkably low number of reversals in the higher courts. He has imposed the death penalty in several cases and every one was appealed but affirmed.

Possibly the most sensational of these was the case of Charlie Birger, noted gang leader, in which, his friends say, he ignored threats and inducements coming from the defense. While sitting in Cook county one of his famous cases was the Ann Livingstone Hardinge case.

MILO RENO ASKS DARROW TO AID IOWA FARMERS

Milo Reno, president of the Farmers' National Holiday association, came to Chicago yesterday to address the Chicago Federation of Labor and to urge Clarence Darrow to assist in the defense of the Iowa farmers charged with mobbing and threatening to hang Judge C. C. Bradley at Le Mars.

Attorney Darrow said he would be glad to go to the defense of the farmers but that he could make no promises at this time because of his health.

"I don't believe my strength will permit it," he said.

Reno spoke on the cause of the farmers and said plans were ready for the farm strike, called for May 13. Food will be rationed out to labor groups, he said.

CHIEF OF GUAM TELLS WHY HE DEPORTED JAPS

GUAM, May 7.—(AP)—Gov. E. S. Root of Guam said today his only action with regard to the "deportation" of Japanese laborers as alleged by the Japanese Nationalistic newspaper, Kokumin Shimbun, has been refusal to renew the residence permits of certain additional Japanese visitors. Root said he took this action because of "economic conditions." The Japanese have been here on six months permits.

Although the 112 laborers involved have appealed to Atsushi Kimura, Japanese consul general at Manila, to seek a modification of Capt. Root's order, the governor said he had received no communication from the Japanese official.

Local Japanese leaders have repudiated a critical article in the Osaka Herald dealing with the subject.

BAR BONDSMEN FROM HALLS OF POLICE BUILDING

Professional bondsmen were barred from the lobby and corridors of the police building at 11th and State streets yesterday by order of Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker.

The order was issued following the arrest of John Foley, 40 years old, 559 Surf street, said to be a runner for Robert Marcus, a professional bondsman. Foley was taken into custody Saturday night when he was found loitering in the building.

"I am not going to have bondsmen or their runners soliciting business in the police building," Chief Schoemaker said. "If they have business in the building they can come in and make a bond, but they'll leave immediately. Preying upon prisoners to rob them of what few dollars they have will not be tolerated."

GANDHI BEGINS TODAY ON FAST OF THREE WEEKS

Doctors Doubt He Is Strong Enough to Survive.

POONA, India, May 7.—(AP)—The Mahatma Gandhi spent his weekly day of silence today in making final preparations for starting at noon tomorrow his three weeks' fast, which doctors say will probably cost him his life. His release from Yeravda prison, where he was incarcerated more than a year ago in connection with his civil disobedience campaign, is expected, but authorities had made no decision tonight.

There was some speculation as to where the frail leader would go for his fast if he were released and the suggestion was heard that the mahatma will enter the humble hut of some "untouchable," thereby accentuating the significance of his protest against treatment of the lowest classes.

His closest friends were not permitted to visit him today, and even his son, David, was kept away. The son appealed to friends not to visit the leader during the fast, so that the mahatma would be able better to concentrate on surviving the ordeal.

American Girl Confesses.

AHMEDABAD, India, May 7.—(AP)—Nila Cram Cook, young American disciple of the Mahatma Gandhi, admitted today that the leader's accusations of worldliness against here were "all true."

Miss Cook saw Gandhi in Yeravda jail last Tuesday and said that at that time she "made a clean confession to him of my past life; I now want to lead a new life in accordance with the teachings of Gandhi." The mahatma published an article about her in his newspaper Harijan [Untouchable].

"I have taken the final step, and fear nothing except untruth, deception, or secrecy of any kind," said Miss Cook, who has assumed the name of Nila Nagini Devi, or "The Blue Serpent Goddess."

Buries "Old Self."

"When Gandhi looked through me I felt I should confess my past and end this deception of the public. To say the least, the present summary Gandhi has published has been mildly put.

"I feel no shame or humiliation in confessing my past because to bury my old self I had to confess and end the deception.

"I want my old personality as an American girl to die and be buried, that I may be an instrument to serve Gandhi in his service of the truth."

Miss Cook received a correspondent in her small room in Gandhi's model colony of Ashram, at Sabarmati. She was dressed in a robe of spotless white homespun material and was industriously sewing a cap for her young son.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 1.—Leading tire manufacturers today announced to dealers increases in prices which range from 3½ to 7 per cent. This was somewhat of a disappointment not alone to the financial community, where a 9 or 10 per cent rise had been forecast, but to some of the tire trade as well.

Expect 25% Increase.

It was the consensus among local large dealers that today's advance was the first in a series of mark-ups which, in the aggregate, are expected to amount to about 25 per cent by the middle of the summer.

UNDER SURFACE REVOLT SPIRIT SEEN IN HOUSE

Members Privately Strike at Pressure.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 7.—[Special.]—Beneath the placid surface of the huge Democratic majority in the house of representatives is a simmering spirit of revolt that is causing President Roosevelt and his advisers in congress concern for the successful completion of the administration's legislative program.

The house this session has completely lost its identity as a legislative body, and in the interest of the administration program has assumed the complexion of a constitutional rubber stamp. Every major piece of legislation to come before it since the session began has, with two exceptions, been crammed through under a special rule making amendment impossible. Twelve major bills thus far have passed the house and only two were changed in the slightest particular during progress through that body.

Some Resent Situation.

But it is the stifling of their prerogatives an individual member of congress that irritates the membership, more than the nullification of the house's constitutional function. Inquiry among the Democrats disclosed a decided, though carefully guarded resentment among the older members and a distinct feeling of disillusionment among the new representatives who entered congress for the first time this year, occasioned by the abrogation of their right to amend and alter important bills on the floor of the house.

As yet there have been but few patent indications of the increasing spirit of revolt in the administration party. But a number of members privately expressed personal resentment and felt no hesitancy in declaring that their feeling is reflected almost universally in the majority ranks.

Patronage Is Weapon.

The Democratic members are being kept rigidly in line by the administration's refusal to cut the patronage pie until President Roosevelt's program has been finally enacted. Recalcitrants, it is understood, are threatened with a loss of patronage if their votes reflect too strenuous an opposition to the administration program. For this reason, there was a noticeable reluctance on the part of most Democrats to discuss their individual feelings for publication. At the same time they were perfectly willing to express private opinion that the house is verging on a party upset unless the legislative tactics thus far employed are altered.

It is reliably reported that an administration spokesman at the White House said recently that President Roosevelt and his advisers are becoming increasingly aware of the sentiment in the house and are preparing to carry out the rest of their program, if possible, with less stringent methods.

Special Rules Used.

The record of the bills which have thus far passed the house shows that only two—the home mortgage refinancing measure and the half billion dollar relief bill—have been brought in for consideration without a special rule. They were amended over the protests of house leaders in several relatively important particulars.

The banking bill was passed on the first day of the session under a suspension of the rules which made amendment impossible. The economy bill went through several days later under a special rule. The beer bill was passed under a unanimous consent request that precluded all amendment. Farm relief and farm mortgage legislation went through under special rules, as did the arms embargo resolution, the Muscle Shoals bill, the inflation rider to the farm bill, and the securities bill.

Forced to Special Rule.

The reforestation bill started without a rule, but a Republican point of order against it—so well taken that a Democratic chair was left no alternative but to unhold it—forced the majority leaders to recess for fifteen minutes and bring in the customary special rule in order to get the bill through the house.

Among the few Democrats willing to be quoted regarding the gag procedure followed this session was Representative Edward J. Kelly of Illinois, who has voted on several occasions against administration bills solely, he says, as a protest against such tactics.

"I believe," said Mr. Kelly, "that no member of the house has a right voluntarily to relinquish his prerogatives as a legislator. While I am in accord with the President's wishes and willing to be one instrument in helping him break the depression, I feel that every member of congress has a responsibility placed upon him by his constituents. I am reluctant to relinquish that responsibility."

Representative Harry P. Beam, another Illinois Democrat, declared he too felt a certain reluctance to abdicate his rights as a member of congress, but said he was willing to acquiesce temporarily to the administration demands if that would aid materially in the recovery of the country. Nevertheless, he said, the gag procedure should be dispensed with as soon as possible.

Representative Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.] asserted that not even in war time has such far reaching legislation been crammed through the house under ironclad rules.

Plan Two Federal Budgets, One Balanced and Other Not

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 7. — [Special.] — President Roosevelt probably will complete the balancing of the budget for the coming fiscal year by removing public works expenditures from the ordinary budget and setting them up in a separate account.

High administration officials virtually admitted that this device of a double budget, one balanced and the other almost entirely outgo, was going to be resorted to.

When the step is taken there will be no attempt to juggle figures or conceal the fact from the public, it was indicated. The administration intends to point out plainly that one budget, the ordinary one to which the government can return after the emergency is balanced and that the special budget is not.

Plan Decided Upon.

Segregation of public works expenditures had already been decided upon some days ago when the President announced that the budget for the coming year was all but balanced on paper. He said that expenditures had been cut to 2 billion 320 million dollars, but did not announce any specific reductions except that in veterans' benefits. Elimination of public works costs is now understood to have been one of the means used in cutting the expenditure figure so low and in achieving the virtual balancing of the ordinary budget.

Special relief outlays, largely in the form of increased public roads, rivers, and harbors and public building work have been one of the major causes for the huge deficits of the last two fiscal years. In order to eliminate them from the budget balancing problem and yet not reduce work relief, the administration has decided upon setting up a special budget.

One All Outgo.

Actual drawing up of another budget might be avoided by financing the public works through the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Expenditures of the corporation already are excluded from the budget, but if this course is followed the administration will openly admit that in essence it means two budgets, one balanced and the other not.

Although the public works relief budget will be lopsided with enormous expenditures and virtually no income, adequate provisions will be made to retire indebtedness which necessarily must be incurred in order to finance the new budget. Some sort of sinking funds provisions will be established but whether they will be fulfilled out of ordinary tax receipts was not revealed.

Save on Veterans.

Much of the mystery still surrounding the supplementary budget and its sinking fund provisions will be cleared up when the President sends his public works bill to congress. Such action is expected soon.

Not all public works projects now under way will reappear in the new special budget. No official statement could be obtained on which will be eliminated, but one obvious field for economizing would be in building of veterans' hospitals now that the scope of veterans' benefits has been reduced.

PARESIS SERUM MADE OF GLANDS OF MOSQUITOES

Washington, D. C., May 7.—(AP)—A surgical operation on mosquitoes, so delicate it must be performed under the microscope, is the latest step in treatment of paresis.

The mosquito operation, announced today by the United States public health service, provides an easier method of innoculating paresis sufferers with malaria, a treatment used successfully for years for that form of insanity.

Formerly, paresis patients were bitten by malarial mosquitoes, the malaria acting on a blood disease that causes paresis. Statistics show that method cured as high as 35 per cent of the cases treated in time.

The operation on the mosquitoes consists of removing their salivary glands, which are so small they cannot be seen until magnified at least 20 times. The malaria germs are carried by the mosquitoes in those glands, and surgeons can use the gland contents to give paresis patients "artificial mosquito bites."

The serum produced from one mosquito is called sufficient for 12 paresis patients. Because the germs must stay alive in the serum, no preservatives can be used. It keeps, however, at 40 to 50 degrees Fahrenheit, allowing its shipment all over the United States.

SCHOOL BOARD TO HEAR ECONOMY REPORTS TODAY

The board of education will meet this afternoon to hear reports from department heads on the 16 point economy plan proposed by President Orville J. Taylor. The program, among other things, contemplates closing the schools two weeks earlier this spring and opening them two weeks later in the fall.

Approval of the transfer of $750,000 received from the state distributive school fund to the education fund, so that it can be used for pay roll purposes, is expected at the meeting. With this sum and other funds from the sale of tax warrants the board hopes to pay last September's salaries to school employes this week.

6,000 PEASANTS VISIT POPE PIUS, BRINGING GIFTS

VATICAN CITY, May 7.—(AP)—Live sheep, chickens, rabbits, pigeons, and a mass of vegetables and fruits were presented Pope Pius today by 6,000 peasants of the Roman countryside who filed before the Reggia hall throne on a Holy year visit.

One peasant gave the pope a large bunch of onions, explaining that he had nothing better.

The parade before the throne lasted two hours, each visitor bringing a gift. Thereafter the peasants assembled in the San Damaso courtyard. His holiness, standing on a balcony, thanked them and urged them to raise abundant crops for mankind.

COMPLETE GIANT X-RAY UNIT FOR CANCER CONTROL

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Facilities for the control and treatment of cancer in Chicago have just been augmented by the completion at Mercy hospital of an X-ray machine and tube which are said to be the most powerful ever put to practical use. Dedication of the new hospital unit on Thursday night will be attended by W. D. Coolidge of Schenectady, N. Y., the designer, and various local and visiting medical authorities.

Formal opening of the unit will constitute an event of interest in the medical world. Its significance lies in the fact that while X-rays have been used in the place of radium emanations in the treatment of cancer cases, no apparatus has been built that would provide so tremendous a capacity. Because of the cost of the radium element, the scientific world has been seeking a method of obtaining similar results at less expense.

X-Ray Tube 14 Feet Long.

The giant tube of the Mercy hospital institute of radiation therapy is 14 feet long. The electrical apparatus which energizes it was built and installed by the General Electric X-Ray Corporation of Chicago, whose engineers collaborated with Dr. Herbert Schmitz, director of the institute. Built to operate continuously at its conservatively rated potential of 800,000 volts and 10 milliamperes, it exceeds by 100,000 the working voltage of any other installation known to be in regular operation.

Radiation from the apparatus, it is estimated, will be equal in curative power to that obtainable from $75,000,000 worth of radium at current prices. An additional feature of the X-ray cited by physicians is its ability to treat patients at much shorter intervals than is possible with a radium "bomb," thus handling a much greater annual total of cases at the institute. It is credited with an ultimate current capacity twice that of any other X-ray tube and machine in the world.

Forty Tons of Lead in Walls.

More than 40 tons of lead were used in the walls and floors of the special hospital wing built to house this and other X-ray apparatus. This precaution and numerous others were necessary for the protection of patients and the laboratory workers, and automatic safety devices are prominent throughout the installation. Twenty-two tons of lead line the walls of the white tiled chamber where the patient receives the rays. If the door is accidentally opened while the machine is in use the current is automatically shut off.

On a narrow bed, the patient is wheeled into the X-ray chamber and placed where the rays from the tube will reach the part to be treated. Rubber and metal lined blankets protect the rest of the body. The operator, at a switchboard outside resembling the control unit of a radio station, surveys the patient through a periscope and also converses with him as the predetermined dosage is being measured and administered.

Four to Administer Rays.

A staff of four physicians will administer the treatments, with Dr. Herbert Schmitz as the head. Associated with him will be Dr. Henry Schmitz, Dr. J. F. Lajbef and Dr. F. A. Nelson. All have been especially trained in radiation therapy in this country and abroad.

Dr. Herbert Schmitz, who is also chairman of the tumor clinic at Cook County hospital, and holds the same position in the department of gynecology at Loyola university school of medicine, received the gold medal from the Radiological Society of North America in 1930, for achievements in radiology, together with Dr. Milliken.

BOY, 11, AND MAN ARE DROWNED IN TWO ACCIDENTS

Two drownings were reported in the Chicago vicinity yesterday. Helmuht Albrecht, 11 year old son of John Albrecht, Libertyville farmer, was drowned while fishing from a bridge foundation over the Des Plaines river east of Libertyville. His brother, Hans, 13 years old, was with him. Edward Brennwald, 35 years old, 6144 North Artesian avenue, Chicago, an employé of the telephone company, was drowned when a small boat in which he and a companion, Chester Lingaas, also of Fox Lake, were riding capsized near Point Comfort in Fox lake. Lingaas clung to the boat and was rescued by Fred Bairstow Jr. of Waukegan, who has a boat at Crab Apple island. Brennwald attempted to swim to shore and was drowned.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 7.—Socialists, varying from unexcited Laborites and members of labor unions to hysterical communists, swarmed into Hyde park this afternoon to demonstrate against fascism and capitalism. Thirty leaders of the movement, from George Lansbury, official leader of the Labor party, to Reds just out of jail, addressed a crowd of 100,000.

Extra police were drafted to keep the processions to Hyde park in order. Bands and banners headed the marchers. There was no disorder during the rally. Lansbury led the attack on Hitlerism in the oratory.

"The people who are holding power in Germany today are asking the world to believe it is possible for one nation to put a wall around itself and shut every one else out," he said. "The man who preaches that is either a charlatan or an ignoramus."

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

TRADE EXPERTS AND EXPERT TRADING.

Little or nothing of consequence was given out in Washington regarding the recent conversations with Premier Bennett of Canada. It was known before he arrived that he was coming to discuss trade relations with the United States and that he favored the lowering of the barriers separating the two countries.

Not until Mr. Bennett's return to Ottawa was the substance of the negotiations revealed. Mr. Bennett spoke behind closed doors at a caucus of his Conservative party, but the content of his report has been no secret. The United States, it appears, is willing to make substantial tariff concessions to Canadian lumber and cattle. Canada asked concessions for her dairy industry, but Mr. Bennett was not too hopeful of getting them and still less hopeful of obtaining anything for the Canadian fisheries.

In exchange, Canada is expected to permit the freer entry of our fruits and vegetables and to cease the practice of declaring prohibitive duties over night. The United States also expects concessions to the automotive industry, but their nature has not been stated.

This is a scanty summary and it may be incorrect in its details, but it is all that public opinion in this country has to work on. It suggests that the Canadian negotiators have not received the worst of the bargain by any means. That was to be expected in view of previous Canadian successes in dealings with this country, particularly in the drafting of the St. Lawrence treaty.

The real danger in our negotiations with Canada on any subject is that the Canadians will overreach themselves. It adds nothing to the self-esteem of the American nation of 120 million people to slip a fast one over on a nation less than a tenth of our size; but the reverse of the proposition does not hold. It does gratify Canadians to beat us in a trade and the gratification is not lessened by the traditional dislike of the United States on the part of the descendants of the revolutionary Tories who fled to Canada from the thirteen colonies. That blood is still the dominant social influence in the dominion. Such satisfaction as the Empire Loyalists may derive from a sharp trade will be shared by the Scotch and the French elements in the Canadian population, as canny and careful a group of traders as can be found anywhere.

The true interests of the United States and of Canada, as THE TRIBUNE has often said, lie in reciprocal trade relations. Canada is a natural market for American products and the United States is a natural market for Canadian goods. There is every reason for restoring a much freer flow of commerce over the borders than we now have, but if the concessions are to be as one-sided as they were in the St. Lawrence treaty the outcome will be disadvantageous all around. Ill will rather than trade will be stimulated.

LEGISLATION WILL NOT STOP BOMBING.

Life imprisonment is not an excessive penalty for the crime of bombing and the increase in this offense in recent years justifies amendment of the law to fix such penalty. But the chief reason for the inadequacy of the present penalty is not in the law but in its lack of enforcement. Amending the law will not deter criminals unless the penalty, whatever it may be, reaches the offender.

We make these obvious remarks because there is likelihood in this instance, as so often in the past, that the act of legislation will be taken for the substance of reform when it is but its shadow. Having noted the passing of a law, public opinion assumes that the evil will disappear without more attention. Bombing cannot be checked by a change of words in the statute. It can be not only checked but abolished by thorough, resolute police work, honest and competent prosecution, and faithful judicial administration.

Bombing, as we have pointed out before, is the result of planning and collaboration and its motives are seldom obscure. Punishment therefore is a question of vigorous and thorough action by the authorities. It has not been stopped in this community because there are too many subterranean entanglements in politics and officialdom. The uncertainty of punishment from the many laxities of law enforcement due to improper influences, to perverted sentiment, to incompetence in office, encourages persistent law breaking and cannot be corrected by legislation. The state Supreme court has just sent back to prison criminals freed by judicial action showing little regard for sound considerations of public policy.

The public will favor increasing the penalty for the crime of bombing, but it should not be satisfied with that. It must demand in terms which are not to be evaded the disclosure of the criminals and their actual punishment. Bombing can be and must be stopped.

GREENBACKS FOR PUBLIC WORKS.

When Senator Glass was discussing and opposing his chief's inflation bill he said he might astonish his hearers by admitting that of the three methods covered by the bill he regarded the one authorizing the issue of greenbacks as the least in error and the least dangerous.

The three methods the President is given authority to use permit inflation by the marketing of bonds to release federal reserve currency, the reduction in the gold content of the dollar within 50 per cent of what is now required by law, and the issuance of greenbacks under the law of '62.

Mr. Glass prefers the third method, although he distrusts them all. When Mr. Roosevelt comes to make a decision Mr. Glass' opinions will be worth consideration. The government resorted to greenbacks in the second year of the civil war, seeking in the first instance to get some money to pay the soldiers. There were many other needs, but it was first proposed that the soldiers should get an unsecured paper currency and suffer whatever consequences came from its depreciation. An indignant senator who said he would just as soon have on his conscience an issue of wooden cannon to them as an issue of such money expressed the sentiment which resulted in the greenbacks being made legal tender for all financial purposes and debt payments except customs duties. They also, for the first two years of issue, were convertible into government bonds requiring interest payments in specie.

The greenbacks depreciated, but there were reasons which are not now present. In the first place the very existence of the Union was in jeopardy. Although its military success can now be seen as inevitable, some conspicuous and theatrical reverses impaired confidence. There was an international ill will directed against the north and fearful citizens could not predict the outcome of it. There were political uncertainties which boded ill for the government under which the north was fighting the war. Its own determination of purpose was questioned at times. Moreover, the redemption feature had to be canceled.

These perilous conditions do not prevail now. There are many doubts, but they are not the panicky ones, bad as they are, of '61 to '65. It is to be carefully considered if the issuance of a redeemable federal currency to be paid out on projects contemplated in the emergency relief program be not the simplest and most honest method of extraordinary government financial operation. It is possible that this method will entail the least interference with normal financing, require the least imposition upon already staggered taxpayers, and be the simplest method of converting the unusual expenses of the United States into a public debt spread over a period within which it may be possible to retire it.

Such men as Mr. Glass have been too much discarded from the councils of the government. Even if they object in principle, they might, when they have been defeated there, still be of great benefit to the country if they were consulted as to method.

FOOTNOTE ON MOTOR REGISTRATIONS.

It is gratifying to learn that in April this year 150 more automobiles were registered in Illinois than in April a year ago. The geographical distribution of the new cars is not so gratifying. The Cook county registrations fell off by 238, while the downstate registrations increased by 388. The difference in trend may be accounted for in some part by different reporting practices, but even allowing for that factor the evidence seems to point to the conclusion that automobile ownership is becoming less attractive to Chicagoans than it formerly was.

This is a conclusion which has been foreseen and predicted as the consequence of the state's road building policies and its taxation of automobile owners. Nearly half the automobiles in Illinois are owned in Cook county and considerably more than half the motor taxes are paid in the same area. In spite of the congestion of traffic in the county and in spite of the contributions of the county's motorists almost nothing has been spent by the state in improving road facilities within the county, and it is only in recent months that so much as a dollar has been made available from state funds for improving Chicago's streets.

Chicago needs elevated highways westward which will expedite traffic through the city. When such highways are built the use of automobiles in Chicago can be expected to increase. An increase in revenue from license fees and gasoline taxes will follow. Unless such grade separations are provided the reductions in the registrations from Chicago may continue. In the end even the downstate squires will suffer from their greediness, for funds will be lacking to extend the road system downstate and maintain the existing mileage.

Editorial of the Day

MR. BINGHAM IN ENGLAND.

[Harold Laski in the London Daily Herald.]

The United States government has always declined to regard its main diplomatic positions as the ultimate reward of a professional service. Whereas it has been our own practice only rarely to admit the outsider like Lord Bryce to this type of post, the American tradition is the very different one of thinking of a great embassy as the natural reward of political service.

Sometimes, as with Mr. Mellon, it is a way of shelving a politician whose value to his party has become a matter of doubt. More often, as with the late Col. Harvey, it is a way of recognizing services for which it might otherwise be difficult to pay.

Judge Bingham's appointment is of the latter kind. A native of Kentucky, he is rich, he owns newspapers, and he has always been a Democrat.

He is of an eminently social disposition, and he is one of those cosmopolitan Americans not less at home on the grouse moors of Scotland or at the regatta at Cowes than at Palm Beach, Fla., or Newport, R. I.

He knows and loves every inch of Mayfair, with which he equates the English tradition. The London season will find in him an eminent contributor to those features which, as the fashionable papers say, give it a title to brilliance. He will enable our aristocracy to feel that the best Americans are really like themselves.

They share the same tastes, they have the same ambitions, they dream the same dreams. Within a square mile of Marble Arch Mr. Bingham will, I think, make the American embassy very popular while he is its chief incumbent.

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THEY SAY that stocks go up, and so does the value of the British pound, because the dollar keeps getting cheaper. It may be cheaper for some people, but it still costs us one hundred cents to get one, just like it did before they inflated the darned thing.

IT'S A GREAT RELIEF to find we didn't eat it, for it now appears that Colgate university's dinosaur egg was saved from the thieves who tried to kidnap it and is back in the museum case. Yet when we paid for an omelette the other day we were certain we had dined off that dinosaur egg.

EVANSTON has vetoed the red rose as its insignia as being too amorous. And, knowing the fiery zeal of the Evanston police, we hurriedly grabbed the red roses we were carrying through that very austere city yesterday and, hurling them on the seat of the car, we sat on 'em. How true it is, as Cleopatra casually remarked to Marc Antony, that every rose has its thorn. And some roses seem to have a couple of dozen.

GATES OF CHANGE.

(A dialogue with death.)

Poet.
So you are that eternity
That stands upon the edge of life
With goblet wrought of alchemy
And filled with liquids of fermenting time?
I see your chalice move perpetually
Between twin poles of hand and lip.

Death.
I am the decimal,
The fraction,
And the whole.

Poet.
Divide you then the world of thought
That lives between the hemispheres of night and day?

Death.
I am forever day.
I live in deep recesses of the tortured mind,
Afraid of chaos and in love with that Sophisticated plan, philosophy.
I am the dark, diurnal one
While men robed like to me, in black,
Sing yet of immortality
Of their eternal home above—
My hand touches the stone whereon they stand . . .
I breathe upon the ivy of the outer wall.

Poet.
And do you sing? Do you acclaim
Your majesty through harmonies?

Death.
My majesty is but a great simplicity,
My throne, the constant "is-ness" of The Wheel,
Involuntary going forth
Through knowledge of myself
From state to state . . . forever going forth.

Poet.
What of the fluid in your cup?
And from what country does it flow?

Death.
The country, Azazel; the fountain, mind.

Poet.
Then all things are in you and you in all?
You are not, then, a hidden mystery?

Death.
A mystery I am, until
The reason shall accept me as a fact
Of unplanned Being.

If Being is the ultimate—
Continual Being, Time, . . .
Then I am all in all,
And am eternity.

The hand that lifts the glass I hold
Must place it somewhere, lest it break
Upon the silent ground.
Were I, whose other name is Change,
Not versed in laws of harmony
Rhythm would not be positive.

When a soul expands into a higher plane of thought—
I drink;
When he returns—
I pause,
While you, inquisitor,
Pale and afraid,
Withdraw into the Gates of Change.

AND JOE doubts our delectable place because we said there was no bridge playing going on down there. "I have been looking for a place for years," says Joe, "where more than three people can get together without playing bridge." Well, of course, we can't swear there's no bridge in the delectable place, but we didn't see any nor hear shots or the sound of some one throwing a chair at his partner for trumping his ace. There's something so soothing and quiet down in the delectable place that bridge players probably just give it a dirty look and keep going.

IF THE FARMERS are going to have that strike May 13 might we not—that is to say—and, of course, we are bitterly opposed to hoarding—and naturally we don't want to be guilty of treason or anything like that—but under the circumstances—that is to say—would we be doing any great public wrong if we hoarded just a couple of eggs until after May 13? And would it be wrong if we took up a board in the kitchen and hid away three or four cans of sausage and a peck of potatoes?

EARLY CATARACT.

FOR advanced cataract there is no treatment except operation by one of the well-known methods. The rule is to have the eyes operated on separately. One of the eyes is selected for the first operation. The peculiarities of the patient, his eyes, and his cataracts are learned during this operation. But the principal advantage of operating on only one eye at a sitting is the lessened danger of total blindness, for there is a considerable percentage of untoward results in the wake of cataract extraction, in spite of all precautions.

For very early cataract there is some possibility of cure, and an even greater chance that the progress of the disorder can be stopped or will stop spontaneously. The greatest need there is in this field just now is for a method of diagnosing cataract when the first lines of opacity are appearing. It would be fairer to say the great need is for popularization of the symptoms which cause suspicion of very early cataract, since there are fairly satisfactory diagnostic methods once the search is begun in earnest.

Among the curative methods which are useful in clearing up a beginning cataract, first place goes to the discovery of a cataract causing organic disease and giving proper attention to that. There are several of these. One is diabetes and, while we cannot cure this malady, we can hold it in check sufficiently to increase the patient's comfort and efficiency and clear up the eye conditions that so often go with it. Infections of the nose, sinuses, teeth, and other head structures are another group of causes of cataract that should be at least searched for.

There are cases of cataract that are benefited by iodide of potash and other and more direct anti-syphilitic treatment. There are certain other medicines of ordinary varieties that are used by some physicians for the treatment of early cataract.

It has long been known that deficiency of vitamin A causes ulcers in the eyes, a condition known as xerophthalmia, and further, that the disorder was cured by a diet rich in this vitamin. Just now this vitamin holds the spotlight. It is being discovered to have far reaching relations.

Dr. T. H. Shastid thinks that deficiency of it is one cause of cataract. Based on this, he treats early cataracts with carotin, or some other preparation rich in vitamin A. There are several of these carotin preparations from which to choose.

In former days we had to give cod liver oil or had to eat carrots to get it in abundance. The objection to cod liver oil is that it contains vitamin D in even greater potency, and Dr. Shastid holds that taking D has some tendency to cause cataract in old people.

Another curative procedure is to protect the eyes against glare, heat, and dust.

FEEDING IN ILLNESS.

T. P. R. writes: 1. Is not feeding a very important thing in the case of a severe illness?

2. It has seemed to be very unwise to give a sick person solid food while he is still sick.

3. I lost an infant son. At about 2 years old he became ill with diarrhea. Milk apparently did not agree with him. He was allowed to eat a box of crackers and meningitis resulted.

REPLY.

1. It is.

2. What is best for one case may not be for another. I am sure the acutely sick are overfed. Most of them would stand a better chance if they were fed only very simple foods and not much of these. This statement does not hold true of chronic illness. However, some men need more food than others.

3. You are in error in attributing meningitis to eating crackers. If he had that disease it was due to something other than eating crackers.

CRACKED THUMBS.

A. C. L. writes: Tell S. T. S. to stick his cracked thumbs in his mouth and massage the cracks thoroughly with saliva after each washing of the hands. The cracks will soon close up and heal. Winter cracked thumbs had been an unwelcome visitor with me for years until this season, when I discovered this simple and effective remedy.

Mrs. D. C. writes: I also had cracked and bleeding finger tips. Greazing did no good. I finally turned on the cold water, held my finger tips up under the downpouring water. It was painful but it cured the bleeding. For ten years now I have not had cracked finger tips and I wash in cold water.

NO VIOLATION FOUND.

Chicago, May 5.—[Friend of the People.]—I live on a street that has strict zoning regulations and all buildings are set back a certain distance, but at the end of the block a right angle street for business purposes appears. In the rear of the corner store a coal shed has been erected. This shed was built out beyond the zone line and is entirely blocking a private alley. R. L. Y.

An inspection of the premises has been made, the inspector reporting that the corner in question is zoned for commercial purposes, which zone extends one hundred and twenty-five (125) feet northward from 65th street. The shed referred to measures six (6) feet by eight (8) feet and is used for storage. There is no violation of the ordinances.

Commissioner of Buildings.

ENFORCING JUDGMENT.

Chicago, April 30.—Legal Friend of the People.]—1. After due court trial I have been awarded a judgment note against a certain individual. I find, however, great difficulty in locating this party or any assets belonging to him. 2. What procedure would you advise to enforce collection? S. L. B.

1. We assume that you mean that you have been awarded a judgment, which is a different thing from a judgment note.

2. Follow up clews in your possession. If you have employed an attorney, he is in a better position to advise you than we are.

RIVER FRONTAGE.

Moline, Ill., April 30.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I own 250 feet of river frontage on the Rock river and pay taxes to the low water mark. This property is fenced. Rock river at this point is still water navigation and under the jurisdiction of the federal government. 1. Can I stop trespassing along my river bank? 2. How many signs would be needed, if any? L. V.

1. Yes, unless an adverse easement has been asserted for over twenty years.

2. We would suggest a sign at each entrance to your property.

40 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 8, 1893.

CHICAGO.—The people asked for bread yesterday and a stone was given them. Sixty thousand men and women knocked at the doors of the World's Fair, but the doors were closed. The serene beauty of the White City, topped by blue Italian skies, preached its sermon to empty pews. Inside Jackson park only the sea gulls broke the Sabbath. Columbian guards were on duty, and in some of the buildings workmen were busy putting exhibits into place. But the people for whom the Fair was built were without. Around the turnstile gates the crowd was thickest and there got a distant vision of the beauties within. At those points the guards, fearful of their inability to withstand the pressure, sent a requisition for extra policemen and an added force was placed there.

Dr. H. B. Wiborg, medical inspector of the department of health, paid an early morning visit yesterday to the World's Fair grounds, where officials inspected the Turks who had just arrived from the east. One of their party, Abraham Gahoudi, died in New York on May 6. It was reported at the time that the dead man showed symptoms of cholera. Dr. Wiborg said last evening that there was not the slightest trace of cholera in the party.

Dahomans, Tunisians, Algerians, Arabs, and Turks gazed hopelessly but with longing eyes on crowds of persons who besieged the gates at the entrance to Midway plaisance yesterday. They knew there was a whole lot of good money in the party. It was discouraging for the foreigners, and indeed there was quite a Babel of profanity on account of the closed gates. Many favorite gods were adjured by the faithful in the interest of future Sunday opening.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 8, 1917.

ARCOLA, Ill.—The members of the French commission to America were shaken up tonight when three cars in their special train were derailed near this town while en route from Springfield to Terre Haute, Ind. No one in the party was injured, but the escape from a disaster was a lucky one. Field Marshal Joffre, M. Viviani, and the other members of the party were at dinner. Only the foretrucks of the diner went off the track, but the result was almost desolative to the interior. The immediate cause of the accident is believed to have been a broken tie, which sent the tender trucks off the track.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The first big scandal of the war was exposed yesterday. As a result of the failure to carry out preparations authorized by congress the war department is unable to arm the new national army of 1,200,000 men with the Springfield rifle, the standard of the service. It would take a year to build the machinery necessary to the manufacture of enough Springfields to arm the troops the United States will raise for the war with Germany. In order to put a gun into the hands of every recruit who will be in the training camps by next September it will be necessary to purchase 500,000 Enfield rifles, the arm of the British troops which is being manufactured in this country in large quantities. The English rifle is considered far inferior to the Springfield. This exposure of the failure of the war department was made in the house, which defied censorship on the ground that the American people should be acquainted with conditions well known to the enemy.

MORALE IN THE SCHOOLS.

Chicago, May 3.—If you wish to aid the school situation you could succeed by refraining from publishing tentative closing dates for the school system. The constant references to early closing are preventing the students from concentrating on their work. Their nerves are jangled and their ability to unify with their teachers is being reduced. Splendid students are becoming careless and refractory. This makes it much harder for the faculty.

The teachers are already engulfed by the contempt of some laboring men for working for nothing; secondly, the scorn of a vast per cent of the populace, and thirdly, by the ridicule of the recipients of relief, who assume that we are feeble-minded. Is it too much to ask for them the best working conditions under this stress and strain period?

AGNES MARNELL,
Roosevelt High School.

WHO CLOSED THE BANKS?

Chicago, May 5.—In today's Voice of the People Mr. E. L. Estes writes regarding the achievement of Roosevelt so far, and mentions the closing of the banks. Mr. Estes is either wholly ignorant of the bank situation or prejudiced. If Mr. Estes will take time to investigate he will find that on March 2 and March 3 state bank moratoriums closed all banks in 32 states. This was before Roosevelt was in office. Therefore it was only natural that all other banks had to be closed.

During the four year period previous to March 4 the average bank closings in the United States were 51 per week. Since the national bank moratorium has been lifted 12,000 banks reopened under license of the present government, and not a single bank has closed which was reopened. This not only proves that the banking situation is now fully in hand, but it also gives us further proof of the confidence of the American public in the banks under the present government regulation.

It is high time that Mr. Estes and his friends throw away their hammers and get a horn. The President is representing 90 per cent of the American public. HARRY RUPPEL.

UNLICENSED BEER SELLERS.

Chicago, May 1.—Attention is respectfully called to the practice of certain breweries or their agents of selling and distributing legal beer to beer flats and unlicensed restaurants and sandwich shops.

The writer is paying the following: Government license, $20; state license, $50; city license, $300, and in addition absorbs the 3 per cent sales tax in order to lawfully dispense this beverage. I desire to continue the handling of beer, but find it hardly possible to compete with the nonlicensed dispensaries. It would not only be possible but comparatively easy for the brewer or the distributor to properly supervise this matter, thereby protecting their own interest for lawful dispensing of their product. This would be of more value than an occasional arrest of a violator of the law. F. K.

A REPLY TO SENATOR INGRAM.

Des Moines, Ia., May 4.—THE TRIBUNE in the issue of April 27, in presenting the story of the small loans debate in the Wisconsin senate, quoted the statement of Senator Ingram concerning this organization.

For your information we recite below a part of the text of our letter of April 28 to Senator Ingram refuting these charges:

"We regret that any conscientious representative of the people should allow himself to become the tool of the 42 per cent loan sharks and take advantage of his senatorial immunity to malign those whose sole endeavor is conscientiously dedicated to 'fair and honest legislation' for the weak and oppressed.

"We refer to the slanderous statement which you are alleged to have made on the floor of the senate Wednesday during the debate on the Hunt bill, wherein you stated, among other things, that the Citizens Protective league of Des Moines, Ia., favored repeal of the small loans act and was in league with that breed of loan sharks who charge even more than 42 per cent.

"That statement is absolutely unfounded, unwarranted and a malicious falsehood. This organization has consistently advocated definitely setting the small loan rate at 13 per cent per year. The recent recommendation of Wisconsin Banking Commissioner Kingston of an 18 per cent rate bespeaks the undebatable merit of our contention. We have never advocated repeal of the small loans act. That statement is but the mouthings of the loan shark combine.

"The favorite tactics of the loan companies, in every state where honest legislators have sought to reduce this usury to a more humane figure, is to defame, malign and slander every one who dares to raise his voice in support of the measure; all to the end that those persons are placed on trial to detract the attention of the legislature from the main issue. The result is, nothing is accomplished to relieve the suffering victims. Many able legislators have thus unwittingly been made the mouthpieces of the loan sharks."

DAYLIGHT SAVING AND THE CHILDREN.

Chicago, May 4.—I agree with Mrs. D. Brown that it isn't necessary to extend the daylight saving time, but please don't cut it any shorter, either. It is true that those who are out of work do not need the extra daylight, but there are still thousands who are employed who do need it, and the extra hour of sunlight is a godsend to them.

As for getting the children to bed when it is light, that is a matter of training. When we were children at home we always went to bed when it was daylight. My own child fussed a bit the first day the new time was put into effect, but I just let her fuss and, on finding she didn't get her own way, she has caused no more trouble at all. It's just a matter of parents ruling children instead of children ruling parents.

LINDY AND WIFE SAFE IN TEXAS AS FRIENDS WORRY

Land in Sandstorm and Sleep in Plane.

Kansas City, Mo., May 7.—(AP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh spent last night on the plains of the Texas panhandle in their plane while widespread fears were raised for their safety. Lindbergh said a sandstorm forced him to land.

The couple took off from their isolated landing place this morning and arrived in Kansas City at 12:45 p. m., central standard time, en route to Washington, D. C., from California.

Their arrival brought relief to friends and airmen, who had started a search and kept a night long vigil at their airfields through the southwest.

Says He's Sorry.

"I'm sorry," Lindbergh said. "People shouldn't worry. It's liable to happen any time in the western country."

After their plane was refueled here, the Lindberghs departed for the east at 2:08 p. m. and reached Columbus, O., at 8:32 o'clock, eastern time, after a 20 minute stop at St. Louis.

Of the sandstorms of the southwest, he said:

"It's better to sit down than go through them."

He said the storm struck them two hours after they had headed his red and black monoplane eastward from Albuquerque, N. M., at 3:34 p. m., mountain standard time, yesterday in continuation of the flight from Glendale, Cal., to the national capital.

The two were forced down "somewhere north of Amarillo."

"We passed a very comfortable night," said the flyer's wife.

Spend Night in Plane.

The plane was equipped for sleeping and they had aboard a supply of food sufficiently to last thirty days.

The sleeping equipment included a mattress. This was unfolded and placed in the fuselage, the fuselage covering closed, and all was snug for the night. Equipment in the plane is so arranged there is plenty of room for the improvised bed.

Supper and breakfast were eaten at the grounded plane.

With the storm subsiding the couple took off about 9:30 a. m. central standard time, for Kansas City, unaware that at least six planes were searching for them.

Lindbergh Will Testify.

Washington, D. C., May 7.—(AP)—While Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh sped by air toward the national capital, after a night aground in a Texas Panhandle sandstorm, the District of Columbia Supreme court prepared to hear from the flyer's own lips the details of the kidnaping and murder of his first son.

Lindbergh has agreed to appear as a government witness in the trial of Gaston B. Means and Norman T. Whitaker on an indictment charging them with conspiring to seal $35,000 from Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, estranged wife of the former publisher of the Washington Post. The pair is charged with false representation that they could locate the child.

The trial is scheduled to open tomorrow morning before Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue. Unless a jury is selected with unexpected speed it is unlikely that Lindbergh will testify before Tuesday.

[illegible], a former department of justice agent, already has been convicted and sentenced to serve 15 years in the penitentiary on charges of defrauding Mrs. McLean of $104,000 as a result of his activities in the Lindbergh case.

At the time of the previous trial Whitaker had not been apprehended.

2 LITHUANIAN FLYERS HASTEN TO THEIR FEAST

New York, May 7.—[Special.]—Capt. Stephen Darius and Stanley Girenas, two Lithuanian fliers who plan to fly from Floyd Bennett field to Kaunas, Lithuania, on May 20, the anniversary of the Lindbergh flight to Paris, landed early tonight at Newark airport from Chicago. They were several hours overdue. They said they had been delayed by fog and a balky compass. Quietly they turned their trans-Atlantic equipped Ballanca monoplane over to the care of mechanics and proceeded to Brooklyn by bus and subway.

Their first stop was a candy store in Williamsburg. The proprietress, a compatriot of theirs, said more than 2,000 members of various Lithuanian organizations were awaiting them at Floyd Bennett field and thousands of others were holding a banquet in their honor in Maspeth, Queens.

Col. Turner Ends Attempt to Set New Speed Record

Columbia, Mo., May 7.—(AP)—Col. Roscoe Turner abandoned his attempt to break the transcontinental speed record and landed here at 2:10 p. m. [central standard time] today after failing to get around a severe windstorm.

Col. Turner left Los Angeles at 5:40 a. m. [Pacific standard time], hoping to lower the time of 10 hours 19 minutes for the west-east flight held by Jimmy Haizlip.

Col. Turner said he decided to land to save his ship from unnecessary strain.

MISS EARHART RESIGNS FROM AVIATION BODY

Differs with Leaders on Policy, She Says.

New York, May 7.—[Special.]—Miss Amelia Earhart, transoceanic flyer and holder of the women's transcontinental record, announced today that she had resigned as vice president of the National Aeronautical association, of which former Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut is president. Miss Earhart not only resigned from active participation in the affairs of the association, among them her membership in its contest committee, but turned in her membership card also.

"Finding myself at variance with the views of those who dominate the organization, I feel that it is for the best interests of all concerned that I resign," she said.

Opposes Magazine Plan.

Specifically, Miss Earhart opposed the association's plan to turn its monthly magazine over to a private agency, to be operated for the agency's profit, in competition with private aeronautical publishing enterprises. She also is opposed to the organization's plans for a membership campaign, asserting that in her belief it can best serve its purpose by remaining a "skeleton." In this way, said the flyer, it would be possible to cut expenses and pass on savings to aid meets and record contests in the way of lower sanction fees.

The N. A. A. has as its chief function the authentication of flying records made in this country to its parent organization, the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, which is the court of last resort for approval of world records and record attempts.

Refuse Meet Sanction.

The organization and its officers have recently come in for attacks because of refusal to sanction a four day air meet in Chicago sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, for the first four days in July. In this connection pilots are complaining because the N. A. A. has broadcast letters warning that participation in any unsanctioned meets will result in suspension for a period of one year from flying in sanctioned meets.

Miss Earhart feels "increasingly," she wrote in her letter made public today, that "the association has been too inclined to undertake nonessential promotional work."

Explains Her Position.

She wrote further: "I feel that efforts for the enlargement of the N. A. A. should be abandoned and the organization maintained, for the present at least, chiefly as a skeleton, cooperating with the established outside agencies. Economies in operation can be passed on to those conducting air meets, contests, etc., in lowering the sanction fees, so desirable just now."

Taxicab Driver Is Slain in Battle with Police

George Buckman, 33 years old, 1349 South Springfield avenue, a Yellow taxicab driver, was fatally wounded yesterday during a fight with police in an apartment at 4723 Prairie avenue. Residents there called the police complaining of a disturbance. A squad found Buckman intoxicated. When Policeman Joseph Thurston attempted to arrest him, Buckman fought back. The policeman drew his revolver and during the struggle it was discharged. Buckman was shot in the abdomen. He died in the Chicago hospital.

15,000 ATTEND FINAL EVENTS OF AIR RACES AT FORT WORTH, TEX.

Fort Worth, Tex., May 7.—[Special.]—The opening show of the season for the American Air race circuit closed today as the outstanding aviation event ever staged in the southwest. The spectacular program of aerobatics and high speed racing attracted more than 15,000 to the airport. Another 10,000 were tied up in a traffic jam which blocked the roads to the airport for eight miles.

Maj. R. W. Schroeder, president of the American Air Race association, announced that the show was a financial success. From estimates that were available tonight, he said the total attendance for the three days of the show was more than 30,000. H. V. Hough, treasurer of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, which sponsored the show, said he was highly pleased with the performances. He invited Maj. Schroeder to open the circuit in Fort Worth again next year.

The show was staged without an accident, except a sprained ankle suffered by Clem Sohn, parachute jumper, in landing in a high wind on Saturday.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Walter Hampden, sole survivor of the great race of romantic actors, began a week's engagement at the Grand Opera house last night in "Caponsacchi," a contemporary distillation of Robert Browning's exceedingly long poem called "The Ring and the Book." He stands alone on the American stage as a resolute practitioner of abandoned arts. His is the only voice that now caresses the rhythms of blank verse; the only arm now brave enough to use the gestures of romance. He is the Casabianca of our native actors; he holds a place whence all but him have fled.

The play that Mr. Hampden has chosen [with "Hamlet"] as the vehicle of his current tour is chiefly impressive because of its literary background. It tells the story of "The Ring and the Book" lucidly, which is no mean achievement, for that opus is the very heart of darkness in the thorny jungle of Browning's works. It also clarifies, for the playgoer's ear, the difficult and awkward blank verse that Browning fondly believed was dramatic.

Viewed on its surface, however, "Caponsacchi" is a play that carries no special stimulation. It is a melodrama in verse that might easily have been written in Browning's own period by any casual concocter of cape and sword shows. It has all the paraphernalia, disguises, and attitudes that have placed the romantic dramas of the early Victorian era at the mercy of the modern burlesquer.

The fact that its style is an alloy of Browning's phases with the adapter's, strictly in the manner of the great Victorian, is of interest to students of literature. But Browning, apparently, had no ear; his verse is probably the worst that was ever written for stage purposes, being full of bumps, thuds, and the general effect of a flat tire on cobble stones; and Mr. Hampden, although a fine reader, cannot make these speeches sing.

The scene is the Italy of opera librettos; the time 1698. Guido, as black a villain as ever said "Curses!" wants to kill his sweet child-wife, Pompilia, in order to inherit her estate. Canon Caponsacchi, with a knightly heart under his cassock, falls platonically in love with Pompilia and strives gallantly to save her. Guido plots to catch them in a compromising situation by planting more "papers" than any melodrama ever used. Failing, he finally falls upon Pompilia, who has fled to her parents, and butchers the entire family. His defense is that of the injured husband, and the case becomes a scandal in which the church takes a hand.

The three acts form a visualized trial scene, representing Caponsacchi's statement of the tangled affair before a papal court. Pope Innocent XII. hears the testimony, hidden behind a curtain, and in the epilogue he appears to give judgment. Guido is sentenced to death; Caponsacchi is praised according to his evident merits.

Caponsacchi appears as a somber priest on trial in the prologue, and then, as the story develops, as a mock-mountebank at carnival time, in the robe of an amiable canon and the mundane costume of a graceful cavalier. In the latter disguise he engages in the sword play that is customary in romantic drama, and disarms the bloodthirsty Guido, reputed to be a deadly duelist, with consummate ease. In other words, the rôle is one in which Mr. Hampden goes through the standard paces of romance.

Mr. Hampden's use of his comic voice, which is his "Cyrano" voice—nasal and brittle—in many of the passages does not serve the play or the character well, in my opinion. This "warrior priest" of Browning's story was too sincere a fellow, I feel, to go around talking in two voices, one of them of Punch and Judy timbre. Mr. Hampden's natural voice is admirable, and I prefer it to his comic squeak.

Good Morning!

Again the movies prove their right to a place in the Parade of Progress. Again they demonstrate their value as evangels, educators, inspirers. "Looking Forward"—like "Gabriel Over the White House"—is a call to the colors of the New Courage.

There is such a "lift," such a brave, full throated lift to this picture adapted from C. L. Anthony's play and wearing proudly its title, borrowed from President Roosevelt's book! Acknowledging the burdens that weigh heavily on the shoulders of the older generation, the film shows Modern Youth gallant, eager, and surprisingly capable of assuming the load. Apparently all that's been the matter with our children is that they've been given no jobs to do. No necessary jobs!

"Run along and play—and for land's sake don't get into any more mischief than you can help!" has been the harried attitude of the elders. Pushed to one side the kids HAVE run and played—and got into mischief; but, underneath their hard, frivolous young exteriors has been a yen to be wanted—needed.

Minds to think with, hearts to feel with; and a driving enthusiasm that only needs a shining goal to bring it into action, have our boys and girls—and in "Looking Forward" they get their chance. Swell!

The tale concerns THE concerns of two men and their families. One—the owner of a London department store—finds himself, after years of prosperous and honorable service, faced with bankruptcy. This is Mr. Service Sr. The other man is Benton, a clerk grown old in the employ of Service. The depression which causes the failure of the one, results in the dismissal of the other . . .

What happens after these two lamentable events, the picture must show you. It will buoy up your spirits and send you away from the theater humming a little song.

The acting is consistently human and arresting. Never have Lewis Stone or Lionel Barrymore been finer.

A Clothesline Belt Is Latest Style Accent

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Apparently, there is no end to new belt line accents . . . you've no doubt had a grand time cinching a slippery slick patent leather number around your mid-section for quite some time, and thinking you must be fearfully fed up with sleek things, the belt makers have spent hours snapping at anything and everything for this new belt purpose.

Believe it, or doubt it, at your own risk, the latest whimsy is clothesline . . . don't get only excited or cannily decide to fashion your own . . . it takes a cowboy to capably manage a temperamental clothesline, and a mighty knowing belt designer to contrive a thing of rope into a length of snap and smartness for your summer frocks. But such a stunt has been successfully accomplished with the appropriate aid of clinking bits of hardware, buckles, bits, noisy sections of loops, circles, harness snaps and the like.

Another cord that has been resurrected for fashionable spring shoppers is stuff that must have been cotton bathrobe cord in some previous incarnation. You will see belts of this cord in all colors, sometimes in two, three and even more in rows, held together at intervals with string loops. There isn't any reason why every frock you possess can't be cleverly decorated with these inexpensive and very new contrasts.

If the ideas of cord and rope and sections of a clothesline seem a bit too disturbing, the tricky new metal mesh belts and bags to match ought to please . . . you can buy some of the best looking colors in this metal mesh stuff that you have seen in weeks. A particularly lovely shade of apple green, canary yellow and a soft old blue are three unusually rare colors that nearly every shopper has at sometime or another despaired of finding.

Glittering things of frosty silver and old gold mesh metal are effective with either dark or light frocks. And some rather interesting separate collar and cuff sets are also available in this new metal, as well as belts, hat bands and bags.

White belts are legion, and while you feel as though white piqué had the town in siege, these wide waled piqué belts are notably good buys, because they can be used for everything and sent blithely through the soap suds as often as you send your matching gloves or collar and cuffs.

Woven white string belts are something else again, they look surprisingly well with cotton "sheers" as they do with sports costumes, so they too are acceptable as double duty accessories.

The last belts to arrive are color cords that some suspicious soul might well believe were lifted from the chest and shoulders of some much decorated and gold braided general.

Cigaret Girls for Lighthouse Aids' Party

Miss Baker, who made her debut last winter, as did Miss Castle and Miss Brawley, is to be married to Edgar Stanton Jr. next autumn.

Morini Gives Good Concert to Aid Teachers

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Rosalinda Morini, soprano, appeared in a song recital yesterday afternoon for the benefit of the Chicago High School Teachers' association emergency fund. It was a good cause, but Miss Morini has no need to hide her vocal light behind good causes, since she has distinct merits of her own. Among them is a voice of quite unusual brilliancy, range, and flexibility, qualities that put everything in the coloratura category well within her powers.

Naturally she made something of a feature of coloratura songs, singing them with all their glitter, sometimes to the obbligato of Mr. Eck, the Chicago Symphony orchestra flutist, sometimes with merely the piano accompaniment of Isaac Van Grove. But there were other works as well, an ancient and aristocratic Italian work by Stradella, some modern imitative, and still aristocratic, songs by Donaudy; a group of lieder, some Russian, and some English pieces.

A threefold appearance was made at Curtiss hall by Sidney Silber, pianist; Else Harthan Arendt, soprano, and Luella Canterbury, dramatic interpreter. Other musical events made it impossible for me to hear Mrs. Canterbury, who appeared in a musical setting of Wilde's "The Nightingale and the Rose," but Mrs. Arendt sang the Alleluia from Bach's solo cantata with such ability that the audience insisted upon her giving three encores, and Mr. Silber also won the enthusiasm of the public with his interpretation of a Chopin group.

Two choral concerts were likewise presented in the course of the afternoon. Wayne Howorth conducted a singing ensemble, otherwise undescribed, a mixed chorus of sixteen members, explaining in a program note that harmony rather than melody was to prevail in the singing. As such the chorus created some interesting effects. It could have been made even more interesting had Mr. Howorth chosen to go in for the flowing line of counterpoint in addition to the upright chord structure of harmony.

Meanwhile the Rosary College Glee club of women's voices sang at the Chicago Woman's club theater under the direction of Leroy Wetzel. They are skilled and well trained choristers in whom Mr. Wetzel has inculcated the theory and practice of singing with a lovely tone.

At the Goodman, where they do not believe in giving enough light for you to read your program, Diana Huebert and her group gave a dance concert last night. Modern dancing was the keynote of the evening, a form of art which bears about the same relation to classical dancing as Schoenberg in music does to Bach, or at least to Beethoven. In fact, the music was of the present generation.

Miss Huebert appeared mostly in solos, though occasionally with the group of twelve. Here were evolutions, postures, stage pictures, sometimes a bit cryptic, at other times of striking beauty, and generally, whether beautiful or not, effective.

Mundelein at Centenary of Native Parish

New York, May 7. — [Special.] — Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago returned to his native city today to assist at the centennial of the parish in which he was born. He officiated with Cardinal Hayes of New York, when the Roman Catholic church of St. Nicholas, the mother church of German Catholics in America, celebrated the 100th anniversary of its founding. Cardinal Hayes presided at the pontifical mass which was sung by Cardinal Mundelein. As the mass closed, the congregation, which filled the old church to capacity, sang a hymn of praise in German.

Both cardinals spoke at a luncheon after the mass. The two princes of the church were born on the east side. Cardinal Hayes referred to the early school days of his in the De La Salle school of the Christian Brothers in the vicinity of St. Nicholas, where he was a schoolmate of Cardinal Mundelein.

Cardinal Mundelein touched on the golden jubilee of 1883, when he as a ten year old boy and carried the train of the late Bishop Loughlin. He said that his great-grandfather was one of the small group of German Catholics who organized the parish, and referred to the fact that the first twins baptized in the parish bore the name of Mundelein.

"I think that without fear of contradiction I can say that more than any other people who have come here, these early German Catholic settlers are responsible for the splendid Catholic parochial school system in this country," Cardinal Mundelein said.

Cardinal Mundelein appealed for the continued support of the parochial schools. In this connection he stated that when the Germans first came to the United States, "wherever they went they planted the parish school; the fine church could wait, their school came first." He declared that so well has the parochial school system been established that in places where the parochial and state schools function side by side and the state schools are near a breakdown, the other schools are still functioning.

Junior League Will See Preview of Play at Fair Theater Today

"Peter Pan" to Be Given at Enchanted Island After Business Session.

BY JUDITH CASS.

TWO dozen Junior leaguers will hurry away from their annual luncheon this noon at Old Heidelberg at A Century of Progress to put on costumes for a special preview performance of "Peter Pan" in the children's theater on the Enchanted island. Because the date of the opening of the island has been postponed until this coming Saturday the league asked for a private performance of its play today in connection with its annual meeting. The officers point out it will probably be their only opportunity to see the play from the first curtain to the last.

Preceding the luncheon there will be a business session at 10 o'clock at Old Heidelberg at which such important matters as the election of officers and changes in the admission requirements of the league will be brought up. It is proposed to judge a provisional member by the quality of her work and her general dependability rather than by the present required 80 hours of social service.

A nominating committee composed of Mrs. Carleton Scribner, Miss Dorothy Schmidt, Miss Frances Weary, Miss Janet Ayer, and Miss Margaret Sinclair will present a ticket of candidates headed by Miss Margot Atkin, the present president.

Contemporary Club Will Meet Today.

Another important luncheon this noon is that of the Contemporary club which has a fashionable membership and meets regularly at the Fortnightly club. Today the party is to be held at 10 o'clock at the International house at the University of Chicago. Miss Martha Sarver, who has presided over the club for two years, is relinquishing the office of president.

Tonight the Renaissance society of the University of Chicago is to have its annual meeting in the International house dining room. The Eleanor blue invitations issued a fortnight ago indicate a menu replete with interest from the tomato frappé to the walnut wafers. After the dinner there will be a musical program by Charles R. Buckley, a member of the university orchestra. The officers of the society promise that the reports will be brief and they ask the members to bring guests.

"It is extremely difficult," a certain group of wives are complaining these days, "to persuade our husbands to so much as go to a movie." They are the wives of the members of the Chicago Business Men's orchestra and the reason back of this masculine protest is the annual concert the orchestra is to have Wednesday evening in Orchestra hall. The members are spending all their leisure hours practicing measures on flutes, trombones, violins, and oboes.

There is to be a gala audience for the concert this year, according to yesterday's report. Boxes have been sold to Mr. and Mrs. George Lytton, Mr. and Mrs. Roy G. Keith, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond L. Redheffer, Mr. and Mrs. Louis K. Boysen, Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, Mrs. Americus F. Callahan, Mr. and Mrs. Bowman C. Lingle, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest T. Gundlach.

The Bohemians, an organization of musicians, are also planning to turn out en masse. Among them are Frederick Stock, Rudolph Ganz, Max Oberndorfer, Karleton Hackett, and Henry E. Voegeli.

Willett Penthouse to Be Scene of Party.

If the hours of time and energy Mrs. Edwin W. Sims and Mrs. Lyle Harper are putting into the Chicago Woman's Club Infant Welfare benefit are any indication of its success, it will be one of the outstanding parties of this spring season. It is to be a tour, a tea, a talk, and a musical the afternoon of May 16 in the Florentine penthouse of Mrs. Howard Willett at 2130 Lincoln Park West.

The committee which has Mrs. Harper as its chairman promises a close-up of the murals of St. Francis, the

The German ambassador, Dr. Hans Luther, gave a large reception yesterday afternoon at the embassy for the representative of Germany in conferences with the President, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht. Dr. Schacht was entertained at luncheon yesterday by President Roosevelt at the White House.

The secretary of the treasury and Mrs. Woodin are spending the week-end in their New York home.

Gen. George S. Simonds, commandant of the army war college, and Mrs. Simonds announce the engagement of their daughter, Frances Page, to Lieut. Normando A. Costello, U. S. A., son of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Costello of Franklin, Mass. The wedding will take place June 16.

Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of the former Vice President, entertained at luncheon yesterday for Mrs. Daniel A. Anthony of Topeka, Kas., widow of the former representative from that district.

Some Unknown Woman

By Elisabeth Sanxay Holding

SYNOPSIS.

Dinah Allen and Jane Rosslyn are roommates in a Manhattan boarding house. Dinah, from the south, envies and imitates Jane's air of mystery and sophistication. Jack Fiske, a young boarder from Vermont, is head over heels in love with Dinah, who considers him just a hick. Dinah and Jane stroll to the corner drug store for sodas. A good looking young man in a silk hat, not quite sober, invites the girls for a ride in his car. To Dinah's surprise Jane accepts for both of them. He takes them to his home. Dinah soon finds herself left alone, with Jane's purse instead of her own. In Jane's purse Dinah finds an automatic pistol. All the lights are turned out. Dinah rushes for the door and is grabbed by strong arms. She shoots. Jane reappears. She rushes Dinah away from the scene of their host lying in a pool of blood. Jane takes Dinah for a drink before going home. Fiske meets them entering the house and thinks Dinah intoxicated, and blames Jane. Dinah sees in the subway the tall dark man with a mustache who saw her and Jane leaving Philip Divine's house.

INSTALLMENT VII.

A KID AWAY FROM HOME.

At the next station Dinah sprang up and got out, with some vague idea of eluding pursuit. She ran up the stairs to the street and hailed a taxi.

"If I can just—get home," she thought. "If I can just talk to Jane. We've got to decide together what we're going to say. . . . In case . . ."

At the first red light the taxi driver turned and looked at her, and she thought she had spoken her thoughts aloud and he had heard. He would call a policeman.

But all he wanted was for her to repeat the number of the house.

There was some one standing at the foot of the steps when the cab stopped. Some one standing there waiting . . . For her?

"Yes?" said the driver, turning his head.

And then into her half-childish heart came a new strength. She had come to learn that day that life must go on. She made another step now and saw that life had to be faced. She could not run away forever. Whatever the consequences might be of that adventure so carelessly, so innocently embarked upon they could not be evaded.

So far in her brief life there had been few demands upon her for courage, for endurance, for any sterner qualities. She had grown up a beloved and sheltered child in her father's home. When she had come to New York she had, because she was pretty, and little, and sweet, met with friendliness and good will. But those sterner qualities were in her, bred in her spirit.

"I can't bother with you, Mr. Fisk," she said . . .

"Never mind!" she said to the driver, "it's nothing."

"Dinah!" he said.

So after all it was only that Fiske boy. The boy who had been so upset last night to see her come in. A great anger seized her that was partly reaction from the shock of her late fear, partly resentment at his presumption.

"I can't bother with you, Mr. Fiske," she said.

Her young voice was very clear. He could not help hearing and understanding. She went past him, ran up the steps, and let herself into the house with her latchkey.

Fiske stood where she had left him, slender and neat in his gray suit, very straight. And if he were cruelly stricken he did not show it except that as he struck a match to light a cigaret his hand was not quite steady.

It seemed to him that he could not enter that boarding house now. The thought of the dimly lit hall, the musty parlor where the scents of cooking hung forever, sickened him. There had been a time when that dingy house had had all the glamour in the world for him, when he had just come to New York, young, vigorous, alert, ambitious, perhaps a little cocksure, when he had first seen Dinah there with her little pointed, dimpled face. He had thought he was going to make a spectacular record in the business world; he had thought Dinah liked him the first time she saw him, and that she would continue to like him more and more, to love him. He had envisaged himself with power, prestige, and money, and that girl he had wanted the moment he set eyes on her.

And six months had gone by and he had had one small raise, and Dinah hated him.

"All right!" he said to himself. "Let her. . . . I don't want any dinner in that dam' place. . . . I'll take a walk. I don't get enough exercise, anyhow."

He had reached the corner, absorbed in his own miserable thoughts, when a hand was laid on his sleeve and he looked up to see Jane standing under the street light, a little pale as she was always, slender, distinguished, almost as tall as he.

"I'm so sorry about lunch," she said. "You got my telephone message, didn't you?"

He had the grace to be a little abashed. He had had a telephone message from Jane saying she could not meet him at the appointed time, but to let her know if he would make it half an hour later. He couldn't make it half an hour later. He had to go to lunch when it suited his elders and betters, and he had not rung her up at all.

"Yes, thanks. I did," he said. "But it was a heavy day. I didn't get a chance. I'm sorry."

"Where are you going now?" she asked.

That, he thought, was none of her business. He resented the question and he resented her quiet ease of manner. But she was a woman and he had to answer her civilly.

"I thought I'd take a walk," he said.

"May I come with you?" she asked.

"Er—certainly!" he said.

But he did not want her with him and he did not want her to talk to him about Dinah. Dinah could do her own talking—when she chose.

They went on, side by side, at random. And presently she spoke.

"Mr. Fiske?"

"Yes?" he answered, still civil, but with a growing resentment and uneasiness in his heart. There had been girls like Dinah in his home town, not so pretty, not with her irresistible attraction for him, but girls enough like her so that he could in a measure comprehend her even in her most wounding caprices. But he had never known any one like Jane, with this poise that had in it no arrogance, this reserve that was at the same time candid and utterly aloof. Somehow her courtesy, her impersonal friendliness diminished his young masculine pride far more than Dinah's insolence did.

"I'd like you to understand about last night," she said. "It's only fair to Dinah that you should. She'd never explain. She's so young—she thinks every one ought to understand her without explanations."

"I suppose you're young, too," thought Fiske. "But you know too darn much."

"We had a soda in the drug store," Jane went on, "and it disagreed with Dinah. Or perhaps she's been working too hard these first warm days. We took a walk, but that didn't help her. She felt faint and sick."

She paused for a moment and glanced at him, but on his keen featured young face she could see no sign of the sympathy she wished to evoke.

"So I took her to a place I know," she went on. "I thought she needed a stimulant. I got a whisky for her. It wasn't what I'd have called"—she paused again and smiled—"a devastating drink. But she's not used to anything of the sort. I don't think she even knew what it was. She drank it because she was feeling so miserable and it went to her head."

"You took Dinah alone—to a speakeasy?" he said.

"Yes," Jane answered. "But a nice, respectable one. And when I saw what I'd done I brought the poor little thing home. If you knew how unhappy the whole thing has made her . . . She's so humiliated and wretched."

"I don't see how I can help that," said Fiske.

Finding Name for New Actor Takes a Week

"Peter Adams" Will Play in De Mille Movie.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., May 7.—[Special.]—Adrian Samish, 22 years old, son of a manufacturer in New York, has caused Cecil De Mille and Harry Cohn a week of jitters.

Young Samish, who was acting in and directing plays in a suburban little theater at Amagansett, L. I., was brought here as a film prospect by Cohn, who heads Columbia studio.

De Mille decided he wanted to use Samish, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Samish, 467 Central Park West, New York City, and a recent graduate of Yonkers High school, in C. B.'s next film, "This Day and Age." Cohn agreed to the terms. Samish was delighted. But a hitch developed. They needed a "movie" name for the boy. At first it was decided to call him "Peter Adrian," but that name satisfied no one. Then Cohn changed this name to "Conrad Miles." De Mille and the young man both objected. Yesterday it was announced his name would be "Richard Dorne." Cohn was satisfied, but De Mille wasn't. So today they agreed that Adrian Samish shall be "Peter Adams" as long as he stays in the movies, and De Mille, Cohn and Samish shook hands all around. It is all very confusing and exciting.

"Peter Adams" and Richard Cromwell will play two high school boys in De Mille's film, which starts next week, and which, like so many of C. B.'s films, has a double purpose—to expose "problems," and "conditions", as well as to be spectacular. The "problems" and "conditions" this time will be those of high school boys.

De Mille played a Grandpop Teen all last week. During celebration of boys' week activities in the Los Angeles schools he haunted the high school classrooms and recreation assemblies, to watch and chronicle what the boys did and how they did it. In the meantime he held up the scrip by Bart Cormack in unfinished shape until the Chicago scenarist could embody the result of the producers' quest for the low down stuff on boys.

The girl to play the main part has not been chosen—De Mille says he doesn't believe any of the faces and personalities now in films fit his conception of the typical high school girl he wants depicted, and he may have to pick his new film heroine out of some classroom.

Doris Pleads for Pa's Comfort in His Own Home

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"He doesn't like his home——"

"He doesn't like my friends——"

"But taking him all in all, he's not a bad sort. I don't want to divorce him, but what can you do to make a man want to stay around home more?"

Make the home more attractive, is the answer we'd supply. Make it so comfortable and agreeable he wouldn't think of donning his hat nights and hiking off to parts unknown.

We think that in the business of furnishing the home the man of the house is often the forgotten one. Yeah, he's the forgotten man you hear so much about. It's Maw's domain. What she says goes, and if she has a taste for a certain kind of furniture, delicate, let's say, or uncomfortably antiquish, Paw is supposed to grin and bear it, if he can't admire it.

We know of an instance of a husband holding up an interior decorator on the way in to make a business call on his wife, pleading: "For the love of Mike, put in something I can sit in!"

Because a lot of women forget that an old davenport on which he can stretch himself full length has real home beauty for a male, they discount said man's taste as impossible. Or perhaps it's a comfortably roomy chair with a table beside it on which the man of the house can park his pipe or his other smoking materials within easy reach. You can't expect this creature, who responds readily to comfort, to sit on the edge of a splindly backed chair and hold agreeable converse with one of his wife's friends, with nothing congenial to offer him.

Our observation is that where there is real home feeling the furnishings thereof are not sacrificed to a period design, unless it's good old Grand Rapids. Any way, where the real home is, there is a place for Paw and his comfort is considered above the "line of color scheme" of a room.

Then, about this matter of a wife's friends. Again, Paw's rights around the home are too often discounted. They're Maw's friends. That's all there is to it. They're welcome to Her home and if Paw can't be agreeable, he can absent himself.

With all due respect to women friends, we don't think the best of them worth gambling the loss of a good husband on. Do you?

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

"Dear Miss Blake: A fellow made a date with me but didn't keep it. Should I try and see him again?

"LONESOME."

Don't bother about him. Let him come to you with some explanation, or forget him.

Mirande Combines Cotton Crash with Printed Silk in Afternoon Ensemble

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—About three fourths of the ensembles seen around Paris on late spring afternoons are jacket and dress ensembles. They come under the new fashion rulings that require them to be different from what was worn last season.

The most popular way of being different in the jacket and dress ensemble is to wear a printed silk frock, and a jacket of crash or piqué, in string color, pastel, or white. Jackets in these materials, worn for afternoon, are usually of the swagger type and are of any length from hipline to three-quarter.

The printed dresses don't look in the least like those of last year because the patterns of the silks are so different. Silks having dark backgrounds, like dark blue or black, with scattered designs in pure white are among the most popular of all. They're so practical and so fresh looking. Widely spaced field flower patterns in natural colors are very good, too, but they look more formal as they are usually on white ground. Checks, stripes, and plaids are little worn for afternoon, though they are all over the place for morning and evening.

The Mirande ensemble in our sketch is the best type of afternoon ensemble in this category, according to the judgment of Paris. The dress is black silk with a scattered white design, and is sleeveless so it may be worn also in the evening. The hip-length jacket is made of white cotton crash, cut swagger, with clusters of red string making bands on collar and sleeves, and also used for a necklace.

Members of the Men Without Wives club are seething with expectancy. The iron clad rule of their organization is that a member who declares his intention of deserting the rôle of bachelor must give the M. W. W.'s a bang up party as a farewell gesture. George Henry Schulz is the guilty member this time—Miss Mary Dawes the cause of his downfall. Some of the bachelors waiting to be entertained are John L. Fortune Jr., Walter Egan Trevvett, James Miksak, Stewart Boal, William W. Miller, William Hunt, Norman Cameron MacDonald, Daniel J. Lawlor, and Mitchell Follansbee Jr.

Peter Fortune and Seymour Morris, both seniors at Princeton, are to have important parts in commencement exercises this next month. Yesterday word came that Mr. Fortune, who has been prominent in extra curricular activities throughout his four year course, has been made a member of the class day committee. Burton H. Etherington of Philadelphia, the senior class president, heads the committee. Mr. Morris will write the class ode.

C. H. Olmsteds Parents of Son.

There is a brand new blue and white cradle in the Conway Howard Olmsteds' apartment at 1320 North State street. It is awaiting the homecoming of little junior Conway Howard, who put in his appearance last Wednesday at the Presbyterian hospital. Both Mrs. Olmsted, who was Mary Elizabeth Johnston, and the baby are doing well. In a few weeks the Olmsteds will move out to Lake Forest for the summer months.

The A. Weller Olmsteds are being congratulated upon the birth of a second little girl last Monday at the Evanston hospital. She has been named Suzanne May after her paternal grandmother, Mrs. George G. Olmsted.

Miss Leslie Keith and Miss Barbara Morse are two young ladies who have been spending the traditional winter abroad before making their debuts. They are returning the end of this month and will spend the summer in Lake Forest with their respective parents, the Stanley Keiths and the George Adams Richardsons. Mrs. Richardson's son, Samuel F. B. Morse, is coming east in June from Los Angeles, where he is working, to spend three weeks in Lake Forest. His younger brother, John B. Morse, has been elected chairman of the editorial board of the Yale Record. Mr. Morse is in his junior year at Yale.

When Mrs. Howard Van Doren Shaw returns to Chicago this month from her oriental cruise she will be pleased to learn that her poem, "Who Loves the Rain," is being quoted by Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick in one of his sermons that is later to be printed. Six of Mrs. Shaw's poems are also to be done in braille as part of a volume now being compiled.

News of Travel and Visitors.

Miss Helen Louise Cheek, daughter of the Robert Cheeks of Nashville, is arriving tomorrow to visit Miss Virginia Cross, the daughter of the John Leland Crosses, who moved here from New York last summer. Miss Cheek will be here for two or three weeks, and among other entertaining to be done for her, Miss Cross is giving a small cocktail party Sunday afternoon. Miss Cross spent several weeks in Florida with Miss Cheek last winter.

Mrs. Alfred M. Wolfe returned yesterday from a week's stay at her summer place at Ephraim, Wis., where she went for a rest and to see "how her garden grows."

The Charles H. Swifts, recently returned from Bermuda, will move out to their little farm near Mundelein early in July. In the meantime they are spending week-ends there.

The R. Hampton Ripleys, who have been living in Winnetka since their marriage, prefer to live in the city, and the Edward A. Fargo Jrs., who have lived in an apartment on Bellevue place, decided they would like to live in a suburb, so the Ripleys have taken the Fargos' apartment and the Fargos have moved into the F. Goddard Cheney house in Winnetka.

Only members of the immediate families will witness the marriage of Miss Isabel Jane McKenney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gervis Erdley McKenney of Evanston, to Myron Converse Gates next Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Armand H. Peycke, 240 Raleigh road, Kenilworth.

There is to be a reception, however, for 100 friends following the ceremony, which will be performed at 4:30 o'clock by the Rev. Leland Denforth.

Miss Jane Peycke is to attend her cousin as maid of honor and Mrs. Alfred L. Stockebrand will be the matron of honor. Albert Fenske will serve Mr. Gates as best man. After a honeymoon the young couple is to reside in Evanston.

The spring luncheon of the Lake View Musical society and the Musicians' Club of Women this noon at the Drake hotel will be followed by a program given by active members of both clubs.

To raise their quota for participation with the Woman's College board in A Century of Progress, Chicago alumnae of Trinity college at Washington, D. C., are planning a series of lectures and teas for the next four weeks. Miss Helen Barrett and her sister, Miss Marion Barrett, are opening their home at 541 Hawthorne place for the first of the series this evening. The Rev. Frederick J. Seidenburg will talk about current events.

Navy Contrasts Effectively with White and Red

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

Notice the smart way the little cape of this dress falls softly from a round, flat yoke—and the yoke ties its ends in scarf effect. The simple dress has slender lines and may be made with long or short sleeves. A navy blue silk crêpe printed in white, with white crêpe for the collar, and a narrowed red leather belt, made the original dress.

The pattern, No. 2516, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 4 yards of 39 inch material with ⅝ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

What are vitamins?

What good do they do us?

Three red letter questions today—can you pass them? You should, whether you're a bachelor or bachelor maid forever dining out, a late-edition bride with a brand new husband, or a mother-dietitian with a family of assorted runabouts.

Why? Because unless each one of us supplies himself with enough foods containing these health-giving, disease-preventing elements known as vitamins we may take pills by the carload—but still we cannot keep well. And it's mighty hard to eat these proper foods unless we know which they are and really understand what it's all about, anyway!

First for the make-up of foods in general. We have:

1. Energy foods, which act as the gasoline to our engines. They give us power and heat and—if taken in excess—fat. They include:

Sugars—Present in sugar, sirups, preserves, dried fruits, candy, etc.

2. Body building and regulating foods keep our engines repaired and growing. They include:

Proteins—These foods build and repair muscle, flesh, and the organs which keep busy inside us. Milk, eggs, cheese, lean meats, fish, and legumes are the best sources.

Minerals—These also help along with building bodies. Likewise they have a lot to do with keeping our engines running smoothly. There are a good many minerals needed in our make-up. The following four, though, are the ones we chiefly have to worry about:

Calcium—This mineral boosts for strong bones and sound teeth. It is found mainly in cheese, milk, and buttermilk.

Iron—This mineral plays a part in forming red blood, carries part of the fresh air we breathe throughout our bodies, and protects against anemia. Liver, lean beef, egg yolk, and green vegetables—especially spinach—have good allotments of iron.

Iodine—Here in the goitrous region we hear a good deal about this mineral. We must have iodine to prevent simple goiter. But it is dangerous to take it except in the form of sea foods, including cod liver oil, unless under a doctor's orders. Salt water fish served at least once a week or cod liver oil taken each day in tablet, liquid, or capsule form are safe and necessary sources.

Roughage—This is the "scratchy" part of food—the woody fibers in whole grains, cabbages, beans, onions, apple skins, etc. This part of food acts as a "broom" for our systems and in general helps along digestion.

3. Protective foods containing vitamins—Which brings us back to where we started. Vitamins or protective substances have always been hiding in certain foods. But they've only recently been discovered—within the last twenty years. Actually vitamins are health-giving and disease-preventing elements. Our eyes may not be able to detect them, but experiments have shown them to be very much on hand. When we do not have enough of the foods containing them we develop what is known as a "deficiency disease." Maybe we'll even find ourselves harnessed with several of these troubles at once, which is very, very bad.

So far we know of six vitamins—and suspect the presence of several more. For convenience these have been named vitamins A, B, C, D, E, and G. Many of them turn up in the foods. Others don't. Cooking injures some of them and not others. Some are a bit rare and have to be courted into our meals. Others are nicely spread around among a number of foods.

But where we'll find them, how we'll have to treat them, and what good they can do us—it's too big an order for today. So now we can start again with all preliminaries taken care of and——

Vitamin A on the docket for tomorrow!

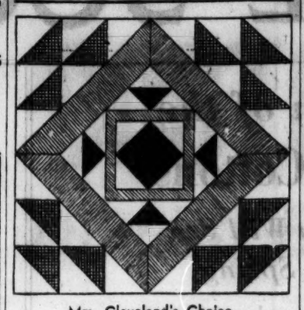
Attractive Quilt Dedicated to Mrs. Cleveland



Mrs. Cleveland's Choice.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Frances Folsom Cleveland, the charming and gracious wife of former President Grover Cleveland, is one of the few women in history who have been honored by a quilt design. Mrs Cleveland was the first White House bride; her romantic marriage as well as hor youth, beauty and charm endeared her to the public. The quilt was dedicated to her in 1886, when Mrs. Cleveland was but 22 years old.

For a quilt pattern of this design, send five cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn street.

Beauty Patch Aids Woman with Gray Hair

Bright Colors May Also Be Worn.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A very young woman of my acquaintance, with prematurely gray hair, appeared wearing a tiny beauty patch under her lovely eye. She said, I'm told with gray hair you ought to wear a beauty patch—well, just to prove there's life in the gray-haired girl yet!"

Personally, I believe that prematurely gray-haired girls are inclined to exaggerate with apologies. Their hair may be their most triumphant note. Certainly in the case referred to it is. The young woman dresses it with unusual chic and she dresses herself with equal cleverness. Her attractiveness is commonly spoken of with the mention of her name.

I merely introduce the patch to indicate that gray hair need not stop one from trying any new little gadget that holds promise of intrigue. The prematurely gray woman may break out into almost any color her fancy dictates since she maintains her eye brilliance and clear skinned complexion.

Other gray haired women may be corralled into two groups: One, the gray hair that used to be black, or that very dark brown that passes for black. The change in this hair coloring is usually more striking than in the type discussed in a moment. She usually has brown eyes, dark anyway, and strikingly dark eyebrows and if her skin is bright and flawless, she can wear pretty strong colorings, and be one of the most striking women in a crowd. Too, she can wear grays and lavenders beautifully since the warmth of her own coloring carries them off beautifully.

It is a simple matter to dress this type of gray-haired woman well. Her cosmetics are not so much of a study as the other type's.

But this "other" type need not be discouraged, what with the flattering colors in dress and makeup that are possible for her today. Only she must make a study of both color aids if she would lift herself out of the "colorless" class of gray-haired women. Reference is made to the women whose hair turns from brown [light or drab] red or blond and in the turning needs help from color to "silverize" the graying hairs.

Tomorrow we'll tell a few things about dress color and makeup that will assist this type.

MINUTE MYSTERY
BY H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his case-book covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

PHOTOGRAPHIC EVIDENCE.

"Morning, Sergeant," greeted the professor. "Kelley's been telling me about the Maloney case. Mind if I have a look at the pictures you fellows took?"

"Not at all. Billings, get them out for the professor, will you?" replied George Schattle, assistant superintendent of the bureau of identification.

The first photograph showed the body of a man (a big man) lying halfway across the threshold of the entrance to a tenement flat, his right arm outflung, his left beneath him. As he was on his right side, the fatal wound in his temple was not visible.

The next picture handed him by Sergt. Schattle showed the inside of the room, sparsely and poorly furnished. Fordney studied it carefully, noting the fact that the room had two windows and that one of the window shades was pulled down half-way, while the other was rolled to the top!

The following morning in response to a gruff "come in," the professor pulled open the door to William Murphy's flat and was greeted by a bellicose, little, red faced, bald headed Irishman. Finally he consented to again relate what had happened.

His story was that at one minute to three on the previous afternoon he heard a shot in the building followed in a moment by a thud against his door and Maloney's cry, "He shot me!" As Murphy opened the door he said Maloney fell over the threshold—dead! He had called the police immediately and . . .

But Fordney interrupted him with: "Either come clean or come to the station . . . you're lying!"

HOW DID THE PROFESSOR KNOW?

[See solution on page 29.]

Perhaps you have a story or problem you would like to submit to Prof. Fordney. If so, send it to him in care of this paper. He will be delighted to receive it.

Books Old and New for Child of 5 or Under

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

One day last week we talked in the column about choosing books for little children under 5. At that time suggestions were given only as to types of books.

Today I am going to list actual names. I am doing this partly because our booklet, "The Children's Bookshelf," is being revised and the new printing is not yet ready, and requests keep coming in for this kind of information. The following list includes some classics and old favorites as well as newer books:

"The Shire cat," by Zhenay and Jan Gry. This is to my mind perhaps the most beautiful little child's book that has ever been made.

"The First Picture Bo[illegible]," by Mary Steichen Martin. This is a distinct departure in books for babies. It contains very clear fine photographs of real things the baby knows and uses, and no text.

"Karoo the Kangaroo," by Kurt Wiese is the "solemn sweet story of a little kangaroo's whole life" written by a man who owned a baby one in Australia. From 5 to 9 would be about the age range for this. Most of the illustrations are beautiful.

"The Pet Elephant," by James Hull is a simple but for some reason quite enthralling story of two little children who bought themselves a real elephant. Children from 5 or 6 to 9 should read this.

"Peter Rabbit," by Beatrix Potter.
"Tom Kitten."
"Mother Goose." Various editions.
"Sunny Bunny."
"The Little Brown Bear," by Johnny Gruelle.
"An Apple Pie," by Kate Greenaway.
"A Visit to St. Nicholas."

CUBS WHIP BRAVES IN DOUBLE HEADER, 11-2 AND 5-2

BRUIN BATTERS COME TO LIFE WITH 4 HOMERS

Grimes, Warneke Winning Pitchers.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., May 7.—The Chicago Cubs this afternoon made it a sad Sabbath for 35,000 Bostonians who jammed Braves field. The Cubs beat the Braves in both ends of a double header, 11 to 2 in the first encounter and 5 to 2 in the second game. The day's activity jumped the Cubs from seventh to fourth place in the National league standing.

Riggs Stephenson and Gabby Hartnett hit homers in the first game to furnish the high spots in a 15 hit enterprise. Babe Herman and Lon Warneke slapped out homers in the second game, which was also a free hitting affair until Socks Seibold relieved Cantwell at the start of the fifth and held the Cubs hitless for the remaining five innings.

Gabby Has Another Big Day.

In the first game Hartnett made that No. 5 homer, a double, and drew a pass in four trips to the plate and scored two runs. In the second game he added a single to set his season batting average at .388. His homer brought his total of runs driven in to 20.

In the eighth inning of the first game Babe Herman started a hitting rampage with a single. In the next inning he doubled. In the first inning of the second game he knocked a record homer, his second of the season, and the next time up he doubled to drive in two runs. He scored afterward, thus figuring in all of the Cub's first four runs. On the last hit Babe pulled a Charley horse and did not resume his place in the outfield.

In the second game Warneke registered his fourth win in six starts. He was in a couple of early jams but waded out both times, and when Seibold showed himself in a stingy mood Lon tightened up, making the last five innings scoreless for both sides.

They're Hiting at Last.

The Cubs made 15 hits in the first game to bring their total for two successive games—including yesterday's single encounter—to a rather startling 33. In this first game today every Cub, excepting Billy Herman, made at least one hit.

It was the second start and the second win for Burleigh Grimes. His first start was a three hit shutout. Only one of the Braves' runs today was earned, giving the old timer an earned run average of 0.5 in his two starts. His season mark is not so good, he having been charged with three runs in three innings as a rescuer for Charley Root.

Grimes also was something of a batsman today. He drove in the winning run and one of the extra counters with a single in the fourth inning. In the riotous ninth he drove in another run with his second hit and later scored.

FIRST GAME

Stephenson's homer at the outset of the second inning got the day's offense business under way. It was a great smash which came down in a runway alongside the right field bleachers, a carry of some 415 feet. The next three batsmen were easy outs.

Gabby Hartnett opened the Cub third with a double off the left center fence, a 400 foot smack which missed being a homer because it was a foot too low. Gabby went to third on Grimes' sacrifice, but Demaree sent a short fly to Moore and Bill Herman flied to Berger.

Braves Tie Score in Third.

The Braves tied the count in the third inning. For a few minutes it seemed they would go a bit farther. Maranville tripled to right with one down. Jordan slammed a bouncer to Grimm, who spent a little too much time feinting the Rabbit back to third. Jordan beating Charley in a dash for the bag while Bill Herman and Grimes looked on. Moore then singled to center, scoring Maranville and putting Jordan on third. Berger fanned and Hogan forced Moore.

A balk apparently upset Brandt in the fourth. After Babe Herman and Stephenson had popped to Maranville, English caromed a single off Brandt's foot and was waved to second when Umpire McGrew called a balk on Brandt. English went to third while Grimm was beating out a high bouncer to Brandt. Jurges followed up with a single to left, scoring English. Then Hartnett walked, filling the bases. Grimes singled to left, scoring Grimm and Jurges. Demaree fanned.

Gabby Gets the Range.

Hartnett's homer which led off the seventh inning went in precisely the same direction as his double in the third, except that it was about six feet higher. The smash had a carry, against the wind, of about 410 feet.

Wee Bobby Cruickshank Has Qualities in True Sense of Word.

(This is the fifth of a series of articles on golf by Tommy Armour, who recently came to Chicago to become professional at the Medinah Country club. Armour has been ranked among the world's leading players for nearly a decade, having won every major title within the reach of a professional.)

BY TOMMY ARMOUR.

The word color, when used to describe sport celebrities, is the most overworked, misused word in the English language. It would tax both the ability and mentality of any of the celebrated writers to give a concise definition of the word when used in this sense. Hundreds of articles are written describing famous characters in sports as colorful, when they are really nothing but dull, listless individuals.

BOBBY CRUICKSHANK.

In the game of golf I know many men known and described as being full of color who actually haven't the slightest claim to that or any other distinction. There comes to mind the particular case of a man who has carried descriptions of attractiveness and color for many years in the newspapers, who is in reality such a dumb fellow that he cannot carry on an ordinary social conversation. Thus it can't require brains to be colorful, and so what is this much discussed gift of the gods?

How Much Has Temper to Do with Color?

Another professional that I know once broke a couple of golf clubs over his knee in front of thousands of people, threw a golf club at a caddy, made a couple of cheap boasts in front of some newspaper men, and became known immediately as a great and colorful personality in golf. Is this, then, color, or is it what most of us would designate as nothing but a vulgar display of temper?

I know another player who by smiling broadly at his missed shots and talking to his gallery has become known as a brilliantly colorful player. Again, what constitutes color—a grin and friendliness with the crowd? Yet Joe Kirkwood, who behaves on and off the golf course like a gentleman, and is both good looking and attractive and an intensely interesting conversationalist, has never been accused of having an abundance of color.

Another incident is that of a man I know well, who was interviewed by a famous sports writer. This individual refused to answer a question, and was immediately described in this writer's column as dull, listless, and lacking in color. They met again, unexpectedly, a few months later at a private party and, strangely enough, that same golfer became the greatest personality of the links, the "soldier of fortune," and most colorful individual on the golf course. Both of the celebrated writers' descriptions were wrong. What is colore as applied to athletes?

It's Color if You Do Something Different.

To me the best description of this term was made by my friend, Herb Graffis, editor of Golfdom and Golfing, who simply describes it as "someone who does something different." If Herb's description fits, as I believe it does, there is certainly one man I know who must have as much color as any one in the world. That is Robert Allan Cruickshank, familiarly known to the golfing world as Wee Bobby Cruickshank. In the baseball vernacular, he "has everything." He has intelligence, sincerity, good manners, polish, a great sense of humor, the ability to mix, and sportsmanship to the nth degree.

Around Bobby has grown one of the great fables of athletics, and with his permission I am going to tell you about it. Wee Bobby arrived in Cali-

BROKER'S TIP TO RACE HEAD PLAY IN PREAKNESS

Robertson Gets Fisher's Jockey Job Saturday.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 7.—The morning after the night before—found the Kentucky Derby scene almost deserted and an atmosphere of "back to normal" prevailing over Churchill Downs.

Col. Edward R. Bradley's Broker's Tip, with the 59th Derby cup put away in his trophy chest, left this morning for Baltimore to fill his engagement in the $25,000 Preakness Stakes to be run on Saturday. So did a majority of the others which furnished the fireworks in yesterday's Derby.

Head Play, which was second by a nose, will renew his feud with Broker's Tip in the Preakness. These two colts, which fought the greatest ding dong stretch battle in Derby history, also will come together again when the American Derby is run in Chicago on June 3.

Robertson on Head Play.

H. W. Fisher, who rode Head Play in the Derby, will not have the mount on Mrs. Silas Mason's star in the Preakness. He will be replaced by Alfred Robertson, one of the east's leading riders.

Don Meade again will be up on Broker's Tip. Meade and Fisher engaged in a furious fist fight in the jockey room after the Derby, Fisher seeking revenge after the stewards had disallowed his claim that Meade had fouled him as they came down the stretch.

Fisher, who had Head Play out in front as they rounded the stretch turn, came in for criticism for taking his mount far enough out in the track to allow Broker's Tip to charge through on the rail. It is also claimed he made his move too early, sending Head Play into the lead in the backstretch instead of waiting until the run for home.

Which Is Best?

The 3 year old championship will remain in doubt until Broker's Tip and Head Play hold their "world series" at equal weights at a mile and a quarter. Throughout Kentucky today it was all but impossible to find two horsemen who could agree on which was the better colt in the Derby. And mere horse talk and arguments will not decide it. It will take a hoss race, or several races, to prove the point.

Burgoo King came out of his Derby last year in fine condition, and Trainer Dick Thompson believes Broker's Tip can win the Preakness just as Burgoo King did last year.

This was a happy day on Col. Bradley's Idle Hour farm over near Lexington. All day long friends and neighbors dropped in to shake the hand of the only man that has ever won the Derby four times.

The employés on Idle Hour farm, where all four of the Bradley Derby winners have been bred, were more jubilant than Owner Bradley. Col. Bradley endeavors to discourage them from betting on the races, but regardless of his advice a Bradley colt never goes to the post in the Derby without everybody on the farm having some sort of a wager down.

He'll Get Better.

So it wasn't any wonder the farm employés had their pencils and paper out today trying to figure just how much they had won on Broker's Tip triumph.

Col. Bradley would not say that Broker's Tip is the best horse he has sent into the Derby. He thinks both Bubbling Over and Blue Larkspur might have had something on him.

"But he is a nice colt," Bradley said, "and will get better right along. He should run a better race in the Preakness than he did in the Derby."

It is the opinion of many horsemen that Broker's Tip is the most rugged of any Bradley Derby winner and should stand up under the hardest kind of a 3 year old campaign.

BUNTING IN THE WRONG DIRECTION

Jimmy Dykes of the White Sox attempts to bunt in the second game of the double header with Boston yesterday at Comiskey park. Catcher Gooch is grabbing for the ball, but it looks as if he's going to miss it. Boston won this game, 3 to 2, after the White Sox had taken the opener, 4 to 3.

BROKER'S TIP.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 7.—"Ha, ha, ha! That was a pretty swell way to break out of the maiden class, wasn't it?" shouted Broker's Tip as he saw us approaching this morning for our usual post-Derby interview. We had timed our arrival because we figured the colts after a celebration would sleep later than customary.

Scattered around Broker's Tip's stable and box were empty bottles and other litter indicating that Derby night had not been entirely quiet. Following our glance, the Black Toney colt explained, "O, yes, my friends were here with bells on to honor the former maiden, but personally I took no part other than being host and staying up late, because, you know, I have the Preakness before me next Saturday and I want to repeat Burgoo King's double triumph of last year in the Bradley colors.

Broker's Tip emitted a hearty chuckle of satisfaction as he whinnied. "You know just as much about it as I do because you saw the race. My business was to run as fast as I could and I was attending to that. I couldn't turn around to see what our jockeys were doing, but I sensed they were roughing it.

"Any way you view it, however, it was the fault of Head Play and Jockey Fisher. Head Play went wide coming into the home stretch. Probably he wanted to carry out Charley O., whom I regarded as the one to beat at that stage. He did not actually do so because they were not lapped, but it had the same effect, for naturally Charley O. could not take a chance of moving to the inside lest Head Play swing over and cut him off. So Charley O. also went wide hoping to come by on the outside.

"I was moving up at this point, and Meade saw the big opening and we took it, saving much ground. Head Play still was in the lead and he had the choice of going to the rail ahead of me or staying out. He couldn't eat his cake and still have it. He remained out until he saw Charley O. was safely beaten. Then Fisher realized I was the one to beat. By that time I was nearly with him and he had no right to swing to the rail to cut me off. He might have made me go around him earlier, but it was too late then. Naturally Meade and I did all we could to prevent it."

"How does it feel to be a Derby winner?" we asked.

"Simply great! You know when you called the other morning I told you I felt hurt because Col. Bradley picked Ladysman. I also told you I was ready, just as Trainer Dick Thompson always has us Bradley colts ready. Well, as Dick was saddling me in the paddock, he gave me encouragement with 'Now, old Tipper, you can beat any colt in the west. We don't know so well about the east, but I think you can beat them, too. Go out and show them.'

"Meade told me afterward he worried a little when I wasn't in the first flight during the early stages. Honestly, I didn't. I knew I had a lot left. In fact, thought I'd have to wear down a greater lead than I did. We did get through nicely, thanks to Meade and Head Play. Some call my victory lucky. I don't, for the roughing hurt me as much if not more than Head Play. What do you think, Wake?"

"To be honest, Tippy, I thought a better ride would have landed Head Play as the race was run."

"Sorry you think so," replied Broker's Tip without taking umbrage, "but they don't pay off on ifs. I'm ready to meet any of them again and I certainly would like to meet Head Play at a mile and one-half."

"What do you think of those behind you?" was our next question.

"Head Play ran a nice race, but we don't need to talk about that any more. Looks as if we had it on Charley O. Strange as it may seem, I still think Ladysman is quite a fellow. Grand looker, isn't he?"

"No, not much was said, except once or twice, 'Move over there, let me through,' or 'Quit crowding.' I'll admit that when I went forward after Head Play and Charley O. I whinnied to the eastern bunch, 'The west is going to be one-two-three.'

"I'll be seeing you in Chicago, Wake, after I get back from the Preakness. Thanks for giving me a tumble before the race when I was a good deal of an outsider to most critics."

Cardinals Get Durocher in 6 Player Deal

New York, May 7.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds today traded Shortstop Leo Durocher and Pitchers John Ogden and Frank [Dutch] Henry to the St. Louis Cardinals for Pitchers Paul Derringer and Allyn Stout and Infielder Earl [Sparky] Adams. No cash was involved.

LEO DUROCHER.

The deal was regarded as of distinct advantage to both clubs, with the Reds perhaps the chief gainers. The addition of Durocher, a fine fielder, plugs the Cardinals' one glaring infield weakness, while the Reds not only strengthen a weak pitching staff but also gain a useful utility infielder in Adams.

Shortstop a Problem.

The shortstop post has been a vexing problem for Manager Gabby Street of the Cards ever since Charley Gelbert suffered accidental gunshot wounds during the winter. After numerous experiments, Street finally converted John Leonard [Pepper] Martin into a third baseman, installed Rogers Hornsby at second base and moved Frankie Frisch to shortstop. The addition of Durocher probably will mean that Martin will return to the outfield with Frisch shifting to third base.

Durocher played short stop for the Cardinals against Brooklyn today with Martin on third, Frisch at second and Hornsby on the bench with a charley horse. It was expected, however, that Hornsby would return to second base as soon as his physical condition warrants.

From a Cincinnati viewpoint the trade should prove especially beneficial from a pitching standpoint. The addition of Derringer provides Manager Donie Bush with another starting pitcher to relieve an overburdened staff.

Adams in Majors 11 Years.

Once Jim Bottomley returns to regular duty at first base for the Reds, Adams may not be able to break into an infield combination which will have George Grantham at second base, Joe Morrissey at short and Andy High at third, but he will be a useful man to have around. He has played second, short and third during his 11 years in the majors.

McCarthy Leads Mauling Yanks to Town Today

Joe McCarthy and his mauling New York Yankees are back in Chicago today for the first time since they spent two afternoons washing up the Cubs in the world series last October. Ted Lyons will pitch against the world champions in the opener of a four game set. He trimmed them twice and they trimmed him three times last season. McCarthy probably will start the speed balling Vern Gomez, who in his last appearance held the Tigers hitless until the ninth inning.

Al Simmons has been making frequent trips to his Milwaukee home after his day's work and returning the next morning. He's decided to quit it for the time being. He suspects that the driving might have something to do with his protracted hitting slump.

There were so many bleacher customers that the space set aside for them began to bulge outward when the first game started. The congestion was relieved by permitting a portion of them to wander into the pavilion seats.

Evar Swanson unintentionally robbed Haas of a stolen base and was called out for interference in the third inning of the second game. Haas, after a single, started to steal. The pitch was outside and Swanson half stumbled across the plate when he made a reach for it. He stepped in front of Catcher Gooch, who was unable to throw because of the obstruction. Haas had the bag stolen even if there had been no interference, but was ordered to return to first.

Baseball Games in 6 Cities Draw Crowd of 200,000

New York, May 7.—(AP)—Major league baseball had one of its biggest days today as warm weather and a round of double headers brought out more than 200,000 fans in six cities. A seventh double header was postponed after the St. Louis Browns and Philadelphia Athletics had played one inning. Cleveland had 55,000, the second largest gathering in Cleveland baseball history, at two games with the New York Yankees. The attendance figures follow:

FABER WINS AS RESCUER, 4 TO 3; LOSE 2D, 3 TO 2

Long Distance Hits Beat Gregory.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The art of hitting 'em safe was more or less of a problem to the White Sox yesterday, but despite the deficiency they proved equal to the task of breaking even with the Boston hose before 20,000. The local variety of hosiery grabbed its share of the plunder in the shape of a 4 to 3 triumph in the opening half of the program and then succumbed before the enemy by 3 to 2.

The White Sox achieved their victory in battle No. 1 even though held to seven hits against eleven for a total of eighteen bases by the enemy. There were reasons for this. One was the feebleness with which the Boston big boys move about. Another was a series of sensational defensive plays by the south siders. Still another was that passes off Gordon Rhodes and Johnny Welch blossomed into two of the four Chicago runs. Only one hit was involved in these two tallies. Luke Appling produced it to drive in the deciding run.

Gaston Hit Hard.

Appling's decisive single was particularly profitable for old Red Faber, who now is engaged in his twentieth season as a Comiskey employé. The old gentleman slipped into the game just a few moments before the winning run glided across, thus achieving his first victory of the season. Before that Milt Gaston had served to the enemy, but he did nothing to write home about. Four of the seven hits off him were for extra bases, one a homer by Roy Johnson. But even in the face of this persistent blasting Gaston held his own until a slap on the wrist by a pitched ball forced him to quit in the sixth.

The scarcity of White Sox hits in the second game was due to the presence of Henry Johnson, an ex-Yankee. He kept five hits widely scattered, but one of them was a homer with which Al Simmons tried to shake off his batting slump. But Johnson put Simmons right back where he had been by fanning him in two subsequent appearances.

Gregory Pitches Well.

Opposing the skilled Hi Johnson was Paul Gregory. The youthful White Sox pitcher was far from a total bust, but he was troubled by Boston's fondness for extra base drives. He gave up two runs because of two doubles and another because Johnny Hodapp, a Chicago alumnus, drove a homer into the seats.

The White Sox will open a four game series with the Yankees today.

FIRST GAME

Gaston's troubles began in the second inning but the scoring was limited to one run largely because of the Red Sox's pitiful lack of speed. Jolley walked, Alexander singled and Hodapp doubled. This much scored Jolley and left the two other men on third and second with none out. Oliver walked to fill the bases. Shea then popped to Hayes. Rhodes fanned and Simmons took Warstler's fly to end the inning.

Boston's lack of speed helped Gaston to escape from another mess in the third with only one run resulting. Johnson, whose running skill makes him almost a misfit among his present pals, led off with a double to left and was sacrificed to third by McManus. Jolley punched a single into center and Johnson scored. Then Jolley tried to take second on a short passed ball. Berry recovered and threw him out easily. Alexander bounced one to deep short and Appling, after a dizzy stop, turned a couple of somersaults, but still had time to throw out the plodding Alex.

White Sox Bunch Hits.

The White Sox had to wait until the third before coming up with their first hit off Rhodes. Then they bunched four of them for two runs, tying the score. Gaston started it with a single to left and took third when Hayes looped a double to the same spot. Haas walked, loading the bases. Swanson sneaked a single past Hodapp, scoring Gaston and Hayes, but Haas was nipped trying to scoot from first to third on the hit. Swanson failed to get away with a delayed steal of second and so a single with which Simmons followed went to waste.

As further proof that luck was still with him, Gaston escaped unscathed from another tight spot in the fourth. Despite a pass to Hodapp and double by Oliver with none out, the Red Sox failed to register. But they did a bit better on one hit in the fifth. The speedy Johnson banged his homer into the right field seats. That wholesome drive produced a 3 to 2 Boston lead, but Mr. Rhodes didn't seem to want it that way. He gave the run back to the south siders by walking Simmons, Appling, Kress and Dykes after two were out in the fifth. For that offense Rhodes was dragged out of the picture, Welch succeeding him.

Support Saves Faber.

A pass to Swanson to open the seventh and a single over short by Appling put the Chicago Hose in front 4 to 3, but you wouldn't have given a thin dime for the lead in Boston's eighth. Brilliant support, however, offset the wabbliness of Faber. Hayes started the inning with a one handed leap for Alexander's drive. Hodapp singled to left and hiked to third on Oliver's singled to right center. Then Stumpf, a pinch batter, bounced

Broker's Tip, Head Play to Continue Duel

in 1870 to win the $18,500 stakes offered by the Maryland Jockey club Preakness, the winner of that two mile race, gave his name to the noted Maryland racing classic, whose renewal will be run next Saturday with most of the outstanding 3 year olds competing.

Headed by E. R. Bradley's Broker's Tip and Mrs. Silas B. Mason's Head Play, the 75 nominees for this year's Preakness include 12 of the 13 horses which faced the barrier in the Kentucky Derby last Saturday.

$25,000 Added This Year.

The first Preakness, raced at a mile and a half in 1873, was won by Survivor, owned by John F. Chamberlin and ridden by George Barbee. The stake was approximately $1,000. The prize money to the winner remained at about $1,000 until 1889 when the race was discontinued. It was revived in 1909, and has been run annually.

The races in 1909 and 1910 were over a mile and a quarter. Then the distance was shortened to a mile and an eighth until 1924. Since then, the event has been a mile and three-sixteenth.

The higest winnings was taken by Victorian in 1928 with a stake of $60,000. This year the Maryland Jockey club, as an economic move, reduced the stake from $50,000 added to $25,000 added.

The record for the Preakness over the current distance at 1 minute 59 seconds is held jointly by Coventry, winner in 1925, and Mate, victor in 1931.

SMITTY—THE TRUTH IS OFTEN SPOKEN IN A JEST

Canada Geese Visit Farm and Get Tag

BY BOB BECKER.

More than 9,000 wild Canada geese have been banded by Jack Miner, the famous conservationist and owner of the Miner bird sanctuary at Kingsville, Ont., according to a report just issued by this widely known student of America's bird life. Of the 9,160 geese which were trapped and banded on his sanctuary 5,000 received metal identification tags during the last three years.

Banding is just one step in the work of tracing a bird's migration. When, in the case of game birds, one is shot by a hunter the cycle is complete because the bander then gets a line on its travels.

Migrate to Carolina.

Miner, in a recent statement, points out that upwards of 900 of his banded wild geese have been reported from southeastern states. Three hundred and twenty of this number were taken in North Carolina. An additional 300 "Miner geese" have been killed in Canada.

Because Miner prevents hunters from doing damage around his sanctuary many think he does not want them to shoot a goose. Consequently they never report the goose tags they collect. He is certain that if all Canadian tags were reported about 25 per cent of all returns would come from Canada.

Miner's comment on the number of geese which visit his sanctuary in the spring and fall reveals the problem of feeding these big migrating birds and the extensive banding operations which he carires on.

Corn Disappears Quickly.

In his report to the bird fans of the country he said:

"You ask how many geese come here. But I cannot answer. I have put out as high as 150 bushels of corn on the ear after these geese have gone to Lake Erie for the night, and by 9 o'clock the next morning one could hardly find a kernel with a search warrant. You can depend on this, however: At least 10 per cent and possibly 25 per cent of the geese which winter between the Mississippi river and the New England states come to this sanctuary.

"Last fall between Nov. 10 and 15 we made two big catches of 553 which were banded. By the first of December these geese were being reported killed by hunters in nine different states. But there were far more geese here than we ever saw before in December."

Miner's map on goose band returns clearly shows Illinois position as a state with a heavy concentration of Canada geese. Roughly Illinois ranks next to North Carolina in reporting the largest number of Miner banded geese killed by sportsmen. Nearly all of these have been taken near Cairo, Ill., one of the greatest goose hunting localities on the contient.

GIANTS DEFEAT REDS TWICE IN PITCHERS' DUELS

NEW YORK, May 7.—(AP)—The Giants shut out the Cincinnati Reds today in a doubleheader, winning the first game 1 to 0 and the nightcap 5 to 0, in a remarkable pitching exhibition.

The Giants got only two hits off Bob Smith in the opener, but one was a homer by Sam Leslie with two out in the seventh, and was enough to win the game. Carl Hubbell yielded only five hits to win his fourth victory in five starts.

Hal Schumacher duplicated Smith's two hit feat in the second clash while the Giants made good use of six safeties off Larry Benton and Jack Quinn. Johnny Vergez drove in two Giant runs with a homer and a single. Smith struck out five Giants in a row in the fourth and fifth innings of the opener, recring the first three on nine pitched balls. Meet Levinsky, the Original Kingfish—and Don't Laugh!

BY WILFRID SMITH.

King Levinsky, the eminent Maxwell street heavyweight, who salvaged a waning reputation the other night by knocking out Charley Retzlaff, has been called a clown and a buffoon. Whatever his fighting ability, there's no doubt that the Kingfish, by his performance following Retzlaff's defeat, when he climbed the ring ropes set a new high in daffiness.

What the King does out of the ring to parade his silliness doesn't, of course, come under the supervision of the Illinois athletic commission, but those gentlemen, legal guardians for the boxing industry, feel that too much exercise of the King's personality in the ring tends to reflect unfavorably on the uplifting sport of beak busting. Almost as soon as Levinsky concluded his personality parade he was censured. The reproof was backed by threat of financial loss for the King in event of future exhibitions, thereby circumscribing the King's money making ability.

So You Think He's Silly, Eh?

Certainly there are none to assert that thousands have paid to see the Kingfish fight, yet Chicagoans alone have contributed a half million dollars on the theory that Levinsky was to fight, or at least some one would fight him. Actually the Kingfish belongs to a new school of fighters. He has seized on an idea and he has injected color into the prosaic business of punching a fellow man into helplessness.

The Kingfish now has become an institution. In a business where Dempsey won first rank as a mauler and Carnera holds first prize for Alpine size, Levinsky, neither a fighter nor a freak, has capitalized silliness, which isn't so silly after all.

The King is a business man. At 23 he has made a fortune which is the envy of his detractors. Like other great men, the Kingfish, who was born Harry Krakow, had little formal education. He quit school by request when in the fourth grade, but he demonstrated an innate intelligence when he chose a profession for which he need no education.

There Are Stories 'n' Stories.

Levinsky was not discouraged by early failures. By that same strange twist which permitted him to build success on goofiness where others, more talented, have achieved goofiness only after years in the ring, Levinsky was able to earn only a few dollars in the boom days when nearly any man could buy stock and become rich overnight. The depression brought out the King's talents which furnished comic relief for despondent thousands who paid cheerfully to see his antics.

Many of the incidents of his early career, when he fought under the name of Battling Levinsky in the middleweight class, will remain unknown until such time the King wishes to relate them in autobiographical form, the prerogative of our great men.

The commission probably doesn't suspect that hidden behind his professional mannerisms and his one syllable expressions is a keen insight into world affairs. This knowledge the King consistently shields from his closest friends in order to accentuate his personality.

We met the King the other evening. As usual he was munching a sandwich.

"What about this inflation of money, King?" we asked, knowing that he would have an opinion since he, a wealthy young man, would be interested in the purchasing power of his dollars. At first he was hesitant, fearful perhaps that he might be observed in serious conversation.

Mrs. Lena Levy, Levinsky's sister and general manager, assumed the responsibility immediately after one of the King's former managers had given Tuffy Griffith $25,000 to fight her brother. Mrs. Levy believes in the King monopolizing the goofiness. Thirty cents always should buy a dollar's worth.

The Only Real Kingfish.

"What about Muscle Shoals?" we queried.

"I can lick him, too," the King shot back unhesitatingly. "The personality kid, that's me. And I can take it. Retzlaff can't."

"What do you think of the 30 hour week, King?"

"Thirty hour week? I'm against it." Levinsky said emphatically. "Anbody knows if you cut a week down to 30 hours you're going to have a lot of days left over."

Levinsky then suggested we have a glass of beer. "By the way, King, what do you think of this 3 point 2 beer?" we inquired.

"Not much good," he replied. "But, say boy, I know a swell joint. They sell a lot of stronger stuff. It's 3 point 18."

All of which is more or less reminiscent of a host of tales which have sprung up about Chicago's heavyweight. Some undoubtedly are not true, but the King never denies any, for publicity of any kind is good publicity. Among the treasured items, retold whenever good fellows get together, relates of the King's arrest one night on Lake street for driving too rapidly.

The King Is Careful.

"Well, where's the fire?" a policeman said when the King had pulled over to the curb in his expensive roadster.

"I'm King Levinsky," was the reply, much as if this was ample excuse.

After argument the officers decided to let the King go on his way. "But," one of them cautioned, "take it easy. And look out for the pedestrians."

"Oh, I won't hit any of them posts," the King answered naively as he shifted gears.

The King was growing restless. Perhaps our conversation was a bit boresome. However, we hazarded another question, reluctant to leave.

Levinsky hesitated.

"Now don't say you don't know who Hitler is?" we chided.

"Hitler! Sure I know him. He's the guy who won't let Yussel Jacobs manage Max Schmeling."

BALTIC NATIONS SEEK TO CREATE DOLLAR PANIC

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, May 7.—Although quoting the dollar at 25 per cent under par, Baltic state banks refuse to purchase either American currency or checks. They allege the dollar is unsound until Washington announces a future stabilization rate.

The entire press of northeastern Europe prominently displayed speculations concerning the future value of the dollar last week. Still the dollar hoarders refuse to become frightened and part with their savings.

Because of the attitude of the official banks [which are private banks functioning under official control in most of these countries], Americans in need of local currencies have been forced illegally to sell their checks to exchange speculators. The speculators, although they pay slightly more than the official rate, are quoting the dollar at 20 per cent under par.

Having experienced the horrors of inflation three times since the world war, Poland, Lithuania, Latvia, and Estonia are unwilling to risk another output of unbacked paper currency. All four governments have declared officially their intention to remain upon the gold standard.

But in many articles which have appeared under the signatures of local economists, it is apparent that one of these countries expects to take advantage of the situation to increase its purchases of American products which they are now practically boycotting.

There is also no indication that Poland and Estonia, who were among the defaulters of the December payment on their American debts, will utilize the cheap dollar to meet the approaching payment in June. Latvia already has announced that she has paid her last installment until a new settlement is made. Lithuania remains silent.

Refuse to Sell Dollars.

Barring Lithuania, if the remander of these states would remove their restrictions upon remittances of dollars to pay their commercial and other debts to America, the dollar would immediately treble in value. Nevertheless it is noteworthy that while they are trying to help promote a dollar panic, they are continuing to refuse to sell dollars, which would enable their merchants to pay their debts abroad. In addition, while they are refusing to buy, they are also refusing to sell their American exchange on hand excepting in rare cases where dollars are sold at 5 per cent under par.

Passage of the inflation bill in Washington renewed discussion as to whether the Baltic states will abandon the gold standard, but thus far only Estonia is weakening. American hopes of increased trade with these countries through cheapening of the dollar is illusionary because all have announced their intention to maintain the "secret" boycott of American goods.

Russia Cuts Purchases.

Even Russia has been compelled to order further reductions of purchases in the American market because the British embargo on her exports has deprived Moscow of her largest and most profitable foreign market in which the Russians were able to realize the cash they needed to pay for American goods. Official soviet statistics on trade with the United States reveal that Russian orders to America declined sharply when the British pound left the gold standard. The orders have been declining ever since.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Who, Indeed?

ROBBERIES GAIN AS BURGLARIES DROP IN CHICAGO

Conviction Average on Increase.

Statistics of the police department made public yesterday show that robberies are on the increase, while burglaries are on the decrease. The figures released yesterday show a comparison between the first four months of 1932 and the first four months of this year.

1932.	Robberies.	Solved.	Convictions.
January	1,602	478	41
February	1,209	626	76
March	1,303	305	61
April	1,155	252	73
Total	5,329	1,662	251
1933.
January	1,501	413	60
February	1,331	253	116
March	1,571	295	32
April	1,344	353	46
Total	7,780	1,314	254

The records disclosed that one conviction is obtained for an average of every twenty-five robberies committed. The police, however, point out that this is difficult to compute because robberies are usually committed by organized gangs of young hoodlums, and that in many cases one gang will commit as many as 100 robberies before all are rounded up.

1932.	Robberies.	Solved.	Convictions.
January	2,314	394	23
February	1,818	387	17
March	2,075	244	38
April	2,031	234	15
Total	8,238	1,259	93
1933.
January	2,009	269	8
February	1,556	201	16
March	2,207	451	14
April	2,018	505	16
Total	7,790	1,426	54

Even though the convictions for burglaries have been fewer in the present year than in the preceding year, the records show that the crime has become less prevalent and that more such crimes have been solved by the police.

DAVIS TO RENEW TARIFF TRUCE DRIVE IN LONDON

LONDON, May 7.—(AP)—Norman H. Davis today prepared to remain in London until he and the British government come to terms on President Roosevelt's proposal for a tariff truce. The special American ambassador has no appointments for Monday, but an attempt was being made on his behalf to schedule an early meeting with Walter Runciman, president of the British board of trade, in whose special charge tariff matters have been placed.

It is generally recognized that Davis' attempts to beat down Runciman's opposition to the armistice may not be an easy task, for the British government recently has made new trade agreements with several European countries.

Prime Minister MacDonald spent the week-end at his home in Chequers. Quarters close to Davis said he and the premier had not been in communication during the day.

PROBE SCHOOL GIRL'S DEATH IN WAUKEGAN CRASH

Police Find Liquor; Hold Boy Driver.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

An inquest into the death of a high school girl who was killed in an automobile accident early yesterday following a high school dance will be held in Waukegan today. Police, who arrested the girl's escort, will produce a bottle of diluted alcohol found in the car at the inquest.

The victim is Miss Norman Torfin, 17 years old, daughter of a Millburn farmer. She died in the Lake County General hospital two hours after the car in which she was riding with three companions crashed into the iron pole of a fire alarm box at Hickory street and Grand avenue, in Waukegan.

Edison Park Boy Driver.

The automobile was driven by Roy Bingaman, 19 years old, 6601 Oneida avenue, Edison Park, who had escorted Miss Torfin to a dance given by the junior class of Gurnee High school. Also in the car were Robert Isselhard, 19 years old, 6907 Olcott avenue, Edison Park, and Miss Elizabeth Studer, 17, also of Millburn, and a classmate of the dead girl.

The two couples went for a drive after the dance. At 4 o'clock Bingamen, who was driving south on Hickory street, attempted to turn into Grand avenue and struck the pole. Miss Torfin, sitting beside Bingaman, was crushed. The others escaped with cuts and bruises.

Bingaman was taken into custody when police found the bottle of liquor. He was released last night on $5,000 bail.

Raymond G. Howell, 40 years old, 459 East 31st street, colored. Killed by an automobile at Indiana avenue and 31st street. Roland R. Norton, 135 South Elmwood avenue, Oak Park, the driver, was held.

Dolores Rimkus, 7 years old, 5840 South Sawyer avenue. Died in the Little Company of Mary hospital. She stepped from behind a street car and was hit by an automobile Saturday at 99th street and Western avenue.

Seven persons were injured when the automobile in which they were returning from a wedding party crashed into a street car at 31st street and Pitney court. The injured are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kokocinski, 3205 West 19th street; their daughters, Catherine and Helen; Kokocinski's brothers, Joseph and John, and Joseph's wife, Mary.

GEO. H. PALMER, NOTED HARVARD PROFESSOR, DIES

Cambridge, Mass., May 7.—(AP)—George Herbert Palmer, internationally known scholar and author and the oldest member of the Harvard faculty, died at his home in a corner of the Harvard yard today at the age of 91.

In accordance with his often expressed wish, his body will be cremated and the ashes placed beside those of his wife, Alice Freeman Palmer, in the chapel of Wellesley college, of which she was president from 1880 to 1887.

Beloved of generations of Harvard men as a teacher and lover of the classics and philosophy, Prof. Palmer, despite his retirement in 1913 as Alford professor of natural religion, moral philosophy, and civil polity, emeritus, took an active interest in the affairs of the university, and until recently gave readings in the classics which were very popular.

GRAIN VETERANS BLINK AT SWIFT MARKET CHANGE

Rising Prices, Heavy Trade Surprising.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain traders throughout the world are having a new experience. Many of them have been through several war periods and numerous business depressions, but they have never seen such a quick change from extreme dullness to unusual activity as in the last month and a half.

Speculative trading has increased from sales of around 5,000,000 bushels a day at Christmas time to 111,000,000 bushels of wheat two weeks ago. The average volume of trading in Chicago grain futures last week was 91,000,000 bushels, compared with 73,000,000 bushels in the preceding week and 46,000,000 bushels a year ago.

Accompanying this enlargement in trade there has been an advance in prices from the low point of the season, which was around the end of 1932, of 30⅝ to 31⅝ cents in wheat. New wheat has moved from 43¼ to 74 cents, July from 42¾ to 75 cents, and September from 45¼ to 75⅞ cents.

Advances Surprise Traders.

All Chicago wheat futures closed last week in the 70's, making advances which a month or more ago were considered practically impossible in such a short time. Corn prices are in the 40's and oats are above the 25 cent level. In the face of these surprising advances, net gains on wheat for the week were only 2 to 2¼ cents; corn, 6 to 7⅛ cents; oats, 1⅛ to 1⅛ cents, and rye, 5½ to 7¼ cents.

There has been a general revival in trade and industry, with more employment. Politics, however, is the leading influence in shaping speculative operations, and is likely to continue so for some time. The sooner the trade is given definite ideas as to what the administration in Washington intends to do the better it will be for all interests. Traders are in constant fear of the new farm board announcing some plan for controlling production of grains and other agricultural products, labor, crops, and money values.

Shifts in Dollar a Factor.

Overtopping all these factors is the fluctuation in the value of the dollar, sterling, and Canadian exchange. Traders are influenced more by the rapid fluctuations in sterling than in any other factor. Comparatively few understand what it all means, and stamp the whole combination as inflation.

The public has taken hold of the market, enabling the large operators who bought when prices were materially lower to unload at good profits. Small traders who were in the market a few weeks ago have in many instances secured good profits, paying little attention to ordinary price fluctuations. In a good many cases they have been more successful than the regular traders, selling on the bulges and replacing their lines on breaks.

Wheat Market Liquid.

The wheat market has been kept in a liquid position, making it possible for purchase or disposal of large lines within a narrow range of prices.

Winter wheat prospects are possibly a little less bullish, owing to rains over parts of Kansas and other sections of the belt. The government report is due Wednesday. It will give the yield of winter wheat, and is expected to show a moderate change from the estimate of 334,000,000 bushels last month.

Spring wheat seeding in the American and Canadian northwest is somewhat delayed, and it will be no surprise to see a small increase in acreage, owing to losses in winter wheat.

United States wheat prices remain above an export level. Liverpool futures are up 5⅝ to 8⅛ cents, ranging from 62 to 67⅜ cents, the latter on December. Winnipeg made net gains of 4½ to 4¾ cents, May closing at 64¼ cents. Chicago May closed at 73 cents; July, 74 to 74⅛ cents, and September, 74⅜ to 74⅞ cents.

Millers continue to pick up cash wheat, paying 78 cents for No. 2 red, or 6½ cents over Chicago May. New York reported sales of red wheat there at $1 a bushel. Prices for the week follow:

Sharp Revival in Corn.

Advancing prices for wheat, combined with cold wet weather over a large part of corn belt, which has delayed planting of the new crop, brought in a large number of outsiders, as well as large professionals. It was said that one of the largest local

Standard Oil Cuts Prices of Gasoline

Reductions in prices for its three grades of gasoline ranging from 2.2 to 3 cents a gallon, effective this morning, were announced last night by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. These reductions apply both to normal tank wagon and service station prices.

The reductions will be in effect throughout the ten states which comprise the company's main marketing territory, including Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, South Dakota, and North Dakota.

The action was interpreted in oil circles last night as being another move on the part of Standard Oil company to bring some order out of the chaos which has existed in the oil industry through establishing prices which would meet the so-called "cutthroat" competition of small independent operators and gasoline and oil bootleggers.

Follows Cut for Crude.

A recent action in the same direction was the cutting of prices paid by Standard Oil and most of the other large companies for crude oil in the east Texas district to 10 cents a barrel.

"Overproduction of crude oil and consequent oversupply of cheap gasoline have brought about a chaotic condition in the gasoline market. At hundreds of points gasoline is selling far below the industry's costs. Cut price situations are as numerous as normal price situations, if not more numerous. This condition has been made possible by offering of petroleum products in tank car lots at ridiculously low prices. We have tried to meet such competition—aptly termed 'cutthroat'—by local price adjustments, but its effects have become so general and widespread that we are obliged to recognize it as effective throughout our territory, and act accordingly.

"We are undertaking to iron out the inequalities in adjoining markets, which have developed out of local price conflicts and to level all our prices on as normal and equitable a basis as possible. At some points, where local price cuts have already resulted in prices as low as our new normal, or lower, no change will be made, or there may even be a small increase. The general trend, however, will be lower prices."

Covers All Grades.

The company in its announcement said:

"The adjustment involves also a reduction in margins between prices of the several grades of gasoline. Normally standard, or regular grade, will sell only one cent above the lowest cost brand [Stanolind], and premium [ethyl] will sell only two and a half cents above medium priced gasoline. The differentials were previously one and a half and three cents respectively."

Prices under the new scale do not include taxes. The cost of the medium grade gasoline in Chicago will be 8.6 cents a gallon compared with 10.1 cents.

IRON AND STEEL MARKETS MAKE NOTABLE GAINS

Ore Shipments Rise Nearly 89 Pct.

Cleveland, O., May 7. (AP)—The iron and steel works markets attained "almost runaway proportions" last week when the steel operating rate jumped four points to 33 per cent of capacity—the highest since Aug. 18, 1931—the magazine Steel said today.

In the course of its review the magazine said May automobile production at probably 260,000 units would represent a 60 per cent rate of activity with 1924-'29 as an average. Lake Superior iron ore shipments in April were up nearly 89 per cent over April a year ago, it was noted.

The magazine said scrap prices lifted as much as $1.50 a ton on top of previous large advances.

Buying Boosts Rate.

"Continued buying of an extensive, general character, mainly for immediate consumption, raised the operating rate in the Wheeling [W. Va.] district 11 points to 61 per cent; in Greater Cleveland 7 points to 48 per cent; Youngstown, 3 points to 33; Buffalo, 3 to 38; Pittsburgh, 1 to 22; Philadelphia, ½ point to 15½ per cent.

"Further gain in steel ingot production is indicated for this week, especially at Youngstown, and the rate may go to 41.

"Pig iron production in April at a daily rate of 20,770 gross tons, represented a lift of 18.8 per cent over March. An increase of 10 in active stocks, making 48 out of 291 in blast at the close of April, presages further improvement in May. Total output for April, 623,097 tons, was up 14.9 per cent from March.

High Auto Output.

"May production of automobiles, probably 200,000 units, will register a gain of approximately 25,000 over April and represent a 60 per cent rate of activity for the industry, considering 1924-'29 as an average. June is forecast to be as good as May."

The magazine noted that the market for structural steel has been lagging, but said that coincident with a rise in tin plate production to 55.60 per cent, and an increase of 15 per cent in the price of pig tin, there was speculation of a contemplated advance in tin plate for the second half.

Steel Scrap Price Up.

As for steel scrap:

"In the Chicago district heavy melting steel scrap has advanced $3.50 since March, now selling at $9 per ton, and recent sales of this grade are noted at Pittsburgh above $12.

"Lake Superior iron ore shipments in April were up nearly 89 per cent over last April, and the United States Steel corporation has just started out fifteen of its vessels in contrast with nine last July."

BANK HOLDINGS OF ERIE STOCK SHOW DECLINE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 7.—Holding of Erie railroad stock on March 11 by the First National bank [New York] interests had declined 4,900 shares from the total held on March 12, 1932, according to the report filed with the interstate commerce commission. Other large interests in the Erie were for the most part unchanged.

George F. Baker Jr.'s holdings of 50,000 common shares a year ago do not appear in the new list, but Gerdes and company, a First National nominee, appear with holdings of a like amount. Hank and company, another First National representative, reduced holdings from 39,606 to 34,706 common shares.

Paine, Webber and company, who held 18,130 common shares a year ago, do not appear in this year's list of the twenty largest stockholders. This change was said to represent transfers of several accounts held in the firm's name, but not any large block involved in moves for railway consolidation. The Virginian Transportation company, a subsidiary of the Chesapeake & Ohio railway, continues to hold 669,800 common shares. Wilson and company, whose address is that of the New York Trust company, continues as holders of the 215,000 common shares under the option by the Alleghany corporation to the C. & O.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 7.—The annual report of the United Gas corporation for 1932 shows a consolidated net income of $5,566,039 after all charges, taxes and depreciation, equivalent, after full dividend requirements on the $7 preferred stock, to $2.73 a share earned on 884,680 shares of no par $7 dividend second preferred stock. This compares with $8,270,298, equal to 7 cents a share on the common stock, for 1931.

Operating Revenues Lower.

Total operating revenues amounted to $23,091,454, comparing with $25,-005,303 for 1931, and net revenues were $12,143,878, against $14,206,449. The amount applicable to the United Gas corporation after depreciation, underlying dividends and minority interest was $8,513,210, against $11,714,-914, and total income was $8,571,269, compared with $11,775,265.

In the letter of transmittal it is stated that, due to the decline in earnings and to inability to finance capital and other requirements of subsidiaries, the amount of cash available to the company for the payment of dividends was materially reduced. Dividends on the preferred stock were paid in full through the quarter ended Aug. 31, 1932, but for the quarter ended Nov. 30, 1932, only one-half the regular rate was paid. Dividends on the second preferred stock were paid in full until Feb. 29, 1932.

RUSH IN STOCK MART KEEPS UP; PRICES CLIMB

Inflation Is Losing Some of Magic.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 7.—The rush to convert shrinking dollars into ballooning corporation securities continues in Wall street. Stock market "averages" rose 1.63 points further last week, reaching a figure approximately 23 points above their lows of March 2—the day before the big bank shutdown. The best levels for the rise, now five weeks old, were reached on Friday when the market promised for a time to break through the tops of last summer's long advance.

Inflation psychology is still the big overpowering and almost the sole motive force of the movement. Signs have not been wanting recently, however, that the term was losing some of its former magic as a market influence.

Stop and Think.

Traders whose views are accustomed to carry weight with the rank and file have been pondering the statistics showing that while the market has been marked up approximately 50 per cent on the strength of the administration's so-called inflation program, the markup outside the speculative exchange lists has been only about 5 per cent and some of them have been moved to wonder if the "gap" were not too wide for safety. Brokerage letters have stressed the need for caution more than at any time since the advance got under way.

Disturbing thoughts have come from other quarters. On Saturday the speculative fraternity heard simultaneously that France and Holland were ready to go off the gold standard and that President Roosevelt in his radio address tonight might have some things to say that would not listen so well to those who have allowed themselves to be mesmerized into visions of a returning 1929 bull market cushioned on paper dollars.

Due to Thomas Bill.

These mental extravaganzas, of course, draw their substance very largely from the Thomas inflation measure passed by congress early in the week, a bill authorizing the President to issue greenbacks to cut the gold content of the dollar, and providing for a rather free use of the credit expanding facilities of the federal reserve banks. It matters not that the President has not indicated the use he will make of these extraordinary

SECONDARY LIST LEADS SPIRITED RALLY IN BONDS

Principal Action Centers on Railway Liens.

New York, May 7.—(AP)—Secondary bonds, especially those of the more speculative type, led the listed loans market in a buoyant forward push during the last week under the spur of various political and economic influences.

While inflation was still the dominant factor in the lower priced groups, most "gilt edge" issues were disposed to either ignore or minimize the importance of currency expansion possibilities, basing their steady to firm tone on highly optimistic reports of improving business and industrial trends throughout the country.

Rails Lead Upturn.

Principal activity was centered in railway liens, all of which reflected the more than seasonal gain in freight car loadings as well as the administration's carrier relief measure which went to congress accompanied by a special message from President Roosevelt. The planned legislation not only would repeal the much disputed recapture clause of the national transportation act, but would aid in reorganizations, rate making and halt unprofitable competition. The average for 20 selected rail bonds advanced around 5 points during the week.

The industrials, while not quite as happy as the rails, improved their average more than 2 points and the utilities, in the face of legislative and other uncertainties, managed to hold a gain of around 1½ points. Strength of communications company issues, notably those of Postal Telegraph, International Telephone and Western Union, did much to hold up the utility section.

U. S. Issues Steady.

United States government securities were comparatively steady but rather inactive, apparently maintaining a waiting attitude in anticipation of the inauguration of the federal reserve system's open market operations, which, under authorization of the inflation amendment to the farm bill, may involve the purchase of as much as $3,000,000,000 of government obligations.

While the American dollar dropped sharply in European exchange markets, foreign bonds generally were under pressure. Principal losses here were shown by loans of Belgium, Germany, France and Great Britain. Japanese government issues displayed strength, with rallies of several points on the week.

Three Brazilian Trade Delegates Sail for Japan

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 7.—(AP)—Three members of an official Brazilian trade mission to Japan sailed from Rio de Janeiro today. Jorge Dossantos, the chairman, is to go later by way of the United States. They hope to promote the sale of tropical products and content.

Engineering Building.

As a holder of real estate bonds I have been considerably distressed by the manner in which the so-called protective committees proceed. Charges made by the committee and attorneys are atrocious. For instance in connection with Engineering building the committee's fees and expenses are $150,441.36. Of course there can be no justification for this. This has apparently become organized to the point where it is a "racket."—T. K. G.

A detailed report on Engineering building has been mailed to you. The following are excerpts from a letter from American Bond and Mortgage committee explaining its expenses and fees:

"... Our deposit agreement provides that after termination of the agreement the committee shall file with depositaries a statement ... [which] shall set forth in reasonable detail its receipts and disbursements ... including all amounts paid or to be paid for accounting, and expert or other services and for compensation of members of the committee. The agreement further provides for dissemination of that information to depositing bondholders and provides further a method for depositing bondholders to object thereto.

"At present we are in the process of incurring expenses and the picture is not complete. Your letter seems to be written on the basis that all charges and disbursements are received and paid, but such is not the fact. The items of expense connected with [this reorganization] ... are not complete.

"Before the reorganization plan was put into effect it was submitted to depositing bondholders, in which this sum was placed at $155,000 to be used in accordance with provisions of the deposit agreement in payment of expenses and compensation of its counsel, depositaries and other items provided for in the deposit agreement; that plan was submitted to depositing bondholders for their approval and has been approved by all depositing bondholders.

"The total deposited bonds is $3,333,000, or 95 per cent of the bonds. If your inquirer has deposited his bonds, he has approved that amount of expenses and compensation for the committee, counsel, and depositaries. If your inquirer is not a depositor, it occurs to us that he has no direct interest."

United States Thrift Stamps.

I would like some information on United States thrift cards. These are dated in 1929 and contain 25 cent stamps. Can I cash these?—Mrs. S. S.

Yes, these can be cashed by sending them to the treasurer of the United States, division of loans and currencies, Washington, D. C.

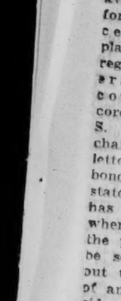
ANNOUNCE PLAN TO REORGANIZE DEL RAY FLATS

Hope to Avoid Expense of Foreclosure.

BY AL CHASE.

Reorganization of the bond issue against the Del Ray apartments, at 7917-27 Maryland avenue, without foreclosure or receivership, is planned by the regular Bondholders Protective committee, according to Charles S. Macaulay, chairman. In a letter sent to the bondholders it is stated that a plan has been adopted whereby title to the property will be secured without the payment of any cash consideration and the reorganization made effective as soon as a majority of the bondholders have agreed to it.



CHARLES S. MACAULAY.

Under the reorganization plan, title to the property is to be conveyed to Jacob R. Dramstadt, as trustee, who will issue participating certificates which will be delivered to such of the bondholders as deposit their securities.

Owner to Have Option.

The owner is to have an option to redeem the property through purchase of participating certificates from the bondholders at any time within seven years from April 11, 1933, at par plus unpaid interest.

The trustee will manage the thirty-six apartment building and administer the trust estate under the supervision of a committee of trust managers consisting of Gustave F. Fischer, Maurice Barancik, and Joseph Meyer. The latter is a member of the Bondholders' Protective committee which also comprises Albert F. Madlener, Richard E. Schmidt, and Henry Brummel.

Majority Rules.

The liquidation trust plan to be used, was developed by Rubens, Fischer, Mosser & Barnum, attorneys for the committee, and Mr. Fischer, chairman of the board of directors of the Cosmopolitan State bank, underwriter of the issue secured by the Del Ray apartment.

"Ordinarily it's necessary for all the bondholders to deposit their bonds before a reorganization plan can be made effective," said Mr. Macaulay. "The Cosmopolitan plan, however, can be used as soon as the majority of the bondholders and the title owner have agreed to the procedure."

The trustee acts under the direction of three trust managers, as stated, and is authorized to mortgage or sell the property when conditions improve.

Production in the United States came to 252,000 ounces against 147,000 in February and 210,000 in January. Canadian production was 257,000 ounces against 235,000 and 233,000, respectively.

First Quarter Earnings of Railways $33,909,385

Washington, D. C., May 7.—(AP)—The bureau of railway economics announced today that class 1 railroads of the United States had a net railway operating income of $33,909,385 for the first three months of 1933. This, the bureau continued, would represent a return of .57 per cent on property investments. In the first three months of 1932, their net railway operating income was $67,478,083, or 1.29 per cent of their property investment.

CHICAGO TRADE KEEPS UP GAINS; SEASONAL TREND IS REVERSED

Contrary to the normal seasonal trend, business conditions in Chicago during the last week continued to improve. There was a new spurt in wholesale merchandising which even managed to surpass in sales figures the renewed activity at retail. Steel orders turned upwards as prices rose, production of automobiles jumped to a new high average, power output ran even closer to 1932 percentages, and three railroads reported traffic gains, according to trade observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

According to officials of one of the largest local wholesale houses, last Tuesday was the biggest business day they had experienced in the last three years. There was also a further broadening in activity at retail, with some of the higher-priced lines sharing in the increased turnover. One of the larger mail order houses stated sales were only a little more than 3 per cent below those of last year, and the spread from a year ago was the smallest since 1930.

Sales of one of the larger chain stores were off only 2.8 per cent from sales in the like month last year. Still another chain store stated sales were off only 1 per cent under last year, while their March sales were more than 18 per cent under those of 1932.

Automobile output made the best showing since July, 1931. In production during April there was an increase of 62 per cent over March and 8 per cent over the corresponding month in 1932.

U. S. POPULATION ONLY 150 MILLION BY YEAR 2000?

Dr. Ogburn Cites Problems in Slower Growth.

Evidence that population growth is slowing up, and that the latter half of the century ma ysee a population of less than 150 millions in the United States raises new problems for the nation's leaders, Dr. William F. Ogburn, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago, emphasized in an interview yesterday.

Prof. Ogburn, who was director of research for the President's research committee on recent social trends, called attention to the most recent authoritative estimate of future population, that made by Dr. P. K. Whelpton of the Scripps Foundation for Research in Population Proolems. The estimate was made in the leading article of "Social Change for 1932," annual volume of the American Journal of Sociology.

Predicts Small Increase.

Although many businesses are expecting a population of 140 millions by 1940, Dr. Whelpton empasizes in the study the likelihood that the population at the end of the present decade may be only 131 million. Dr. Whelpton also showed that for the first time in a century the total urban population of the country declined in 1932.

"America lives in a tradition of population expansion, of filling up a continent, a tradition that has been hers since the formation of the Union," Dr. Ogburn commented. "We have grown into patterns of action built upon such an estimate conscious or unconscious, of such a growth.

Effects Are Forecast.

"But we are forced now to revise our attitudes, because of this slowing up of population. It will affect particularly those who have been benefiting from the so-called 'unearned increment.' It will affect markets, real estate, urban growth, man power in war, wages, and particularly the standard of living, which will be raised by this slowing up of population increases."

HAROLD TEEN—GETTING DOWN TO BUSINESS

SOLUTION TO PHOTOGRAPHIC EVIDENCE

The photograph showed Maloney (the dead man) lying half-way across the threshold of the entrance to Murphy's flat. After pulling open the door Fordney knew that Murphy's account of the tragedy was untrue. As the door opened outwardly it would have been impossible for Maloney's body to have fallen across the threshold if Murphy had pushed open the door in answer to Maloney's cry.

BUICK SEDAN—'27. It's exceptionally clean throughout and has thousands of miles of unused transportation. Very fully equipped. For today, $95.

LA SALLE SEDAN—'27, that was owned by a wealthy family who gave it the very best of attention. Really this La Salle must be seen to be appreciated. It runs fine and the appearance is very attractive. Don't pass this bargain up at $125.

PONTIAC COUPE—1929. Here is an ideal car for the business man. It was carefully checked over in our shops and the performance will satisfy the most exacting buyer. Smart appearance. Will not remain long at $165.

STUDEBAKER SEDAN—'29. President 8, that never left the Chicago block. It's a real beauty and the motor performs smoothly and quietly. Has extras galore. This is an outstanding Studebaker value at $245.

FORD COUPE—'31. We do not believe there is a Ford in Chicago with the appearance and performance of this one that can be purchased as reasonably. By all means, inspect and drive this coupe. It's priced at only $225.

ESSEX COACH—'31 that really looks and runs as though it were direct from the factory. The finish glistens like a new dollar and the upholstery is immaculate. Excellent tires. Worth considerably more than our special price of $285.

AUBURN 8 SEDAN—1930, with wire wheels, side mounts and many costly extras. This Auburn was in storage for over a year, and it will really give new car satisfaction today. It looks like a $600 value. Specially priced at $375.

HUDSON 8 SEDAN—'30, that's the last word for beautiful appearance and sparkling performance. The exterior and interior are flawless. The motor is in tomotch condition. Will be disposed of immediately at $395.

PLYMOUTH ROADSTER—'32, with very low mileage. Has floating power, rumble seat and every conceivable extra. If you want a sporty car with really wonderful performance, see this Plymouth priced at only $325.

NASH COACH—'30. Special Six de luxe model with wire wheels, side mounts, etc. This Nash was only driven evenings and Sundays for pleasure purposes, so now it will please you in every respect. It was priced at $500, but we just reduced it to $375.

LINCOLN PHAETON — '28, with side mounts, touneau windshield, etc. Has snappy appearance and a world of power and pep. Price very special for the short selling time. When you see it and drive it you'll agree that it's certainly worth much more than our sales price of $425.

PACKARD CONVERTIBLE COUPE—'29, de luxe model with wire wheels, side mounts, etc. Finished a handsome ebony black with crimson wheels. Spacious rumble seat. Here is a Packard that will delight the eye, and it performs like Lindy's plane. $445.

OLDSMOBILE SEDAN—'31, de luxe model with wire wheels, side mounts, etc. The finish upholstery tires and motor are really 100%. The price is out of keeping with the high quality of this car—only $475.

HUPMOBILE 8 SEDAN—'31, de luxe model with wire wheels, side mounts, etc. The finish has not a mar on it and the upholstery is luxurious. Tire are like new. Has Pullman car comfort, a wheel running motor. We took it in for $800. Priced for quick sale at $575.
